Wagners Give $750,000

Early in the 1956’s Dr. and Mrs. Cary H. Wagner, alumni of the College, decided, as quoted in the newspapers at the time of the dedication of Wagner Hall, "to invest their pension fund in the institutional purposes of the College." Their original pledge toward purchase of the land set at $350,000; they then continued to add to this sum, so that the total cost of the building was met by their commitments, well over $500,000. They also gave significant amounts in kind to the library, the Music Department, and to the Wooster Institute.

In addition the Wagners have supplied the paving in Kittredge Hall, Lowry Center, and the McGaw Chapel, as well as having paid for the five private dining rooms in Lowry Center. They are now in the process of setting up a fund with the College, to which they will add money as it becomes available, until the principal amounts to between $150,000 and $200,000. Barring accidents or serious illness they expect this to be accomplished by 1976 or 1977. The income from this fund, as well be used by the College for the support of the Fine Arts, in the purchase of books and other reader aids, the income being credited to the Annual Wooster Fund.

When this fund has been completed, the Wagners plan to give a large number of dollars, more than any other living alumni couple. The Wagners prefer to live very simply, and, as they pledged almost 20 years ago, this represents the aggregate of their resources, the remainder of the couple during their lifetime.

In commenting on the Wagners’ gift, College president J. Gerber Drushal stated, "The College community adds again to its expression of gratitude to Cary and Elizabeth Wagner for their loyalty and complete devotion to Wooster. We hope we may be worthy of such friends, and continue to prove ourselves worthy of their support and tomorrow the kinds of opportunities for which they are expressing their gratitude by this further gift.”

Zappa Sells Out

dave Thomas

Frank Zappa has sold out. How could he release albums of the low, almost normal, quality of, first, "Chunga's Revenge" and then, "Fillmore East—June 1971"?

I suppose, "Fillmore..." is good. It's funny. The instruments are enjoyable. But on the whole, the album is just not worthy of Frank Zappa, the master musician-technician who with his right-hand man, "Mighty Moe," "Lumpy Gravy," and "Absolutely Free," among others.

"Fillmore..." is in short, a disappointment. It displays just flashes of the brilliance and cleverness, little of his musical talent.

Most of the lp is a Zappa version of a rock opera about groupies. It's funny, damn funny and it's obscene, damn obscene (for instance, "seems H.A."). And that's all you can really say.

In fact, you get the uneasy feeling Zappa has become what Lenny Bruce always detested—the comic who resorts to toilet jokes and cheap technique to get laughs and applause. Compounding that feeling is in the absence of the complex music which always complemented Zappa's sharp vocal humor on earlier albums.

"Fillmore..." does include three instruments—all remakes of Zappa studio classics, "Little House I Used To Live In," "Willie The Pimp," and "Peace Of Ex." The songs showcase Zappa's skill on the guitar but only occasionally achieve the depth of the originals.

This lack of depth might be attributed to the necessities of a live performance, but it seems Zappa himself is more at fault. When he disbanded the original Mothers two years ago and then reorganized the group with new personnel, he structured the new Mothers to be principally a vocal group in contrast to the original instrumentally-oriented Mothers. In fact, two of the new Mothers (former Turtes) didn't even play instruments.

Undoubtedly, this change has resulted in increased popularity with its increased simplicity, but it seems to have brought a marked decline in Zappa's quality. Once Zappa used every member and instrument in his band to achieve a good musical effect, even in live performances. On "Fillmore..." Zappa uses on the vu meter of his sound valve, Valenam and Howard Katyland. It's easier and the audience probably enjoys it more because it's so much simpler.

"Fillmore..." also features the usual pseudo-groover shlop song that's become Zappa's public trademark. In this case it's called "One More Thing." Unfortunately, this is somewhat thin to wear thin after awhile... and it's been quite awhile since "Rubin and the Jets."

Frank Zappa once led the "rock underground" with his humor and music. The Activity. (His "Uned Meat" and "Hot Rats" are masterpieces.) At one time he was the only alternative to the simplistic crap that's being broadcast on AM radio and the rock industry. But now that he's above-ground, he seems to have sold out to those same simplistic men. He's downgraded his product so much that AM radio can actually play it. While it's not yet worse, he seems to have downgraded it consciously.

