In Defense Of I.S.

by John D. Reinheimer

This article seeks to represent a point of view which may be evaluated as a vigorous criticism of the Israeli Defense program. Since this program represents Wooster's most distinctive undergraduate feature, I wish to point out some of the advantages which have become apparent to a long-time observer.

The I.S. program should appeal to a diverse student population, as a basis for achieving the goals are the I.S. project and the thesis which summarizes this conviction. The liberal arts education has the same goals as the I.S. program. Each educated person hopes to have a working knowledge of the several fields and the disciplines use to acquire knowledge (wisdom). While there are many fields that a more efficient method than total self discovery for each student. This appeal to the specialist in the field to the one who seeks to see the big picture in his conclusions in a course. Because each field contains much material, the instrament in this of to cover some subjects in very broad perspective. His goal is to provide the seeker with an intellectual map to his field (or discipline). This map is an aid which the student will appreciate and the specifics have been broken down.

The I.S. program seeks a second type of influence; it is much less easy to achieve a non-technical person the idea of trying to add the sum total of knowledge rather than to learn which has been known. It is not a creative process, a search for new knowledge, but the study of new developments, measurement of new quantities, etc. This doing provides personal satisfaction, reading, and that subject is easy. To do, one must summarize his ideas (data) and those ideas that have been published; he must evaluate these ideas against the facts that either of 50 years ago. It is surging sticks that his disciplines uses. If course he must know what those measuring sticks are and that intellectual courage and emotional maturity to put forth one's ideas and ideas. This is that the student nor the director can know the intellectual courage and emotional maturity (as in a course). This is exploration. He must learn to deal with uncontrolled variables. Hence, one cannot expect the smooth easy journey, but must experience the frustration of incoherent goals and futures.

The rewards for these efforts are manifold, but mainly center in the sense of confidence that the explorer develops. He learns that some of his ideas are good, some good, and that he needs more and hard work, even for the very talented. He can 50 years ago and that his talents because he has tried to do things that are not only for Americans but also for other peoples.

The People's Peace Treaty proposal for this framework: the total withdrawal of all the troop and the immediate release of all POW's, an immediate cease-fire, and a coalition government in South Vietnam. The call for a coalition government until five, democratic elections can be held is drawn up. Senator Eugene McCarthy (and others) have brought this plans to the U.S. Government since early 1968. The American Government has refused to listen to this plea.

Now the people will respond and a new government in the United States and the American people will join together. A recent Harris Poll shows that 73% of the American people want all American troops withdrawn by the end of 1971; we want peace.

American fears of a coalition government have weakened the belief that any coalition government in South Vietnam can be a success. He has been acquiring new knowledge, expanding his personal horizons and may be largely introductory; this may be sufficiently new and extensive to warrant publication, with the considerable number of troops. On the other hand, he may use the student's (Continued on Page 2)

PEOPLE FOR PEACE

by Bob Newman and Jon Anderson

There will not be peace in Vietnam until there is a government of peace in Saigon—Third Thien Minh United Church, South Vietnam.

The People's Peace Treaty lays down the following points for an honorable war in Vietnam:

1. The immediate withdrawal of all United Nations troops from Vietnam.
2. The immediate release of all prisoners of war and prisoners of conscience, including those in the Viet Cong.
5. A halt to all military operations in Vietnam.

The People's Peace Treaty provides for the total withdrawal of all U.S. troops and the immediate release of all prisoners of war. It also calls for a coalition government in South Vietnam. The call for a coalition government has won over five democratic elections can be held is now in progress.

In the Vietnamese Presidential Election, two candidates will be elected by the people. There will be a popular candidate and a coalition candidate. The call for a coalition government until five, democratic elections can be held is now in progress.

Alaska

Frost And Oil Don't Mix

(CPS) - Extraction of the oil from Alaska's North Slope has been a prime target of petroleum companies since its discovery in 1968. The pipeline which now terminates in the northern Proode Bay area to the southern near-port of Vols. From here it can be shipped to the lower 48.

Two temporary court injunctions are blocking present construction. Both suits argue that the environment has not been fully researched as required by the National Environmental Policy Act. They also claim that the determination of Interior from issuing right-of-way and special land use permits for the oil companies which determine the pipe where the line can be laid.

