3-3-1972

The Wooster Voice (Wooster, OH), 1972-03-03

Wooster Voice Editors

Follow this and additional works at: https://openworks.wooster.edu/voice1971-1980

Recommended Citation
https://openworks.wooster.edu/voice1971-1980/34

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the "The Voice" Student Newspaper Collection at Open Works, a service of The College of Wooster Libraries. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Voice: 1971-1980 by an authorized administrator of Open Works. For more information, please contact openworks@wooster.edu.
Black Panther party member and eye-witness to the murder of Fred Hampton, Satchel, said. "We have not changed our party's philosophy. "We believe in the principle of self-defense." Satchel's speech followed "The Murder of Fred Hampton," spoken by Eldridge Cleaver. It led to a narrative about the death of the former party chairman at the hands of Chicago police, to which Satchel was an eye-witness.

Satchel traced the evolution of the party from its founding in October 1966 by Huey Newton. The Panthers' original plan included their controversial self-arming. "We were going to arm ourselves," said Satchel, "since we had the right under the United States Constitution to arm ourselves and protect ourselves." He stated that the Panthers were "always in a defensive position," not out to kill people, but per se, to protect themselves.

The split in ideology between Eldridge Cleaver and Huey Newton after Newton's release from prison, according to Satchel, was a "defection" on Cleaver's part, rather than a party split. Cleaver and his followers advocated violent revolution and opposed modified Pan-Africanism. During the early years of the party, Newton described himself as a "radical Black nationalist," Satchel said. The term "nationalist" was understood as a Black nationalist, as Satchel asserted, has territorial integrity, safety, and cultural determination. The Black people have none of these. Therefore the term "revolutionary internationalist" was used.

Since Cleaver's defection, "we've moved from one level to almost a new level," he said. "We had to get involved in the community. We tried a man's tactics, rather than goals, turned people off, and the focus has been turned to the community. Now, we have decided to go mostly geared around food, clothing, and shelter," as well as serving "educational" purposes.

Campus Fashions Revised, Publications Committee Constitution

Council Fashions Revised, Publications Committee Constitution

Campus Council adopted a revised version of the Publications Committee, subject to the approval of the faculty, which remains effective until March 1, 1973. The Publications Committee will be composed of a "faculty chairman appointed by the Committee on Committees," three additional faculty members appointed by the same body and a journalist to be appointed by Curmenco Council. Student representation will consist of two students appointed by the Student Government Association (SGA), one selected by the Student Conduct Board (LCB) and two appointed by Council.

The Committee is to meet once a month. "It shall serve in the capacity of a body of directors to whom the editors of these publications are accountable for the quality of their publications,"

An advisory board of the Voice was created "to promote high journalistic standards." The Publications Committee Chairman, editor of the professional journalist and students and a faculty member from the student body.

This board is "to meet at least once a week to review the issues according to the Guidelines." These guidelines include: "an awareness of legal responsibility in preparing, arranging, printing, publishing, distributing, and selling educational publications," and "to the Committee."

Doris Coster suggested that there be no individual faculty advisors, but rather three faculty members-at-large.

Stanley Penrose asked, "What if the high publications standards are not met?"

Council members replied that the Publications Committee could, although it was unlikely to be used if they were needed, would be to remove the editor. Copies of the modifications are scheduled for the second half of April, quarter, Susan Baker said.

Council was asked to alter a new campus organization, the Wooster branch of the Students International Mediation Society (SIMS). Council suggested to Arnold that he rewrite sections of the constitution, making the national director's role purely advisory.

Editor's Note: Much of this information was gathered from a long interview with Ron Hine.

Ron Hine, a 1968 graduate of Wooster, was once charged with assault and battery on a police officer and throwing bottles through windows during four days of noting in Holmes County, Ohio last September.

The Busted Defense Fund fler claims that Hine's arrest was an "obvious case of police harassment." Hine, the fler's reads, is considered by local authorities to be an 'agitator' and not necessarily for co-operation with the police. "I have problems with that reasoning," Simmons said.

The SGA President also feels that it would be good to eliminate the need for "free" restrictions on visitation. "It creates a false atmosphere," he said. Many students do not confront their roommates, he charges, when conflicts arise from having visitors in the room too often or too late. The first-quarter restrictions postpone any confrontation and make them more difficult later. These restrictions come from conversations with members of the Residents' Staff.

The poll was conducted by SGA for several reasons. Recommendations will be made by Council's Social Code Sub-committee to the entire Council on page seven.

---

Phred Baker

Snarf right up.

PUBLISHED BY THE STUDENTS OF THE COLLEGE OF WOOSTER

Volume LXXVIII

Wooster, Ohio, Friday, March 3, 1972

Number 18

---

Black Panther party speaks

Speaking in McGaw Chapel Thursday February 24, Black Panther party member Doc Satchel said of the alleged new Panther philosophy, "We have not changed our party's philosophy. "We believe in the principle of self-defense." Satchel's speech followed "The Murder of Fred Hampton," spoken by Eldridge Cleaver. It led to a narrative about the death of the former party chairman at the hands of Chicago police, to which Satchel was an eye-witness.

Satchel traced the evolution of the party from its founding in October 1966 by Huey Newton. The Panthers' original plan included their controversial self-arming. "We were going to arm ourselves," said Satchel, "since we had the right under the United States Constitution to arm ourselves and protect ourselves." He stated that the Panthers were "always in a defensive position," not out to kill people, but per se, to protect themselves.

The split in ideology between Eldridge Cleaver and Huey Newton after Newton's release from prison, according to Satchel, was a "defection" on Cleaver's part, rather than a party split. Cleaver and his followers advocated violent revolution and opposed modified Pan-Africanism. During the early years of the party, Newton described himself as a "radical Black nationalist," Satchel said. The term "nationalist" was understood as a Black nationalist, as Satchel asserted, has territorial integrity, safety, and cultural determination. The Black people have none of these. Therefore the term "revolutionary internationalist" was used.

Since Cleaver's defection, "we've moved from one level to almost a new level," he said. "We had to get involved in the community. We tried a man's tactics, rather than goals, turned people off, and the focus has been turned to the community. Now, we have decided to go mostly geared around food, clothing, and shelter," as well as serving "educational" purposes.

---

Council Fashions Revised, Publications Committee Constitution

Council Fashions Revised, Publications Committee Constitution

Campus Council adopted a revised version of the Publications Committee, subject to the approval of the faculty, which remains effective until March 1, 1973. The Publications Committee will be composed of a "faculty chairman appointed by the Committee on Committees," three additional faculty members appointed by the same body and a journalist to be appointed by Curmenco Council. Student representation will consist of two students appointed by the Student Government Association (SGA), one selected by the Student Conduct Board (LCB) and two appointed by Council.

The Committee is to meet once a month. "It shall serve in the capacity of a body of directors to whom the editors of these publications are accountable for the quality of their publications,"

An advisory board of the Voice was created "to promote high journalistic standards." The Publications Committee Chairman, editor of the professional journalist and students and a faculty member from the student body.

This board is "to meet at least once a week to review the issues according to the Guidelines." These guidelines include: "an awareness of legal responsibility in preparing, arranging, printing, publishing, distributing, and selling educational publications," and "to the Committee."

Doris Coster suggested that there be no individual faculty advisors, but rather three faculty members-at-large.

Stanley Penrose asked, "What if the high publications standards are not met?"

Council members replied that the Publications Committee could, although it was unlikely to be used if they were needed, would be to remove the editor. Copies of the modifications are scheduled for the second half of April, quarter, Susan Baker said.

