Young, Southwick Complete Work on Revised Bulletin

Mr. Ralph A. Young and Arthur F. Southwick, with the collaboration of Professor John D. McMillan and Louis E. Miskel, have completed a new and revised edition of the College calendar for the years 1941-1942, which will be released to prospective students Wednesday. Mr. Henry W. Williams of the college press was in charge of the project and George Publishing firm of Green- dell handled the printing. Mr. Southwick assisted his assistant in type setting and proof reading in the preparation and printing of it. This attractive four-color brochure is smaller in width than the old bulletin but is more complete in content. The bulletin contains all of the data of the catalog taken from the work of the registrar. It does not include prices but is available free to all who request it.

Aside from the typographic, the entire layout and design of the bulletin is new. The pages of the bulletin will be divided into sections of interest to the various groups of students - freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors and postgraduates. Each section of the bulletin will have a different background and will be separated from the other sections by a different number of spaces. Each section will be numbered and the page will be a different color.

Another feature of the bulletin is its size. It is 8.5 x 11 inches, which is the standard size for all other college bulletins. The bulletin is four-color, which is a new feature for the college. The bulletin is printed on a high-quality paper, which is a new feature for the college. The bulletin is a new feature for the college.

Scientists Invahe Local Court For Conference Tilt

By JIM CANNELL

With the materials restructuring its conference, the basketball situation seems much healthier in this year's competition with a fairly strong conference. The conference is divided into three divisions: the Muskingum Division, the Eastern Division, and the Western Division.

The Muskingum Division is dominated by Muskingum College and The College of Wooster, with Capital University, Otterbein University, and The College of Saint Mary also playing a significant role. The College of Wooster has had a strong conference, and with the addition of Capital University, the division is expected to be even more competitive in the coming season.

The Eastern Division is led by Mount Union College, with Marietta College and Thiel College also playing a significant role. The Mount Union College has been the dominant team in the division, and with Marietta College and Thiel College also playing well, the division is expected to be competitive in the coming season.

The Western Division is led by Wooster College, with Wooster College and Kenyon College also playing a significant role. Wooster College has been the dominant team in the division, and with Kenyon College also playing well, the division is expected to be competitive in the coming season.