A Department of Interior statement claims that the pipeline is necessary for "the growth and security of the United States" and for restricting U.S. dependence on foreign oil supplies.

Certainly the Middle East is politically unstable at the moment, and oil sites there could not be dependent on an emergency. In Alaska it would explode the pipeline.

There are some oil areas may be politically unstable, none is as environmentally unacceptable as Alaska, particularly as compared with the Arctic Coastal Plain, where Proode Bay is located. It is normally covered with tundra, a thick, spongy, protective vegetation. Exposed to the weather, it is one of the least fertile places on earth. From a few feet deep, the vegetation may be frozen all year, permanently frozen with the permafrost often reaching down over 100 feet. If this layer is turned over, its natural state is destroyed, as it becomes a fine, light soil. The permafrost construction, the permafrost layer begins to melt—and keeps on melting. The oil company's optimistic signs and hopes of a cleaner America are carried out inside the arctic region five years ago. The scars are now ten feet deep in many places.

Dirty Gerty's Gets Struck

By Union Workers' Strike

bob Bonchis

At midnight Saturday, April 3, the Gerstendrager Co. was closed down by a walkout by retired and active union workers. Gerstendrager's is a local manufacturer of custom trucks and trailers, who is relatively unknown but best known for its production of U.S. mail trucks.

Members of Local 813 of the Allied Industrial Workers of America, AFL-CIO, voted to strike at most unanimously after considering contract proposals offered by the company's management.

Negotiations concerning a new contract have been held for the last two months. To date, the company proposals, if accepted, would remedy neither situation. Furthermore, the company's response to the demands of the workers and regulations which would be presented for the union in representing the employees. (Frequently union members have been either a long-time worker or relative enjoying the work that is done by the company who does not allow a family member to save much for anything that he wants to do.

The strike at this year's matter of economic necessity, it is a matter of this year's best American tradition: working men struggling to better their lot. The strike was a cry for sympathy or hand-outs. The strike was for a something that will make you want to wake up and demand your future futures on the line (management and workers who are not willing to work for low wages and no benefits. The strike, especially a protracted struggle, will win employees hardy living on the wages paid by the company does not allow a family man to save much for anything that he wants to do.

As one member of the Union Business Committee put it, "We didn't plan to strike in the first place and we tried every way we knew how to avoid it, but the company forced us into it." Union members are not anxious to strike, as the author (a Gerty's employee and AIW member) can testify, yet Union members are not willing to work for low wages and no benefits. The strike, especially a protracted struggle, will win employees hardy living on the wages paid by the company who does not allow a family man to save much for anything that he wants to do.

Man For All Reasons

Add one more docile tattoo to the hairy arms of American justness. This is the sort of thing that the 17th-century self-murder of "at least 22 old men, women and children at the South Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai, is to give the world. President Nixon, in a typical massturbatory act of political manipulation, has announced his decision to review the My Lai case. However, watching Nixon in action does become increasingly tedious over the years, and at least, he's only a sup- porting actor in the burgeoning drama of political delusion.

The President has himself, willing or not, as an efficient mental bedfellow, more ac- curately, a useful accomplice in the brainwashing dogma-shooting, ideology-toting leftist/rightist/opportunists who care to exercise destructive germ warfare. Life, living and domestic peace will be neither justified, tolerated or stopped.

Spring comes eternal. Sanity can be found holed up somewhere. The white irony is that "My Lai" is not for man "as such" anymore.

ideas and accomplishments as ex- amples in his introductory course. These real stories, about persons who have made a visible and valuable contribution, can make a more vital class pre- sentation.

Another aspect of the overall pattern in the selection of research (I.S.) topic. This is one of the most difficult problems of the faculty member has to perform. The project must not be impos- sible, yet it cannot be so easy that there is no challenge. The idea that the student can define his project is good for morale, but must be considered before granting his importance to the practical problems in the field. For example, one student, when I asked, "I want to study a major problem during my I.S. A few years later, nurses were commonly called I.S. and acknowledged his naivete concerning the magnitude of this field. I have felt that a student should choose a group of projects which are related to the student's search interests of the faculty of the department. He chooses a project relevant to the work which he would like to do. The continuity of such I.S. projects helps to show the student his responsibility to those who follow him; he cannot build on the work of others if he is willing to work. It is clear that the student who does not recognize this, can not be permitted to participate without the guidance of an I.S. supervisor."