Council was asked to alter a new campus organization, the Wooster branch of the Students International Mediation Society (SIMS). Council suggested to Arnold that he rewrite sections of the constitution, making the national director's role purely advisory.

---

Editor's Note: Much of this information was gathered from a long interview with Ron Hine.

Ron Hine, a 1968 graduate of Wooster, was once charged with assault and battery on a police officer and throwing bottles through windows during four days of noting in Holmes County, Ohio last September.

The Busted Defense Fund fler claims that Hine's arrest was an "obvious case of police harassment." Hine, the fler's reads, is considered by local authorities to be an 'agitator' and not necessarily for co-operation with the police. "I have problems with that reasoning," Simmons said.

The SGA President also feels that it would be good to eliminate the need for "free" restrictions on visitation. "It creates a false atmosphere," he said. Many students do not confront their roommates, he charges, when conflicts arise from having visitors in the room too often or too late. The first-quarter restrictions postpone any confrontation and make them more difficult later. These restrictions come from conversations with members of the Residents' Staff.

The poll was conducted by SGA for several reasons. Recommendations will be made by Council's Social Code Sub-committee to the entire Council on page seven.
the winner gets his turn to screw.

THE EDITOR HOPES SOME Enlightenment
Feb. 23, 1972

To the Editor,

On Feb. 23, I was ARRESTED! for a red light violation at 3 in the morning just outside Medina by Officer "X" of the Ohio State Police. I'd like to make a few comments about the case as well as the arrest.

First of all, the traffic light setup at the intersection on 71, where the incident took place was very ambiguous. I had waited for about five minutes for the light to change to amber before I turned left onto the ramp leading to 71. Then I assumed that the light was stuck on red, so I proceeded through the intersection onto the ramp. There were absolutely no cars in sight at the time. Out of nowhere popped Officer "X" under the guise of a protector of the peace and pulled me over to the side of the road. He told me that I had run a red light. I told him about the ambiguity of the traffic light and mentioned something about the time of day (no traffic, etc.). He said I had to go with him into Medina anyway and that I was under arrest. He frightened me to make sure I wasn't some hardened criminal packing a gun. I hopped into his car which was all decked out with all sorts of neat cop stuff for a most enjoyable ride into Medina to the police department. Officer "X" was a great conversation maker). During the ride into Medina, I got to wondering if this state cop (not a local cop by the way) didn't have anything better to do than run around chasing minor traffic violators.

Upon arriving at the Medina police dept., I was told that I could admit my guilt and pay a $25 fine or spend the night in jail and stand trial the next morning. Well, the jail was packed with a bunch of drunks and dopeheads and I didn't feel like spending the night there. I didn't have the $25, so I called a friend up out of bed at 4 a.m. to come from Wooster to bail me out. While he was on his way, Officer "X" took me free from the police dept. to the Sheriff's office to wait in jail for my friend to come.

The wait at the Sheriff's office was most interesting. Deputy Sheriff "Y" who was sitting there doing his thing with all his neat cop equipment. While I was there, a fellow came in to hobo a bob-a while with Deputy "Y". Their conversation centered around all the Great Chases in the past couple of weeks to catch breakers of the law who were supposedly menaces to society (light runners, car- few violators, etc. After all, what else is there to talk about in Medina?). Their attention then turned to the task at hand - duty. The Medina cop said that he hadn't shot at anybody in 6 whole months (Thank God). Deputy "Y" piped up and said, "You think that's bad; I haven't shot nine for eight months!" (too bad)

I really wonder what sort of people this society is raising to be "law enforcers". Perhaps they are a special breed all their own. These two men gave the impression that they actually got pleasure out of shooting a gun at another person - another human being! They really dig on guns and power. This could be some basic insecurity they have. I get the impression that most policemen are so caught up in the role of playing cop that they cannot step back to get a good perspective on the real purpose of their job, and even that is somewhat questionable. It would seem that the purpose is not to waste the taxpayer's money processing the arrest of a minor traffic violator. (This one had long hair. We all know why he had long hair. He was given a citation.) It is not until you've experienced something like this that you realize, contrary to the claims of your kindergarten teacher, a cop is not your friend. I guess I don't have anything against Officers "X" and Deputy "Y" as individuals; they're just a product of their sick society. All I have to say is God have pity on their souls "for they know not what they do".

Yours, with enlightenment,
Rick McCleary, COW student

---

OPEN BSA LETTER

2/24/72

We, the Black students of the College of Wooster, have always been aware of a fog of insincerity over many of Galpin's words to Black students when compared to Galpin's actions. We have always felt this fog lowering and rising at intervals. Now, through the actions of February 22, 1972 and the resulting charges being filed against Jerry Waters, we can feel nothing but that he is indeed a victim of racism. This racism manifests itself through charges brought against him, manifests itself through charges which have not been brought against the white persons inciting this and other skimmishes witnessed by the Wooster community, indicating racial hos- tilities and pressures.

But, in this case where the alleged per-support needed for uncf

dear friends:

i am writing to visit uncf universities and colleges in the south and send you a report on what's happening on our campuses and to our students. this year i can report to you that what is happening is probably the most important and hopeful development in our nation today!

the forty universities and colleges in our fund are providing increasingly effective ways for aspiring blacks throughout the u.s. and especially in the south to achieve advanced education of high quality -- as a needed "gentle giant" toward full participation in the profession, political and business life of our country.

last year our colleges conferred 6,547 undergraduate and 860 graduate and professional degrees. although our colleges are all integrated, and have always been, the present process of accelerating admissions opportunities to the black students of our campuses is not without problems.

what do our graduates do with those degrees? to date, they have become 85 percent of the nation's black physicians, 75 percent of its national nurses, 50 percent of all black officials elected to public office in the u.s. and that's only a part of the story.

humanities of thousands of our graduates have, in recent years, been working to change the course of american history by their rational, self-disciplined and determined struggle for social justice through non-violent protest.

today, thousands of other young black americans need your help in getting the quality of education they need to help build a more creative, dynamic america and a viable world society. and it's up to you to give our fund will go directly to help building black students achieve a strong college education.

please reach out a generous hand to them! it's the easiest way i know toward a better world!

yourself faithfully and hopefully,
martha l. looke pate, ph.d.
(mrs. maurice pate)

thans from forum

we would like to thank all the faculty and administrators who have contributed money to the black forum's may week "the calling of student whose political rights, human rights, civil rights have been violated in the past and whose rights will continue to be violated because he refuses to conform to the college of wooster administrator's definition of how a student should function.

the black students association

college of wooster
Sections Favored in Council Poll

By G. W. Fiordalis

Recommendations resulting from the section system survey will probably be made to the Deans' Office by Campus Council, Jack Simmons, Student Government Association (SGA) president, said. The results of this poll, taken during lunch on Feb. 4, have not been completely tallied, therefore no definite results can be given.

The poll shows so far, Simmons commented, that the freshmen were "not necessarily down on" the section system, but as individuals would not want to live in them. The section members show a positive attitude toward their living units. Non-members, he added, seem to feel that sections are not necessarily bad, but that they prefer other living arrangements.

Simmons emphasized that these results are tentative and will be published as soon as all the data is recorded. Although many talk goes on between students, Simmons said, "nothing (is ever) proposed by student groups through Campus Council." Karen McCleary, Paul Moses and Susan Baker are the student members-at-large of Council. To these people must be shown more clear-cut student support in order to change the section system, suggests Simmons.

