Red Cross Plans on

The Red Cross is also working with the local hospitals to ensure that the blood is processed and distributed as quickly as possible.

Co-eds Sign to Donate Blood in Red Cross Campaign

The efforts of these individuals have been instrumental in maintaining the blood supply during this critical time. We are grateful for their dedication and selflessness.

Programs like these are crucial in ensuring that the community remains healthy and vibrant. We encourage everyone to consider donating blood and contributing to the Red Cross's mission.

Thank you to all those who have signed up and to those who will join us in the future. Together, we can make a difference and help save lives.
What's Wrong?
The recent report of the Victory Bond campaign indicates that the project has fallen $40 million below the Senate estimate. The Senate announced that the Red Cross drive had already reached the $47 million mark. The campaign has added $20 million in contributions of $500 or more. In November 1941 the Big Three had nearly 80% of the vote. This is a dramatic change. There is something wrong. Previous drives on the same issue have broken through the 50% mark. We might blame the situation on the war, or on our personal invalidity on the part of the student. But we feel that there is something more. The woe of either of these. Usually enough students support our drive, or are at least in the pale of the campaign. The whole section of the campus is the real problem.

Perhaps the fault lies with those who create the plans for the Bond campaign. We are a great responsibility, and that they receive no consequences for their actions. But if they would plan things a little more carefully and really make an attempt to consult all the rat-dents we believe that they might meet with a greater reward. Just to cite a few instances: Several gift's of campus commons were suddenly pulled out of the circulating the Red Cross campaign. The Big Three did not maintain one finished floor throughout the drive but instead left hot, and contrary to announcements, burns, fore and after, were not all in action. The leaders of the bond are all adults and should realize that they canWHAT'S