Eleven men and women will be on campus to offer their untarnished and unbiased critical dis- cussion, and argument. With membership ranging from an organization aimed at saving the environment at the University of Washington, and a Roman Catholic nun to a professor of Jewish theology and the author of Black Theology and Black Power the symposium covers a broad range of theo- logies and ideologies. The experi- ence of the participants includes anti-war rallies, visits to the Paris Peace talks, organizing a Black community and many years in classrooms, lecture halls and offices working on combating reactionary theology.

Dr. James Bean of the French and Religion depart- ment organized the conference to include panel discus- sions among the students and faculty. Pit Stoper (at 4:30 Tuesday and 4:30 Friday) and informal lunch- room discussions in the private residence of the University Center. There will also be a piano con- cert and a folk mass at St. Mary's Church Sunday, April 18.

Three types of media will be represented. Public Service Announcements in the form of religious commercials will be the subject of an open work- shop on Wednesday, the 14th. Led by Dr. Logan of the speech department, and Mr. Roy Newman of the first launders, the products of the workshop will be aired on both WWST and WCWS during the five days of the conference.

A poster by Arthur McGill the "The Church and the Current Conflict," which will be shown. Communist director Pier Pasolini has undermined the life of Catholic and anti- Semitic Gospels them- selves and their effect on the lower class of society at which they were directed. The film has received very good reviews from the New York Times, the Catholic Film Newsletter and Cinema To- day" and received an award at the Venice Film Festival in 1971.

There will be readings of Malcolm Boyd's play "The Community," on Wednesday, 14th at 9:30 Saturday at Zeitgeist at 9:30 and 11:00. The main prop in the play is a crucifix, whether real or imagined is not important. What is im- portant is that it symbolizes death. Bohemian has been very involved in re- gious reformation carrying his icons to 22nd Street and the other street corners. He is perhaps best known for his book Are You Running With Me Jesus? Saturday night the film will be an experimental wor- ship including reading, singing and breaking of bread.

These are just a few of the conclusions I reached by just looking around campus at this: What is Mr. Bruce, Athletic Director, and his department doing to correct or make things better for what is wrong that has been doing to us? I feel it should be the duty of Mr. Bruce and other possible department chairmen to confront and deal with, publicly not privately, all complaints toward their department. Especially since over one-third of the campus has been polled and 67% of those by Mr. Bruce should publicly explain to the students the decisions, if any, that his department has reached as a result.

VIA BLOODLETING?

The real issue for most people is confused about manufacturing anti-personnel, incendiary, and chemical and bio- logical weapons. If such industries exist, I ask the Trustees to review the morality of this action by "a college of the church." The students and faculty who make this request have been collecting information on firms making these weapons under government contract. Eventually, this information will be sent to the Trustees through the Conference with Trustees Committee. We plan to inform the community of the nature and effects of these specific weapons through an open forum. We trust our concern over the possibility of Wooster's support for products which have meant and continues to mean death and destruction to Southeast Asia will be shared by the Board of Trustees of the College.

THEOLOGICAL IMPACT

by Chris Hoffman

Have you ever wondered why, now that things come easier, they seldom are as easy as they used to be? I have considered the advisability of having kids when their only welcome would be a progressive health care system, specifi- cally ravaged, and emotionally jaded world? Have you ques- tioned the surrounding valuations lately?

Even men and women will be on campus to offer their anti-war, anti-racism, anti-communism and anti-campus of racial bias. These people are being educated on Washington, and a Roman Catholic nun to a professor of Jewish theology and the author of Black Theology and Black Power the symposium covers a broad range of theo- logies and ideologies. The experi- ence of the participants includes anti-war rallies, visits to the Paris Peace talks, organizing a Black community and many years in classrooms, lecture halls and offices working on combating reactionary theology.

This will be held behind Lowry Center except in the event of possible bad weather, in which case it will be held in Lowry Room 119.

Although the stage has not yet been chosen, sometime during the program Orchestral will perform the "Liturgy of "Jesus Christ Superstar."