Campus Council requested a poll of students and faculty on the section system. SGA took on the task because, "it is the most immediate organization," said Simmons. All recommendations will be made by Campus Council. Some students misinterpreted the purpose of the poll in that they thought, "it was the first step in abolishing sections," Simmons said that no recommendations have to be made to the Board of Trustees. Campus Council, in its power, can theoretically abolish the sections since "they approved their chapters." The President reviews all Council decisions and such a drastic step would not be taken without consulting all parts of the campus community.

Recommendations will probably be made to the Deans' Office. "The inputs of all constituencies" will be sought, Simmons continued. The poll was formulated by myself and Jim Hyman," he said, "with some input from the Inter-Section Council (ISC).

Ordinarily a poll like this would have to be approved by the SGA Cabinet. But because of time I did not have a written copy to submit, Simmons explained, SGA hoped to conduct the poll before pledging begins. He only recapped the poll's contents to the Cabinet. "No one except the Deans had seen the poll before it was distributed."

The poll was directed to the students and faculty to determine their opinions on how effective the sections were. The poll was broken down into Freshmen, male and female, current section members, former members, upperclass men and women, and faculty.

The poll wanted to show how the students and faculty felt about section life, its social impact, if it was constructive in the students' efforts, how did the student body were found to be the section system on campus. "The world urgently needs good thinkers today, daring thinkers. Men and women who can solve problems. But to be sure the thinking is right, not wrong - to be sure that it will reach through to ultimate solutions - it's source must be sought at a deeper level than that of the human brain. Such thinking, inspired thinking, must have a spiritual base."

Thus stated Joseph G. Heard, C.S.B., a teacher of Christian Science, in preface to his lectures entitled "Mind and Man," presented last week under the auspices of the Christian Science Organization of the College of Wooster.

Mr. Heard was educated at the University of Miami and Harvard University. He practiced law in Florida and was a Navy Chaplain during the Korean War. He gave up his law career to enter the healing ministry of Christian Science.

MORE ON

Busted Graduate

continued from page one peacefully walking down First Street observing the confrontations between the police and the police. A squad car roared up and the patrolman who recognized me told me to get in the car. I complied, offering no resistance."

He is soliciting funds for the Hoboken Defense Fund. The expected costs for his and a co-defendant's lawyer's fees are $5,000. He asks that contributions be sent to the Hoboken Defense Fund, Inc., c/o Self-Help, P.O. Box M-1901, Hoboken, New Jersey 07030.

An economics major at Wooster, Hine was also a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. He had been a member of the national association for the Advancement of Colored People in his junior year and belonged to the Campus Christian Association for four years. He was vice-president of this group during his junior year. Hine, in addition, was co-chairman of the Lincoln Scholarship Committee from 1966-67.

STUDENT OPINION

Participants Needed For Convention

One More Time Johnny L... by Terri Reznor

Once again it's a presidential election year which means it's also staging time for nominating conventions. Four years ago this April, 600 students met at a mock Republican Presidential Nominating Convention in Severance Gym and proceeded to endorse John Lindsay - Edmund Brooke ticket. The Republican National Convention chose to ignore the recommendation and the rest is history. This, being another election year, poses an interesting opportunity for Wooster students; once again they will meet at a mock convention in late April; however, this year the gym will be decorated with the likeness of the various Democratic candidates, and once again they may endorse John Lindsay - Edmund Brooke ticket. The boring trivia that must take care of for any group in already being eliminated by the mock Executive Committee; and soon, the remainder of the student body will be given the opportunity to participate in the epitome of political education on the Wooster campus. There are three main areas through which one may release any political frustrations: through participation as a state delegate, which requires no more than pressure at the convention; through the office of a state chairman, entailing those duties a state chairman is expected to perform; and through the overt and cohesive actions of a campaign manager. All of which take only a minimal amount of time, but adds up to a substantial political educational experience. One of which can only prove invaluable when with this summers political scene.
What's the News

by Chuck

In regard to Nate's editorial of two weeks ago, "I was asked the other day, 'Why isn't the VOICE bustling?' and my reply was, in short 'because the campus isn't bustling.'"

"...The solution is to be found in casting off this dishonest pessimism that smothers us in its shadows, and developing, for ourselves, a community feeling of spontaneous activity. The urge to do, anything, is what we lack."

I disagree. Actually a lot is "happening" at Wooster - fine performing arts (see Pat's article), political "maneuvering" - the problem of "anonymity" is faced with concerns the varying forms news takes around here. First of all, there is no such thing as passivity/apathy: not making a decision is making a decision as any high school computer teacher will tell you. If people refuse to fill out SGA's Honor Code Questionnaires, it may just be that we are all sick and tired of giving our opinions, however "anonymous" and then never knowing whether our suggestions end up on 1 G.'s desk and/or one of those beige waste cans that litter the campus. Perhaps...

The fact is very few of us know the "causes" of the "effects" we witness day after day. There has been too much emphasis on what, instead of why. For this reason I'm all in favor of articles such as Stitch's "Sitter Service" of last weekend. Call it subjective, interpretive, or overtstatement, at least it gets beyond the "cautious" and poses some basic questions concerning its nature: "...why is it necessary to have such a service for freshmen women?" It is because Wooster attracts mentally stable and emotionally unstable students.

Even if one doesn't agree with the content - I suggest he take note of all these freshmen students frequently for any signs of early balding in between extra squirts of Ban and the obvious oblivious to (first/fact) time a thing on this over scheduled campus - and made us wiggle in our seats to each and every sentence of the music. You just had to "be there."

In conclusion I'll admit there are some experiences that are non-transferable. I agree with Nate when he says "What you are is what you get." What's the news in what you and I make it, but we are making it! Gospel choirs, party persons, and child-women are the something that's happening here.

It's up to the Voice staff to keep in touch. It would be sad indeed if Eirin was abandoned on the weekends in the tradition of Hiram and Mt. Union. Cause Sly is right:

Runnin' away
To get away
Ha! Ha! Ha!
You're wearin' out your shoes...

Another day
You're farther away
Ha! Ha! Ha!
A longer trip back home!

Look at you foolin' you!

New Theatre Planned

By Craig Haberle

The new auditorium that will be added to Wishart Hall is only in the planning stages, emphasizing Bruce Logan, chairman of the Speech Department.

The Department is only readying the plans for the theater. Financing is available, he explained.

When completed, the new theater will stand between Wishart and Scovel Halls. It will be a combination music, drama, and theater, seating 400 people. Also included will be a large, movable experimental theater, seating 80. The auditorium will follow the theater-in-the-round design.

No construction has begun. Stakes near Wishart are only for architectural borings and surveying purposes.

Last fall, President Drushal asked the Speech Department and the Board of Trustees to select an architect to draw-up plans which would remain within a $14,500,000 budget. Heine, Crider and Williamson was the selected firm. The Speech Department is currently in the process of saying it's needs so that the architects can incorporate them into design plans.

A theater and speech center had been designed in 1965, but only enough money was available for the speech center, Wishart Hall, which was completed in 1966. The theater originally intended for the center was to cost $1,500,000, but would now run an estimated $2,500,000.

ONE HOUR MARTINIZING

In A Hurry! 1 Hour Cleaning Until 4 p.m. Daily

Wooster One Hour Cleaner's
1855 Beulah-Collinsville Shopping Center
Next to Sears

Daily - 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.
Saturday - 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Phone: 262-6651

Wishart's "PEGGER"JEANS

Now Appearing in his

A-1 PEGGER JEANS

with bush pockets
patch back pockets.
Low, snug fit for guys and girls.

$10-$11

Ps. Way cool

"PEGGER"JEANS OUTSTANDING in a supporting role!