The question is, why? Why the sellout? Is he "only in it for the money?" or is he trying to prove his long-held belief that "kids today wouldn't know good music if it came up and hit them."

After all, anyone who could be satisfied with the quality of "Fillmore..." must NOT know good music.

Race Relations

The concerns that this letter reflects, and the measures it includes are the Council's immediate effort to take seriously its own responsibility in the area of race relations. The Council will continue to address itself to these problems as the year proceeds. But the Council is only one campus organization and its measures are not cure-alls. However, whether or not this college community will move beyond racial tensions to appropriate reconciliation depends upon every student, faculty member, administrator, and employee—White and Black. Each of us must find the will to act purposefully, courageously, and with a new sensitivity.

QUESTION: Is there any harm in digesting the shells of salted peanuts or salted sunflower seeds? I've been eating them for quite some time and I can't seem to stop. It seems I've been eating them for some time and I can't seem to stop.

ANSWER: There probably is no harm in eating the shrimp you mentioned. If you look closely you may discover that you are not actually digesting the shrimp but rather the outer shell. This is because the shrimp producers to break down cellulose and other fibrous materials such as shells and hams. Man is not endowed in this way.

Non-digestible materials are important in increasing the bulk of our diet and are important to prevent constipation. Some people worry that things such as shells and small pits can get stuck in the large intestine and cause inflammations. People have also thought that shells may act as a mechanical irritant and cause diarrhea. My consultant on intestines and their contents tells me that there is evidence disproving both these concerns.

QUESTION: Recently there have been many advertisements for "water beds." Are they good for the back? Over a long period of time could they be harmful to posture? Are they better than a firm mattress?

ANSWER: Water beds are mattress-covered bags made of a heavy weight flexible plastic and are filled with about 200 gallons of water. Because the water can shift around within its container, a comfortable sensation of lying on a supporting surface that conforms completely to any small movement is created. People who purchase them claim that they help induce restful sleep. Advertisements play up the relaxing, soothing, inducement and relaxing the water bed is. They also hint that there are some sexual benefits to be had from their use.

Whether the water bed enhances sensuality would be difficult to evaluate. A friend indicates that a new dimension is added to intercourse since the bed is so responsive, but he adds that if one is in a hurry, it is easy to lose your balance.

The recent medical literature does not contain any information about harmful or beneficial effects when the waterbed is used for back trouble or posture. My orthopedic consultant advises that sleeping on your abdomen in any kind of bed would aggravate back trouble. For low back pain, sleeping on your side on a firm mattress or placing the mattress on the floor is recommended. If you must sleep on your back, pillows should be inserted under the knees to flatten out the hollow of the back.

A word of caution, a gallon of water weighs eight pounds. Some waterbeds weigh nearly a ton. Not all second floor bedrooms in old dwellings can support such a weight.

Drushals Enjoy New Home In Kenarden

Editor's Note: This article was originally printed in the "Wooster Voice", Friday, Sept. 27, 1946—25 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Drushal happen to be the envy of many married sets for they are happily settled in their new home in Kenarden, where Mr. Drushal is head resident. The Drushal children, Michael and Jane, find dorm life interesting, and exciting, and are always seeking new adventures to tell the folks about.

The golf course in the day time is one of the favorite haunts of Mr. Drushal. He didn't say anything about par, but he did say he was having trouble with the greens. It seems as though his scores vary as do the fees he has been charged: the best score was a 800,000 Child Farm Laborers In U.S.

Child labor in the U.S.? "Of course not," responds the average citizen. "At least, very little." Yet the fact is there are nearly a million — at least 800,000—child farm laborers in the country, who make up one-quarter of the nation's paid farm labor force. Of these, 300,000 migrate from state to state with their parents, leaving home communities before school is out in the spring and not returning until the fall term is well underway. Thus they are doomed to remain within that part of our population which is undereducated and sordidly impoverished.

(result of playing for nothing. With his children as his subjects he also indulges in photography as a hobby.)