Dr. Bean feels that religion is a vital part of our existence and has worked accordingly. Being that he is one of the most active and influential people on the American social scene. He is in great demand on American campuses where religion, like everything else, is being ques- tioned and reinterpreted in hopes of making it more relevant to contemporary life.
RADICAL CHURCH REFORM

DR. ROSEMARY RUETHER—Dr. Ruether is extremely active in the Roman Catholic underground, a member of the Central Defence for Women's Committee and a member of the Community of Christ Experimental Parish. She is presently teaching Historical Theology at Howard University and has, in the past, taught all aspects of religion including Old Testament. Dr. Ruether is a firm believer in change in the church as evidenced in the left wing reformation. She has written, "The Radical Kingdom and the Church Against Itself."

DR. BERNARD MARTIN—One of the leading Jewish theologians, Dr. Martin is on the advisory board of the American College in Jerusalem, and is the Abba Hillel Silver Professor of Jewish Studies at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland. Dr. Martin has written a great deal on the trends in Jewish religious ideas including Prayer in Judaism, and, in 1970, Great Twentieth Century Jewish Philosophers. He is presently teaching a course entitled "Modern Jewish Religious Thought."

The Theological Impact

James H. Cone—The author of "Black Theology and Black Power," and, more recently, "A Black Theology of Liberation" is presently an associate professor of theology at Union Seminary in New York. A very popular speaker, Cone rates repeat invitations for speaking engagements at many of the colleges and universities at which he has previously spoken. Mr. Cone is a very active, vocal and passionate advocate of Black identity—both secular and religious.

Father Charles Sheedy—Father Sheedy received his education at Notre Dame, the University of Pittsburgh, and the Catholic University of America. He has been at Notre Dame in a teaching capacity since 1949 and is presently the Dean of Theological Studies and Institutes there. Father Sheedy is a member of the American League to Abolish Capital Punishment and the Catholic Theological Society.

Arthur McGill—The Celebration of First, "The Church of the 1980's" and "Technology and Human Love," are some of the results of 26 years of theological questions, analysis, and debate. Author-Professor McGill has thus far made his contributions in the field of education, receiving a Fulbright scholarship, the Vedder Prize for distinguished undergraduate teaching and a Senior Fellowship of Humanities at Princeton, among others. Mr. McGill will comment on the film "The Gospel According to Saint Matthew," just prior to the showing in the Severence Gym at 7:30, Friday, April 16.

Tom Skinner—After leading the Harlem Lords for two years, the biggest gang in Manhattan, Tom Skinner underwent a change of heart one night while listening to a Gospel program on the radio. Since then he has spoken all over Harlem, on TV and radio and worked extensively with Billy Graham. He now heads the Tom Skinner Canton Christian Crusade and divides his time between the crusade and lecturing around the country.

Richard R. Fernandez—As director of Clergy and Laymen Concerned about Vietnam and a member of the Committee of Liaison which deals with communication between POW’s and their families, Richard Fernandez has been deeply involved in the whole POW issue, visiting both Vietnam and the Paris Peace talks in his efforts. Mr. Fernandez has also served on the committee which helped plan the Chicago Convention Demonstrations, the November 1969 march on Washington and the large gathering on the Ellipse in Washington after the Cambodian Invasion.

Calvin Marshall III—Planned Parenthood, The Black Unity Party, and the Anti-Poverty Agency of Peekskill, N.Y. have all received the assistance of Calvin Marshall at one time or another. An Elder in the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, Deacon Marshall is presently an executive of the Black Economic Development Conference Inc., the pastor of the Varick Memorial African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, and the Chief Protocol of the AME Zion Church.

Survival of the Fittest

In 1949, when the American car buyer had his choice of cars like the De Soto, the Hudson or the Studebaker, two imports sold bought Volkswagens. It turns out they were more farsighted than folkhardy. Because today there aren’t many De Sotos, Hudsons or Studebakers around.
But there are quite a few Volkswagens. More than three and a half million at last count. Seldom has so little come so far.

A. Cecil Williams—As President of Citizens Alert, Cecil Williams promotes citizen investigation of alleged police brutality. The author of "Black Souls Are Not For Sale," the Reverend Williams has spoken for his people in a myriad of ways. He has been instrumental in establishing the Free Medical Clinic; a joint enterprise between professional volunteers and the Black Peoples Free Store, and the Officers for Justice, a group of predominantly black policemen who are attempting to fight racism within the law enforcement system. The Reverend Williams has also been a driving force at many anti-war rallies in the Berkeley-San Francisco area.