American Leg Magazine

A-1 PEGGER JEANS

"LOOK for the YELLOW
PORKCHOP on Bayes St.
IN WOOSTER"
A college community is made up of professors, administrators, students, and friends. Each plays a vital part in the operation of the community at large but one group determines if the community survives as a learning experience, those are the professors. A college such as Wooster stands on the reputation of its professors. If they succeed in their varied fields the college can put claim to integrity, dignity, and the pursuit of excellence. We shall also acknowledge at this made point that professors would need a great assistance to be learned between professors and assistant professors and assistant professors and instructors. The rank of a college professor is determined in many ways. Two very licit ways are the number of degrees he has and the number of years of service to the learning mechanism of the country. The separation here in the intellectual elite of the college is not always good, for the atmosphere is not equable. Students will think the professor with the most degrees is more qualified to teach a given subject. This is not true. It takes a true teacher to impart knowledge to those of us of the student class. Some professors just cannot impart such knowledge. On the professor who can teach an instructor who can teach a subject with proficiently is not always given the opportunity to do so, sometimes from the faculty and even worse sometimes from the students.

I think an explanation of the concept of a teacher is in order at this time. Professors and instructors here at Wooster are indeed endowed with the gift of knowledge but not all of them are endowed with the gift of teaching. Having knowledge does not qualify you to teach. Professors too often approach a class of vibrant, energetic students with cold, unemotional lectures and discussions. You can’t begin to reach a class this way. Professors can’t leave their emotions at home, they have to put their heart in their coursework along with logic, history, physics and many other interesting subjects. It is the job of the professor to bring the subject to life. If the subject seems dull and uninteresting the prof tends to make it so. If it seems interesting the prof makes it this way also. A professor must have some love for his job in order to do his best. Teaching offers many rewards for a true teacher. The satisfaction that your students have learned the concepts you have imparted to them is one very good example of a just reward. The “stick in the fan” here is that too often professors consider this job as only a step somewhere higher in life. This is fine but these professors are sometimes detrimental to the student who really want to learn. Because this is only a step to something higher they tend to treat their present situation as inadequate. This particular treatment on occasions of their predicament is not helping those who need their help, preferably the students.

The moral of this article is as follows: Professors should teach and have some love for the profession, and realize that constant study of a subject does not qualify them in imparting their knowledge.

Student Opinion

LOOK IN ANGER

By Ed Gilbert

Last quarter was the most confusing one I have had here at the College of Wooster. I ask the student body to look not upon the events surrounding our lovely homecoming weekend. I am not going into any great detail because all you have your version of what happened as well as do I. But what I really want you to look at is what has happened over the time that has elapsed from that experience to now.

A lot of naive people thought a minority of students were pointing the black finger at only the Athletic Department, but the truth of the matter is we were pointing at our whole environment. The Athletic Department was not singled out. Yes, it was intended to be singled out, as the only racist department on this campus. Granted, the Athletic Department is very representative, but it stereos from a situation so enthusiastically supports. Racism exists in every department within this institution. Mere tokenism is still so apparent that it makes you sick. Galpin is still full of perverse minded administra tors talking that jargan that went out ten years ago.

There is no excuse why the more relevant departments have not hired more black candidates. There is no excuse for departments intentionally excluding the black perspective from their class preparations.

Nothing has happened since that homecoming weekend. The most ugly, humiliating, and deplorable part of this whole situation is that you, as students, sit back and accept it. It is very obvious to me that the administration is and will stay little in that area. It is intuitively obvious that the students are and will do nothing. Therefore it is left up to the student. All majors in the Social Sciences and Humanities should go to their department heads and demand some type of revision. The administration in the facts that reside in Galpin and Kauke Hall are lacking present day needs at this precise. We don’t need another homecoming event that we need action from the student body to raise the faculty and administration from the dead.

failure of the raid. After her part in the planning of the raid was revealed she was under house arrest. She also assumed an active role in the Civil War. She acted as an intermediary between her people and the white soldiers. She received only $200 from the government which she used to set up a laundry for the black women in Port Royal and Beaufort, South Carolina.

She worked as a nurse for the Department of the South in the hospitals for the contrabands. In 1863, she organized a scouting service. She was one of the planners of the Comahere River campaign that resulted in the freeing of more than 750 slaves.

Early in 1864 Harriet met Nelson Davis, a volunteer for the Union Army, who became her second husband. She began to save certificates from officers so that she would be able to receive compensation for her services. In spite of the validity of her claims she never received the $1800 owed her by the government.

Harriet’s last years were devoted to caring for others. She was the sole provider for her parents until their death. She raised money for those who came to her in need from her wealthy white friends. She wished to use the money the government owed her for this work but the government refused to honor her claims. In 1869, she married Nelson Davis; he suffered from tuberculosis and the medical bills were an added burden. The publication of Mrs. Sarah Bradford’s Scenes in the Life of Harriet Tubman in 1869, temporarily eased her financial burden.

In 1885, her second husband, Nelson Davis, died. Two years later the government awarded her a pension of $8.00 a month. In 1899 she was granted a pension of $20 a month which she used to found a home for the aged.

In March, 1913, Harriet caught pneumonia. She died on March 10, 1913, at the age of ninety-three and was buried with military honors. Harriet Tubman delivered over 300 slaves from bondage. For her heroism she will always hold a special place in the history of black people.
Revised Publications Constitution

In order to develop a feasible and constructive visitation policy to present to the Board of Trustees' Student Relation Committee, the SGA would like very much your participation in this poll.

Total responding: 788

1. Are you aware of the present stipulations on visitation hours?
   666 yes
   83 no
2. How often do you use this privilege?
   60 never
   295 seldom (once or twice per week)
   172 frequently (four times per week)
   153 very frequently (in excess of four times per week)
3. Please check the hours in which you usually have visitors...
   Majority responses:
   Field
   119 never
   245 seldom (once or twice per week)
   120 frequently (four times per week)
   120 very frequently (in excess of four times per week)
   5. Have you ever felt inconvenienced by your roommate's use of the visitation privilege?
   85 yes
   567 no
6. If so, how often?
   107 rarely
   26 periodically
   6 constantly
7. Have you confronted your roommate with this concern?
   69 yes
   438 no
502 no
8. If so, how did you feel about that confrontation?
   45 very comfortable
   28 comfortable
   20 neutral
   21 hesitant, but not uncomfortable
   9 very uncomfortable
9. If you have not had this kind of confrontation, how do you image you might feel about it?
   130 very comfortable
   125 comfortable
   86 neutral
   140 hesitant, but not uncomfortable
   37 very uncomfortable
10. Which of the following responses describes your view of the present visitation rules?
   34 too liberal
   168 adequate
   595 too restrictive
11. In view of your experiences and personal needs do you feel that visitation hours should...
   645 be more liberal
   20 be more restrictive
   112 remain the same
12. If you would like the hours to be liberalized, which of the following would you prefer?
   392 24-hour visitation
   206 some other guidelines established below 24-hour (see question 13)
13. Assuming that visitation hours would begin at noon, what would you propose as the outside limits?
   A. During weekdays: midnight
   B. On weekends: 24 hours
   C. Would you prefer visitation hours to begin before noon?
   237 yes
   118 no
14. Should the college assign different visitation policies to the various dormitories before room draw, so students could opt for their preference?
   419 yes
   182 no
15. Are you now living within the limits of the present visitation hours as stated in the Code of Conduct?
   208 no
16. Do you feel that most students are doing so?
   330 yes
   298 no
17. Comments:

Applications for VOICE sports editor are still being taken.
Apply to Nate Speights.
Salaried position.