Mr. Drushal is an advocate of student self-government, and he feels that it is effective at Wooster. As head resident of Kenarden he has not assumed the role of a policeman; his function is that of a counselor for the men. As to his teaching duties, Mr. Drushal is expecting great things from the Wooster debaters. Competition is expected to be very keen, especially from his former students at Capital.

Mr. Drushal takes an active interest in several organizations whose concern is speech and its improvement. He is Vice-President of the Ohio Association of Speech and Therapy and Secretary of the Ohio Association of College Teachers of Speech.
Borley Subs For Bean

Optimistic About Season

Bob Borley's brief stint in the army seems to have ingrained some bad habits in the new cross-country coach.

All indications point to the fact that Borley, subbing for head coach Jim Bean now on leave, has little desire to stop. A native of Zanesville, Borleycoupled the last two years on the Wooster cross-country team at Wooster and one in track before taking his army "vacation." He has two quarters left on the Hill.

"We're going to make a run at Mount," Borley predicts optimistically about last year's OAC champs. Most rookie coaches tend to feel the same way.

But Borley has good reason. The largest contingent of cross country runners ever at Wooster, 20, makes this season a bit more than hopeful. Freshmen may be the key along with several top returners trying their hand at the grueling fall sport.

The baroness open next Saturday at Ohio Wesleyan for the Ohio Conference relay's. The Scots' will be on to prove that last year's fourth place finish in the Ohio Conference championships was no fluke.

Cerretani spearheaded the four-man diamond which limited opponents to less than one goal per game in 1970. But goalie John Haas, fullback Steve Galick and Gervia are gone, Galick serving as assistant coach this year.

Tri-captain Steve Gagen is the most experienced of the returnees at a wing fullback. Sophomore Craig Levinsky was outstanding at center fullback behind Cerretani last year and will move up to take the important center halfback slot.

The rest of the starters on defense are in doubt. Lettermen John Hels and sophomore Greg Kriese are possible first-stringers at the other fullback and senior. It's now Hughes and freshman Howard molds battling for the goalie job. Keveczinsky's old spot is being fought over by a pair of freshmen, Donald McCrea and John Hallo-

New Coaches Head Gridders

Under new leadership, but an old face, the 1971 version of the Wooster Fighting Scot football team opened pre-season drills on August 28.

The new leader is Pat O'Brien, formerly the offensive line coach for the Scots.

Pat O'Brien
New Head Coach

Upon the selection last March of Jack Lengyel to assume the head coaching duties at Marshall University, O'Brien was the immediate choice to take the reins of the Scots. An outstanding player at Drake University, O'Brien served as an assistant coach at his alma mater, later at Xavier University, and Mansfield Sr. High School, before arriving on the Hill five years ago.

Asked about his goals as head coach, O'Brien commented, "I believe my real concern is to continue our overall effort to strengthen the Wooster football program. Jack (Lengyel) started this effort five years ago with myself, Coach Laferty, and Coach Welsh. "With their decisions to remain on the Scot staff," continued the new Scot mentor, "Coaches Laferty and Welsh have already committed themselves to improving our program."

Filling in the vacancy left on the P.E. staff is a '57 Wooster graduate, Tracy Hetrick. Following graduation, he spent two years as a graduate assistant in the Mansfield City school system before serving as an assistant at Earlham College for one year. Last year he earned his Master's degree at Miami (Ohio) and was the assistant freshman coach.

Coach O'Brien praised Hetrick as a good worker and communicator to the players. "Tracy works hard and looks for improvement. It's a real pleasure to have him back in our Wooster system."

Hetrick played on the line for the Scots five years ago, O'Brien's first season here.

the goal that gave St. Louis the NCAA title over UCLA, is also back.

All-American junior Joe Hamm heads the backfield crew and two starters are back on defense. Like the Scots, the Bills are at yet unclear about their goal line situation.

So tomorrow's soccer opener isn't just an ordinary contest. Wooster's upcoming season isn't either with such opponents as Michigan State, Bowling Green, Ohio State and Midland Regional nemesis Denison on their way.

But Nye has a way of putting it all together and the 1971 season should be no exception.