RACISM MORALITY

Sister Kathleen Doley—Sister Kathleen has concentrated most of her efforts on community organization and religious education. Sister is a graduate of M.O.S.T. or the Metropolitan Uplift Service Training Program with a subject matter being the role of the church in the city. Sister has worked in various settlement houses in Virginia, New York, and Massachusetts and has taught at the high school and college level. Sister’s primary interest is in bringing the gospel to men as a form of liberation.
Pipe proponents bill their plans as "sluble," "stationary," and "safe"—the soil soft. But perman- dent solutions are possible in places where a stable soil surface can be found; di- bari the tundra and permafrost, the pipe could sink, and 60 to 70 percent of the pipe is ex- posed to encountered permafrost problems. Furthermore, the pipe- line must cross high-altitude, upland plateau terrain. In several areas the pipe will have to be buried—underneath a Yukon River for example—and hot crude traveling down the pipeline could melt the surrounding ice even through pro- tective insulation. Irregular sinking could result in a crack and oil leakage. The prospect is serious. Snow darkened by oil might absorb enough ad- ditional solar heat to melt the polar ice cap. Eventually coastal cities around the world could be buried under several hundred feet of water. The "Voice" staff, eyes bagged and white from lack of sleep, are pronouncing that anyone who is interested in contribut- ing time and back- bone (principally holding up the overworked management) to a program of copyreading, typing, paper fold- ing and distributing is needed. If writing and general news coverage the opportunity is ex- pected to encounter permafrost problems. Year time and purchase of the publications room. "Time" year was going to be cheerfully welcomed (per- sonally by the editor and grate- fully received.

To the Editor:

I have just read Floyd Watts' "Requiem for the Peace Corps" and feel that I must like to offer another view of the Peace Corps. It is very much alive and well and even thriving in some places. Our Peace Corps experience spans the ten years of the agency. We worked in India and volunteers in Madagascar, and presently he is director of a 150-volunteer program in Fiji.

Ever since we came "south" in 1966, our cohorts of the "good old days" have asked us, "Are you volunteers differ- ent now?" In other words, what is the true state of the Corps? True, we were more daring, more radical for our time. We were, however, quiteomedical, more committed to others. I first realized I was no longer part of the post-collegiate generation a year ago when I asked about these early sixtyish veterans with a volunteer who was leaving in the middle of his tour he had "found himself." Two recent Wooster graduates who left the Corps "in the middle" left for a similar reason.

So why do I say the Peace Corps is alive and well? Because these volunteers, out of more than several hundred

We have known in West Africa and Fiji in the past five years, exceptions. Individual exceptions are exceptions in the Peace Corps. So are volunteers who extend for a third year, although 19 recently extended in Fiji—men and women, working in the bush and in the city. The average volunteer does his Peace Corps job for two years.

But the important question is: What kind of a job are volunteers doing in 1971? They are doing a better job, and that is what developing nations want. I remember Melba Mason, dean of Carleton College in Liberia, asking a recruiter at Michigan State in 1966, "Why don't you have any uneducated people?" In the "good old days," you see, a lot of volunteers "found themselves" as teachers, or just did it. And no matter what finding itself as a teacher was rather rough on the Africans among them.

Volunteers are doing a better job today because pro- gram in West Africa and Fiji. Does he have a profession? This is the question. We are not the volunteers of March (Chaco).

An example: In 1966 an architect and a construction man were frustrated in a Sierra Leone rural development project. In search of something more challenging, he decided to go to Fiji for jobs in public works in rural development. In fact, he left his job as a junior lecturer in Botany at the University of Fiji, D.C. training and to Fiji from Hawaii training. Because the Peace Corps trained in both places, he lived with local families for a month; they study language in its own setting and learn a lot more languages; they

In Fiji we're looking forward to a new small pro- gram in the Solomon Islands (no Peace Corps staff will be there) and we're beginning to talk about regional South Pacific training. Peace Corps is still an exciting organiza- tion. It is associated with and will miss it where it leaves. (Staff members may only serve five years.)