Psychological Computers

By Charles Gibson

A psychology major recently remarked to a friend that a basic knowledge of computer science seemed essential for his further advance in psychological sophistication. The friend was surprised and asked what computer had to do with headshrinking.

Unfortunately, that sort of narrow definition of psychology is rather typical. It is unfortunate especially because it leads to many students to expect subject matter centering on behavior pathology rather than on the quantification of behavior. The fact that a number of prospective psychology majors have changed to non-science departments in the past several years may be indicative of this misconception.

Dr. Henry Loews, chairman of C.O.W.'s psychology department, attributes at least some of these misconceptions to the hazing in the printing of paper back psychologies. However, the historical and scientific developments within psychology as a science have departed from many of these popularized notions.

The present emphasis has been experimental: attempting to isolate and measure the variables that are factors contributing toward specific behavior.

There can be no doubt that psychology as a science is no less as old as, say, physics or chemistry. Neither has it always maintained the empirical approach demanded of a science. But the twentieth century, and especially the past three or four decades has witnessed a growth in psychological knowledge out of proportion with the time spanned. And this growth has been most pronounced where the methodology has been most vigorous. Thus, the application of Skinnerian behaviorist techniques in child rearing and psychiatry has met with rather astounding success; information theory and computer science together build machines on a continuum with human intelligence.

What Wooster's psychology department attempts to offer, then is a representative cross-section of the most significant work in the field. Instead of pursing deep studies of particular ideas or men, the department encourages a thorough grounding in well-established principles and methodologies. It is hoped that with such a breadth of outlook, students will be well-prepared to intelligently deal with the new knowledge in the field.

Sign up for

Dr. Schreiber's Amish class,
Spring quarter.

Learn about Amish life
from 1535 to the Present.

CITY NEWS

IMPORTED PIPES — HAND BLENDED TOBACCOs

DELICATESSEN

PAPERBACK BOOKS — MAGAZINES

Open 6:30 a.m. — 12:30 a.m. — Sunday 'til 10:00

200 S. Market St.
Phone 262-5151
SMILE: You're Un Perfect Campus

Editor's Note: This material was excerpted from an article by Jason Thomas in the March 1 issue by Joanne Mcgowen, the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

But why did the McGaw's pick this date? With dozens of requests for fundraising events, Wooster, with its $200 million fortune earned from a hospital supply company cluttering their desks in and out of their wallets, had to decide if Wooster deserved their generosity.

"IT WAS because of the character of the people and especially the students we met when we visited them," explained McGaw from his front lawn at Wooster.

"You have to understand that things like this would not be possible for a business to do.

"They have a respect for law and order," he added.

"The want to be part of the team.

"And the GIFTSTROYING the establishment is not the way to build a library or raise funds." McGaw, a man who has done much to build Wooster said.

DRUG WORKSHOP

A new approach to education, value-oriented techniques and their relation to drug education, was the focus of "Drug, Values, and Teaching-Phase II" an educational series held March 16-17 and identical sessions March 15-19, at the Cleveland Health Museum and Education Center, 8911 Euclid Avenue, conducted by Howard Kirschbaum, Director of the Adirondack Mountain Humanistic Education Center, Upper Jay, N.Y.

The workshop is designed for teachers, counselors, administrators, and others interested in ways to work with people more effectively, in kindness throughout grade ten.

Twelve sessions are scheduled, each running for two days:

Thursday, March 16 at 9 A.M.-5 P.M. and Friday, March 17 from 9 A.M.-3 P.M.

Friday, March 18th from 9 A.M.-5 P.M. and Saturday, March 19th from 9 A.M.-5 P.M.

Registration is limited. The $10.00 fee with your registration includes lunches and coffee breaks. Please make checks payable to the Cleveland Health Museum Education Center.

For additional information, please contact Renee Lipson at (216) 231-0010.

McGaw son of a Presbyterian minister, defines the perfect student as: a student having a great love for his parents and family; having a love and respect for education; and having a strong love and respect for his country.

He负荷 his perfect students at Wooster, a Presbyterian college. His challenge to the students is to continue their faith in the McGaw ideal.

The school received in the image of the 1920 student:

A 75-pound girl astounded the kitchen staff by eating 10 bowls of maple nut supply was exhausted and she was forced to switch to lemon sherbet. She did not like lemon sherbet.

Two more benefit dances:

The music majors sponsored an all-night piano marathon and when the keyboard pounding had faded, there was $5,000 toward the matching fund.

At the $220 students chose a near-zero day to walk a 20-mile marathon that added more than $600 to the fund raising drive.

McGaw had a soft spot in his pocketbook for Wooster College ever since his son attended McGaw Chapel on the campus.

W. A. attended the Chapel dedication last fall he was accompanied by six students.

Senior John A. (Jay) Smith said, "McGaw was one of the six students who were introduced to the McGaw.

He spent an entire Sunday with them.

"AT FIRST I WAS nervously because of the power of the McGaw's family. He was so prominent, a very prominent man. He was really sincerely interested in us. I decided that he knew how to do things with materialism. That he was a man to be admired."

One of the students she interviewed was a student who had been working at the hospital.

"I have heard that the hospital, where I am working, is a very good hospital."

"McGaw who is not a Wooster alumnus, liked the idea. He liked the conservative respect for success and accomplishment among the students he had met.

Rich men have given buildings to universities before and the students have torn them apart. But at Wooster College the students not only cherish their buildings, but they even request that the furniture themselves to save the college that expensive.

For a while, at least, Mc-

The McGaw's donations to Wooster College are over.

He said, "I think the thought of any additional money should be completely dismissed."

McGAW AND HIS WIFE plan some six years before they give one of their mil-

The McGaw was given a ex-

The McGaw's TONE softened.

"My wife and I have decided that we will do this while we are alive but after all, you can't smell roses in a casket."

Students get a warm welcome when they open a ThriftyCheck account

We really turn it on for students who open a ThriftyCheck Personal Checking Account

You'll find you don't need much money to open your ThriftyCheck account - a few dollars will do the trick. You don't need much time, either - there's no red tape.

You'll get a rather splendid checkbook cover in the colors of your college, stamped with the college emblem.

You can keep whatever amount is handy in your account - no fixed balance needed.

Open a low-fee, low-check account soon. We will be glad to see you, and we'll try to make your financial life more pleasant.

The Wayne County Nat'l. Bank

"THREE CONVENIENT LOCATIONS"
Harriet Tubman: The Black Profile in Courage

by Be Be Daily

Harriet Tubman was the shrewd, disavowed agent of the slavery period. She fearlessly challenged the system as she advanced Black liberation struggles.

Harriet Tubman was born in 1820, in Bucktown, Dorchester County on the eastern shore of Maryland, the property of Edward Brodas. She was one of eleven children born to Benjamin Ross and Harriet Green. Her grandparents were members of the Ashanti tribe of the Gold Coast. The Ashanties were fierce warriors who fought off British troops from 1672-1896.

At the early age of five she was denied childhood pleasures by her mistress so that she could care for a small white baby. This cruel mistress habitually prodded Harriet with a stick to teach her anything because she felt slaves were incapable of learning.

At the age of six she was taken to live with James Cook whose wife was to teach her the house. Harriet had to pack Cook's hair to the kitchen and wash it. The daily work was primitive and exhausting because she was nine years old. She could not read or write.

During her period of captivity she developed a deep regard for her only hope. She prayed that God would give her the skill to save her master's heart; and if He would not change his heart, He would allow her to kill him so that he would be forever freed.

