Westminster Discusses Blueprints For New Split-Level Church House

To 200 Overseas

To New Yorkers, the announcement of a proposed split-level church house the size of a high school, is one of the most important developments in the history of religious education. For many years, this type of building has been in demand, but it has been difficult to find a suitable location. The new building will be constructed on a 25-acre site in the current location of the old church house, and will include a new atrium, classrooms, and a gymnasium.

The building will be designed by the architectural firm of Cahn & Associates, and will be constructed in phases. The first phase will include the atrium and gymnasium, while the second phase will include the classrooms. The building will be completed in 2023, and will be used by the children of the church and the community.

The funding for the project will be provided by a combination of local and national philanthropy, as well as a large grant from the federal government. The total cost of the project is estimated to be $50 million, and will be funded in phases.

The project will be led by the Rev. John Brown, who has been appointed as the new pastor of the church. Mr. Brown has a long history of service in the community, and is well respected for his leadership and vision.

The project is expected to create 500 jobs during construction, and will provide a much-needed boost to the local economy. The building will also serve as a hub for community activities, and will be open to the public for events and meetings.

The project is expected to be completed in 2023, and will be a significant addition to the community. The church and the community are excited about the new building, and are looking forward to the future.

Enlightened Elections

A week ago Tuesday the voters of this nation went to the polls to elect municipality, county and state officers. Though the results of such a vote can clearly point to a national trend, there was one factor which seemed to dominate the entire scene. In almost every case, political boisterousness was defeated and good government prevailed.

Republican sweeps in Canton and Youngstown were long overdue. Upset of the political establishment in Cleveland and New York City, reform and unbossed candidates were re-elected. In New Jersey, imagination and hard work defeated bribery and a contemptuous regard for an enlightened citizenship.

Perhaps the New Jersey race for governor is the least unimportant and the most interesting of all. Five months ago Democrat Richard J. Hughes was a political unknown; today he is governor of a half and a million people. In order to become a governor he had to defeat James J. McCown, former Secretary of Labor. Mitchell had all the advantages of a name, national backing and a hungry party.

He faced an avalanche coming 16 to 18 days a month later. He spoke on state problems which ranged from industrial development, higher education and transportation to finances, civil rights and regulations.

On loan from Washington, Robert J. Borkhardt, the man who master-minded the Mayflower district, tried to smush homogenously state Democratic organization. This included on the student level "Hughes Grews" consisting of a sound youth who carried a a nation-wide voter-easing effort, "Operation Abaterent."

Mr. Mitchell, unfamiliar with the state problems, was counseled to ignore the public debate and throw the standard political bricklet of "boosim."

That Mr. Hughes won is a tribute to dedicated campaigning, in the absence of a state-wide patriotic public who was unwilling to be stampeded by the rumble of hollow oratory.

No More Student Rates

Most major airlines have announced that effective next week, the half-fare flight rate for people under 22 will be discontinued.

This program, designed primarily to generate an interest among young people in airline travel, essentially a pruning of the half-fare rate, has been set at the full price, half price, reservations could be made no earlier than three hours before scheduled departure.

The reasons presented were as follows: (1) the program caused too many administrative headaches, (2) the response to the program was not enough to merit its continuance, and (3) people cheated on the program by having children buy tickets for their fathers, etc.

We regret the decision of the airlines and express the wish that another try could be made.

Taking the objections in order, it would seem that a clarification of the program to ticket-sellers would aid immediate acceptance. Certainly, if the fares were below only slightly above train fares and bus fares, the charge would be obvious.

Rather, this lack of interest seems the result of poor publicity by the airlines, the newspaper and radio television publicity was almost nonexistent, almost as if the airlines were being forced into accepting a program which they didn't really favor.

Finally, the airlines must recognize that someone will cheat the program. However, if authorized ticket-takers cannot tell that 30 year old man from a man under 22, then it will be handled.

We believe that the airlines have made a mistake. Present rates are prohibitive for people under 22 with rare exceptions. Let the airlines take a lesson from their competitors, the railroads.

"This Is Not Like Home"

There are students on campus who do not take the United States for granted. The foreign students at Wooster are finding some new aspects to the stock question, "What do you think of the United States?"

Suzanna Castro from Baron Anchorena, Argentina, of Republican Berlin, Germany, the subject of American character, both agreed and found more friendly and helpful than Europeans and South Americans.

Suzanna said that Americans confuse Brazil and Argentina. As a result, she added that Americans air mail letters to Buenos Aires, when she was told to buy the London Times. She was the example of a girl buying up football programs.

The two girls were asked how they feel about the other students. Suzanna said that people here were so loud. They never understood the example of the two girls.

Because the VOICE staff was interested in the foreign students' vacation too, there will be no articles on the news. We apologize for the inconvenience.

in the Editor

In the past we have learned from the day the city of the people of the Indian community to which they belong rather than the nation as a whole.

Most conflicts arise when the minority group feels that its political or economic rights are being taken away. Mutual fear and distrust exist and occasionally surface in open conflict.

Commentators of the two major problems under which have been the present time are communication and the unification of the Communist countries of the United States. The Indian Communists are the chief ramification of the security policies, and they feel that they belong rather than the nation as a whole.

Meaningless Life

The Indian life is one that is devoid of educated unemployment. There is no incentive to learn the community, and they lead a generally meaningless existence. The atmosphere the world is a constant struggle with conformity and threat of an atmosphere of the whole community.

Five seniors will play their last football game in Scot uniforms tomorrow as they seek to recapture the Muskingum title they started.

The kick was blocked, but Muskingum held a 6-0 lead which they almost doubled shortly after midfield play.

Williams worked the field holding his face. His injury seemed to symbolize a day of frustration. The key to the defense was gone and Muskingum marched methodically toward the goal line. It was almost tragic to watch Reggie go for the win, and then to watch John Sigwart and finally to team doctor Joel Pratt, obviously pleading to back in; in each case, he received a negative response.

Despite a terrible goal line effort, the Muskies scored and won 6-0.

Burnham will have to wait another year to break the jinx. But Reggie Williams is a junior. He and all but five of his teammates will be back next year and so will Muskingum. Someday.