We really miss the volunteers: Tom who talks about passen- ger jet all the time the management a program like us. He who's out of Fiji first class for mentally retarded children; Bob, who's on his third Peace Corps tour; Jim and Helen, who are satisfying religious training in their bush primary school; Dick who's doing something with the Peace Corps;

Volunteers do: AID money didn't finance the Executive Mansion, the people on the coast are American Liberians (and don't like the way we think). The Peace Corps' emphasis on social work projects becomes political, it dies. That happened in Nigeria.

Don't give up on Peace Corps, Wooster.

Coaching changes and southern trips set off the five spring sports into the 1971 campaign in an attempt to continue the success of the Scots. Wooster has laid claim to the Ohio hardwood crown in soccer, football and basketball this year, along with some exciting records in women's sports.

The most startling occurrence at the end of the spring semester was the announcement that head football and lacrosse coach Jack Lengyel had accepted the head football post at Marshall University. The Spring Game was a disaster for the Scots when Marshall was killed in a plane crash during the same last fall and Lengyel called his new assignment, "The biggest challenge of my life." Lengyel has built the Scots from a poor 1-8 record in 1966 to an 8-1 winner his final year, in 1970. His five year mark was 23-22.

Over spring break it was announced that Assistant Coach Pat O'Brien had been given the head job for the 1971 season. In addition to handling the line in football, O'Brien has been head swim coach and on the track coach. He will retain the same staff plus one other coach and one starter.

LACROSSE

With the departure of Lengyel, the Fighting Scots lacrosse team needed a replacement, and the logical choice was senior Tom La Monica, a three-year letterman and phys. ed. major. La Monica, who was already acting lacrosse coach, is quite knowledgeable and will have help from the other seniors. In addition, physics prof Dave Elwell will provide assistance. Dr. Ewell was a gothic in his college days at Amherst.

The Scots entered their first home game Saturday with a 2-2-1 record, acquired on a trip to Maryland over spring vacation. The Scots are in their second year as a varsity sport playing in the College Division and have 13 letterman back. However, Wooster faces its toughest schedule ever against such notables as Notre Dame, Denison, Ohio University and Ohio State.

COMING NEXT WEEK:

DAVE'S LOCKER

All Midwest Honorable Mention Bill Seager will lead the Scots to attack tomorrow afternoon against St. Bonaventure at the OAC track. Bob Nye's team has a successful southern trip to Tennessee and Florida where they lost two tough dual matches and finished 14th in the prestigious Miami University Invitational. Back in Ohio, the golfers won two last Saturday over Marietta and Bethany Colleges.

Captains of the '71 squad is senior Tom Wilcox who finished third in the OAC this year. Wilcox is off to a great start, hitting 80 only once and sporting a 76 average. "Tyke" finished 35th at Miami in the field of close to 200 of the nation's top collegiate golfers.

Number two man junior Jim Hodges, is regaining the form that gave him his place in the OAC last year. Three "super-scores" are back in the persons of Paul Abbey, Cary Whelahan and Scott Baird to fill the three four, and five spots.

Senior Capt. Cason is Nye's sixth man.

Wooster lost to the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga, 364-403, and Jacksonville University, 144. Two different scoring methods were used. At Miami, the Scots placed 14th of 29 schools from all over the country beating some Florida universities. Last week's double-brow match at Marietta saw the first shutout since 1962 occur when Wooster blanked Bethany, 206, and defeated Marietta, 135-64. Today the linkmen are at Oberlin against Kenyon, B-W and the Yeomen.

TRACK

Wooster's track schedule really turned under way today at the Ohio University Relays in Athens, but some of the cinder stars have been on the move in the last few weeks.

Over spring break, All-American hurdler Rick Sollmann and long jumper John Helm went with Coach Bob Lafferty to the Florida Relays in Gainesville in a meet that featured 2,700 participants.

The Buckeye Tree

Over spring break it was announced that Wooster's head coach, Jim Dinger had been selected to the third team All-American team by UPI. This was the first time a UPI All-American team was named in the College Division by UPI. This award was given to the OAC to the Coaches' most valuable player, were fitting tributes to Wooster's all-time top tiger and returning the Scots' best roundball season ever. It was also the third time in one year that a Wooster athlete has been honored, the first time in the school's history that a Wampus track and Steve Corvelletti in soccer.