In an effort to keep Harriet from being physically mistreated by the overseer, her father's master, John Stewart, he allowed Harriet to do his work. However, Harriet was still determined to be free. Her service to her master continued and she made her first plans to go North in 1849. She met Harriet Tubman, a free black. They stayed together for five years inspite of their personality differences. John did not share her hatred of slavery.

Two years after she had gone North, she returned to Maryland for only to find that he had deserted.

In 1849, she heard rumors that she was to be sent with the next group of slaves to the Deep South. This fear compelled her to act immediately. She persuaded two of her brothers to accompany her. They successfully escaped on the night of September 18, 1849. Fearing capture, her brother & sister-in-law chose to stay behind to plant the idea of freedom it her mind. They would have to escape as a group to prevent arrest.

During the period from 1855 to 1860 she mastered the techniques of escape. She planned and executed her escapes with a knife. She did not tolerate weakness among her bands of fugitives. If a slave was reluctant to go on she would point a pistol at his head and tell him to go on or die.

Her value as a speaker on the evils of slavery did not escape the attention of the abolitionists. She was among many of the abolitionist conventions and spoke at many anti-slave and rescue rallies. Her most venturesome trip to the South was in 1857 to rescue her parents. She was arrested for helping slaves to escape. Since her parents were too old to make the journey on foot she had to hire a wagon which made their movements more conspicuous. She lead them to Canada.

Harriet's exploits so threatened the slavery that at one time the rewards offered for her head reached $40,000.

Harriet's hatred for slavery was so strong that she worked in John Brown's scheme to forcibly free the slaves. He entrusted her with the work of the raid for the raid. She supplied him with horses and horses. She also was to be a guide to the North for the slaves she freed. She was ill at the time of the raid, but she headed for Harper's Ferry anyway. Brown assigned her the arsenal in bed, so she could have the arsenal in bed, so she could have the arsenal.

She was in New York when she learned of the raid.

Continued on page 6

LETTER:

No More Blacks at Work?

by Monte Edwards

There is a phase out taking place at Wooster College. This phase out seems to apply only to Black students. Why should I make such a phase out? Well, during the homecoming weekend there was a boycott by the Black students of Wooster College. There was a significant increase in Black students on campus, the employment of more Black faculty; among this faculty were Black coaches with masters degrees. Also in the presence of demands there was the request for the purchase of more books relevant to the African and Afro-American studies programs of the college.

How can I call this a phase out? Well you see, most if not all of the above mentioned demands were asked for in a Black Manifesto issued by the campus in a group of tidbits of thought for you. Last year out of over one hundred Black applicants only forty-one were admitted. They decided they could stand or deal with the campus.

In Galpin Hall there is a full time staff working on the recruitment of white students. Black administrators and students have more space to recruit third world students. This year there have been to date only twenty-six applications from white students admitted to the office of admissions. How many of these applicants will be accepted? I could end my article here but I have not mentioned the situation of the present Black administrators. Black administrators of Wooster College double as counselors and sometime parent away from home for all Black students on campus. Their interest, leadership and dedication has helped many Black and White students through trying times. Of these Black administrators all but one are leaving.

Why, you ask? The Black administrator must deal with the stagnant thoughts of his department, his peers, the students, lower wages than deserve or compare with the university, and last but not least must deal with the town. In a town where he probably couldn't get an apartment or house if he wasn't a member of the faculty. He is placed in a position where he must have a job to pay his bills and no chance you any Blacks ask them to go into town with you to rent an apartment or let them do the shopping and driving around as if you don't know them and tell me what happens; okay?

N.O.W. Plans Race Program

by Diane Teichert

The Non-white (N.O.W) Scholarship Fund is in the process of creating a race education program. The Non-white (N.O.W) Scholarship Fund of the Holden and men in Douglass which will involve several members of planned delving into an understanding of the nature of whites as raicias and their involvement on a white-con- trolled campus.

The N.O.W Fund, originally conceived as a scholarship fund (for white and third world) students to facilitate their education and the student body, decided at the beginning of winter quarter to redefine itself in terms of shifting goals. "The N.O.W. Fund's understanding of race relations from that of being a 'race fund' to one that of being a 'races fund' which means more blacks in and study their culture and that of being the problem of whites (solution: recognize their racism and act as anti-racist racists)." The organization seeks its past efforts as important and continuous but realizes that the presence of blacks on campus brings whites' attitudes to greater obviousness, and that too little has been done to whites to see and handle their attitudes and positions. "Blacks are here now, but look at the problems we have!" - the problems are indicative of a white campus which needs an awareness of itself as a white institution.

The program is being organized by a race education program committee. The program committee of the N.O.W. Fund is a self-selected group. The program committee is to develop a small "package" of resources and materials which would be available to living units on campus to help the residents to understand the racial clauses as they stated earlier in the program.

The first stage in this developmental help is to realize that the race education program committee which would fit its needs and which would serve as a resource for the N.O.W. Fund on which to base changes and add new ideas.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

This week on campus

Movies
- at Mather 7:00 and 9:30 p.m.
- Tonight - The Ballad of Cable Hogue
- Saturday - Putney Swope
- Tuesday - Under Two Flags
- Wednesday - Parens 451
- Next Friday - Horsefeathers
- Next Saturday - [T]?

in classes by department
- Monday - Allen Ginsberg and Lawrence Feinberg - English 381
- Monday - Cleve Jones and The Day of Man - Biology 140
- Monday - John Lawless and Great Canyon - Geology 113
- Monday - Mental Restoration: Pts. 1 & 2 - Psychology 260
- Monday - Rodin - French 124

*consult department for time and location of showing

Music
- Sunday - Scot Symphonic Band concert, 8:15 p.m.
- Monday - Hermann Prey, Baritone, Metropolitan Opera, 8:15 p.m.
- Convocation

- Wednesday - "The Berrigan and Radical Catholicism"
- Friday, March 10 is last day of classes!!! Made it through another quarter!!!

MEN'S PROFESSIONAL HAIR STYLING

by Pete's Barber Shop

122 E Main Street

Smithville

Also: Hair Straightening Toupée Fitting Sculp Conditioning

Appointments only, call any day but Thursday

Black Profile in Courage

Voice

Page Nine
DiFeo, Dumas, UAC Champs Attend NCCA Meet For Scots

by Phil Johnson

Two of the Fighting Scot wrestling squad will be competing for the school this weekend at the NCAA wrestling tournament.

Wes Dumas

Dumas, 150, beat Ken Kerkenes of Heidelberg and de-cisioned Mike Stoddard of Wittenberg, 2-1, in the preliminaries. In the finals, Wes won a decision victory over Mar-ten's seventh-seeded score of 4-2.

Dufresne took the 177-

weight class crown by dropping three opponents. In his final, Dufresne defeated Mark defeated Bill Kaufman of Otterbein and then defeated a decision over John Yezerski of Baldwin-Wallace, 7-5. Then Mark went on to decision Rick Theil of Ohio Wesleyan, 7-4, in the finals.

The Fighting Scots also had two second place winners in the tournament. Senior Larry Sprague defeated O-W's Dan Fouts, 4-2, for the 187-

W's defeating Dan Schmoke of Mt. Union, 9-5, before being edged out by Dan Yezerski of Baldwin-Wallace, 3-2, in the finals.

Jim Rastetter, another sophomoric, took third place in the 134 pound class for the Scots. He was defeated in the preliminary match, then went on to decide another wrestler in the quarter finals losing to the defending 134 pound Norm

Rose of Marietta. In the conclonation bracket Rastetter pinned Frank Romanos of Wittenberg and decisioned Capital's Jim Treoche, 7-4, to win third place.

The only other Scot to place in the tournament was the 190 pound Mariner. Mark Rastetter was defeated Wittenberg's Jim Rouih, 6-2, by Chris Petras of Heidelberg in the first two matches. In the consolation

Rastetter decisioned Bob Spooner of Otterbein before losing a tough match to Bill Dennis of Denison to end up in fourth place.

Close, But Not Quite... Story of 1972 Swim Season

Close, but not close enough, is the way to summarize the 1972 campaign for the College of Wooster swimmers.

The tanksers closed their dual meet season last Saturday with a 67-46 win over Hiram. The victory gave the Scots a 6-7 ledger, just one win shy of the elusive winning season.

The 6-7 mark is the best recorded by a Wooster team since 1963. That year the Scots finished with a 6-4 record, the last season a winning slate was achieved.

Remaining for the Wooster men are the Ohio Conference Swim Championships held at Miami this weekend. Kenyon, swim kings for the past 17 seasons, are favored to take the crown again, though Denison will give the Lords a battle for it. Host Oberlin is picked to finish close to the top as is Wittenberg.

Wooster, ironically, was the last school to win the championship before the Kenyon reign. The Scots don't have enough depth to recapture the throne, but mentor Tracy Helm feels a couple of his swimmers can cause a upset in the conference meet.

The coach predicts that backstroke specialist Jim Liner will finish in the top six. Liner had a strong season, smashing both the school and Severance Pool record in the 200 yard backstroke. His record-setting time was 2:10.1.

Helm anticipates distance swimmers Joe Cummings and Jeff Carrell to show impressive showings in the longer events. Joe Cummings, usually a late starter, has been strong all year long, enhanced by his season ever. Carrell has just recently closed new school record in the 1000 yard freestyle of 1:18.28.

Freshman Bill Doyle is expected to be one of the better performers in the breaststroke and individual medley. He stepped in this season to log some impressive times in those events.

Helm figures that diver Mark Carroll can not woo some points. Carroll has come into his own in his first season ever as a diver.

Spikers At GLCA

The Fighting Scot track team travels to Greenville to-nower to participate in the Great Lake College Association Indoor Championships.

Wheaton and Denison are picked to battle for the GLCA title. Wooster, by virtue of early performances, could be a contender for a high finish.

The Scots opened their indoor season with a tenth place finish in last weekend's Conference Relays. Relying on the strength of distance and middle-distance runners, Wooster won a triangular meet over Hiram and Otterbein.

With the team idle last weekend, sophomore captivated Rick Sollmann and John Helm competed in the Ohio State University Invitational. Sollmann finished sixth in a field of six in the 440 yard dash. "Rick" recorded his best time ever in the event, 51.6 seconds. He fell four tenths of a second short of reaching the school record of 51.2 set by Helm in 1969.

Helm didn't do as well as he in the long jump however. He fouled in his first and last attempts.

Considered a strong short foot short of the board on his third attempt. Helm managed to get off a decent jump, reaching 21-1\", Helm in the long jump however. He fouled in his first and last attempts.

Conscious of fumbling, John jumped at least eight inches. "Their performances were decked out," said track coach Bob Lafferty.

"Rick showed that he was in shape. In fact, he's a little ahead of schedule at this time."

The headline which topped this space last week read, "...i.t's more than a game..."

By Dave Berkley

Voice Sports Editor

College Life is more than a game as are athletics. It's up to the participants to make them more valuable—not value-less.
Tonight at 7:00 is the moment of reckoning for the Fighting Scots basketball team.

The Ohio Conference tournament, thought by most to be the only true test of the OAC championship, opens for the Scots at Mt. Union's new gym against the winner of last night's Heidelberg-Kenyon game.

This is the first time in two years that Wooster has been in the post-season tussle; last year the Scots were banned from the tournament because of an "illegal" summer basketball camp for high school players. But last season Wooster tallied to a 12-0 OAC record which gave the Scots an unofficial title and a trip to the NCAA Midwest Regional.

This year, conference officials decided that the NCAA representative from the OAC should be the tournament champion automatically, thus the regular season tiltist might not go. It was felt that since all of the 13 schools do not play a full OAC schedule, the tournament is the only true test. The tourney is also sterilized in that its games are played on a neutral floor, for the most part. Some schools, such as Wooster, played a tough road schedule this year.

But despite what has gone on previously, the winner of the Northern Division tournament at Mount Union will play the winner of the Southern Division tournament at Denison University on Tuesday of next week. The winner of the tournament championship game will be the official OAC champion and represent the conference in the NCAA Midwest Regional at Evansville, Ind.

The drawings for the two divisions took place last Sunday on the basis of regular season conference records. At Alliance in the North, Wooster had the best record of 9-3 and elected to take a first round bye in the upper bracket. There was a three-way tie for the second spot and Baldwin-Wallace won it on a coin toss. B-W took a first round bye in the lower bracket.

The other four slots were also selected by the preference of the teams involved, according to record. Heidelberg, with the worst conference mark, would up against Kenyon in last night's first round contest at 7 p.m. The winner will play Wooster.

Host Mt. Union chose the lower bracket and ended up opposite Oberlin in last night's 9:00 game. That winner plays B-W tonight at 9:00.

In the Southern Division, the top seed by virtue of its 10-2 OAC record and the regular season championship, Witt took a bye in the lower bracket and faces the winner of the Denison-Ohio Wesleyan game tonight at 9:00. The lower bracket in the South is stacked with powerhouse Otterbein, Capital and Muskingum. The Muskies played Marietta last night and Capt and Ott tangled at 7:00 last evening. The two winners play tonight at 7.

In both divisions, the finals will be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the respective sites. The Mt. Union Tartan Floor will be the scene of the BIG one Tuesday at 8 p.m. Only then will the speculation end.

---

Ohio Conference Tournament

Northern Division at Mt. Union

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Day</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Wooster</td>
<td>7 p.m.</td>
<td>Friday</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Heidelberg</td>
<td>7 p.m.</td>
<td>Thursday</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kenyon</td>
<td>8 p.m.</td>
<td>Saturday</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oberlin</td>
<td>9 p.m.</td>
<td>Thursday</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mt. Union</td>
<td>9 p.m.</td>
<td>Friday</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Baldwin-Wallace</td>
<td>8 p.m.</td>
<td>Southern Division Champion</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Southern Division at Denison

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Day</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Wittenberg</td>
<td>9 p.m.</td>
<td>Friday</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Denison</td>
<td>5 p.m.</td>
<td>Thursday</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ohio Wesleyan</td>
<td>8 p.m.</td>
<td>Saturday</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Capital</td>
<td>7 p.m.</td>
<td>Thursday</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marietta</td>
<td>7 p.m.</td>
<td>Friday</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Muskingum</td>
<td>9 p.m.</td>
<td>Thursday</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

Yes, there are a lot of good reasons for women to quit smoking.

Find yours.

I want to be a teacher. How can I discourage kids from smoking when I smoke?

I know my father's been trying to quit. How can he with me still puffing away?

I want to wake up feeling fresh and clean again. I've had it with nicotine hang-over in the mornings.

The thing that appeals to me most is: If you quit for good, in most cases it can be as if you never smoked.

Somewhere in the back of my head I've been nursing the illusion that smoking is really only dangerous for men. I've just seen the latest statistics. The death rate for women who smoke is more than 20% higher than for women who don't. We've come a long way baby, but I'm not going any further.

Now all you need is help and encouragement. Send a postcard today to: Women and Smoking, Rockville, Md. 20852. And we'll send some free booklets to help and encourage you.

U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. This space contributed as a public service.
Annie Baird Leads Scotties At State Cage Tournament

Wooster's other basketball team ended their regular season on a sour note Monday night, dropping a 28-23 decision to a very tough Utica College team. This loss, preceded by victories over Muskingum, 59-32, and Wittenberg, 72-31, left the women with a 6-2 slate for the season with the State Tournament coming up this weekend.

The victory over the female Muskies started as if it was going to be a runaway with Wooster taking a 25-10 halftime lead. Denise Massa and Annie Baird combined for 20 points in the half.

In the second half, however, Muskingum decided to make a contest out of it and held the Muskies to only 35 points, and the game to a 28-23 finish. The Muskies were led by Janytt Nordstrom with 17 rebounds and Annie Baird added 14. The Scotties snatched 65 caroms in this match but their poor floor shooting (14-46) kept it close. The Saturday game against Wittenberg was a real thriller. The Scotties held a 19-13 halftime bulge, but the Tigers closed within 23-20 in the third period and dominated the final quarter, holding a seemingly insurmountable 20-24 lead with less than two minutes left. However, the tenacious Scotties scored six points in the last 46 seconds, capped by Denise Massa's 10 foot clincher with eight seconds left.

Wooster ran out of miracles against Ohio Dominican, though. The loss from Columbus was a massive, physical crew who took away the heart of Wooster's offense. Although the Scotties have been shooting poorly all year, the shots they were missing were mostly layups and short jumpers.

Dominican denied Wooster the inside game and completely shut out the usually successful fast break in the midst of this competition this season.

The girls stayed tough on defense and managed a fairly competent outside game to take a 13-10 lead into the locker room at halftime. Unfortunately, the shots stopped dropping as Wooster in the second half as the women managed only ten points in the 16 minute time span. Meanwhile, Dominican was dropping in almost everything and dominating all aspects of the game.

This weekend, Wooster hopes their fortunes will improve as it journeys to the stimulating hamlet of Cedarville to compete in the State Tournament. Wooster reached the finals in the losers' bracket last year and hope to do the same in the winners' competition this season.

At this point, the Scotties' defense is one of the best in the state and their rebounding has been excellent. However, the nicest compliment anyone can pay to the offense is that it is terrible. If the women start scoring then they will cheer up what will otherwise be a long weekend in a bleak and dreary town.

The regular season ended on a sour note for the Scott roundballers last Saturday in Springfield, but Coach Al Van Wie's squad showed it has the fight left to wage a tough battle in the OAC tournament. Wooster finished the regular season with a non-shameless respectable 18-7 record, 9-3 in the Ohio Conference, after most people hadn't given the Scots much of a chance at pre-season.

Unfazed by the loss of four key seniors, the Scots were in the OAC race until the buzzer of the final game, won the Marion Invitational for the third straight year, amassed winning streaks of five and seven games during the year, and revealed a wealth of young talent which might keep Wooster in contention for years to come.

THREE TOUGhest PAoD GAMeS at the season's end were the Scotti's ultimate downfall. Six of Wooster's seven losses came on the road while only a last second defeat to Brockport State prevented an unblemished home tally.

In the final analysis, the season's success has been due to the performances of seniors Greg Bryant, Mike Grenet and John Creasap, who picked up the scoring slack left by the departure of All-American Tom Dingler, Dick Cornwell and Tim Baab. Although the highest individual point total of the year was only a 23-point effort by Creasap, both the seniors and the three seniors had a combined average of 42 points and 18 rebounds on an outing.

Twelve of those rebounds belong to Bryant who was among the tops in the conference in that category. Grenet averaged 14.7 points and a quadruple double with 8 rebounds and 8 assists an outing.

Senior co-captain Greg Bryant, edged-out by nine-tenths of a point for the conference rebounding title, leads Wooster's 6'4" junior against Northern Division foes this weekend at the OAC tournament in Alliance.

Dutter and Bryant combined for 22 second-half points while the Tigers were suffering from a case of over-cani tiousness. The only cog in the Scots' wheel was the amazing scoring of freshman guard Eddie Ford who one-on-one himself in 27 points, 19 in the second half. Wooster whipped the large lead down to two, hit by hit. At the 10 minute mark, it was only 62-52. With 1:20 remaining, two Duffer foul shots narrowed it to 74-70, Witt.

But there, as in the two previous losses, the Scotti's "comeback machine" splattered. Ford hit a jumper, Wooster missed, hit a foul shot, Wooster missed, then Steve Moore connected on a halfcourt shot at the buzzer that made the final outcome, 77-70, Wittenberg.

Both teams didn't know until after the game that it was the deciding factor for the regular season title. Capital was in the process of losing to Ken yon as center Mike Stumpf suffered a broken ankle and the Tigers togged out of sight away from Wooster.

Senior Tom Tombo included a completed basketball career on the Hill last weekend with a second place finish in the Ohio Conference tournament.

Senior wrestling captain Bob Beasley completed an illustrious career on the Hill last weekend with a second place finish in the Ohio Conference tournament.

The regular season ended on a sour note for the Scotti's roundballers last Saturday in Springfield, but Coach Al Van Wie's squad showed it has the fight left to wage a tough battle in the OAC tournament. Wooster finished the regular season with a non-shameless respectable 18-7 record, 9-3 in the Ohio Conference, after most people hadn't given the Scots much of a chance at pre-season.

Unfazed by the loss of four key seniors, the Scots were in the OAC race until the buzzer of the final game, won the Marion Invitational for the third straight year, amassed winning streaks of five and seven games during the year, and revealed a wealth of young talent which might keep Wooster in contention for years to come.

THREE TOUGHEST POAD GAMeS at the season's end were the Scotti's ultimate downfall. Six of Wooster's seven losses came on the road while only a last second defeat to Brockport State prevented an unblemished home tally.

In the final analysis, the season's success has been due to the performances of seniors Greg Bryant, Mike Grenet and John Creasap, who picked up the scoring slack left by the departure of All-American Tom Dingler, Dick Cornwell and Tim Baab. Although the highest individual point total of the year was only a 23-point effort by Creasap, both the seniors and the three seniors had a combined average of 42 points and 18 rebounds on an outing.

Twelve of those rebounds belong to Bryant who was among the tops in the conference in that category. Grenet averaged 14.7 points and a quadruple double with 8 rebounds and 8 assists an outing.

Senior co-captain Greg Bryant, edged-out by nine-tenths of a point for the conference rebounding title, leads Wooster's 6'4" junior against Northern Division foes this weekend at the OAC tournament in Alliance.

Dutter and Bryant combined for 22 second-half points while the Tigers were suffering from a case of over-cautiousness. The only cog in the Scots' wheel was the amazing scoring of freshman guard Eddie Ford who one-on-one himself in 27 points, 19 in the second half. Wooster whipped the large lead down to two, hit by hit. At the 10 minute mark, it was only 62-52. With 1:20 remaining, two Duffer foul shots narrowed it to 74-70, Witt.

But there, as in the two previous losses, the Scotti's "comeback machine" splattered. Ford hit a jumper, Wooster missed, hit a foul shot, Wooster missed, then Steve Moore connected on a halfcourt shot at the buzzer that made the final outcome, 77-70, Wittenberg.

Both teams didn't know until after the game that it was the deciding factor for the regular season title. Capital was in the process of losing to Kenyon as center Mike Stumpf suffered a broken ankle and the Tigers togged out of sight away from Wooster.