CC Considers ISC Evaluation Of Section Initiation Activities

"That it is the inherent right of each Section to determine its own proceedings as long as they do not infringe upon the rights of non-Section people or other Sections," is the conclusion of the Inter-Section Council (ISC) initiation evaluation submitted to Campus Council.

ISC Chairman Dave Berkey and Jim Hyman compiled the report from inputs by initiation observers, Section actives and pledges. The report lists three purposes for Hell Week:

"First, the majority of Initiation procedures are tradition-oriented and are kept as a point of identification within the Section. Most feel that the procedures undergo gradual change through the years but remain basically the same because they are a part of the Section's identity."

"Secondly, the concept of unity within the pledge class is a central part of the purpose of initiation as professed by actives and pledges alike and indications are that this was achieved."

"Thirdly, getting to know the Section members and its rules and traditions is an important reason behind the activities."

After Berkey summarized the evaluation containing these conclusions, LeRoy Haynes read a memo from Ted Williams. Williams said that 11 years ago he sat on a faculty committee to evaluate Hell Week. There was, he added, considerable faculty sentiment for the abolition of initiation then. Several years ago, he reports a student died in an auto accident while participating in Hell Week activities.

Williams' memo also said that, until three years ago, the validity of Hell Week was extensively debated at faculty meetings. He concludes with three observations of initiation. One, there has been no change in procedure during the last 11 years; guidelines cannot be enforced; and, third, there is no rationale for Hell Week.

The evaluation mentions that only one observer, Glenn Bucher, reported a violation of initiation guidelines. Bucher claims, according to the report, that Fifth Section actives hazed their pledges.

Two observers, Eric Hummel and Rick Swegan, entered Fifth unannounced. Berkey said that they "were called names, and obscenities were directed at them." They left, he explained, when struck with bags of water. It is not certain whether the bags were aimed at pledges or the observers.

The incident "was inexcusable and not condoned by the ISC," the report charges. "Fifth Section President Bill Castle said that this was due to the built-up resentment in 5th for intervention by the Deans' staff." The two observers are Administrative Interns.

The "public nature" of Fifth's initiation activities on Monday and Wednesday "cannot be condoned," the evaluation says.

Some Independents from Kenarden petitioned the ISC "to prevent the use of showers and washing machines by pledges who have been covered with unpleasant substances." The issue was resolved at a special meeting of the ISC when the petitioners' proposal was unanimously adopted.

TCB - Take Care Of Ballots

Students for McGovern is urging students who will be away from their voting residences on primary day May 2 and others who are physically disabled to begin now in applying for their absentee ballots. Up to three letters may be necessary, so correspondence must be in now in order to receive a ballot in time for the May 2 primary.

Persons who will be unavoidably absent from the county where they are registered on election day and more than ten miles distant from their regular polling place where they are registered may vote by absentee ballot. Those who are unable to vote due to physical disability or personal illness may also vote by absentee ballot.

A person must first obtain an application form for an absentee ballot by requesting an application form from his board of elections by mail, telephone, or in person. Included in the initial request should be home (registered) residence address and the address to which the application form should be mailed.

Correspondence can be conducted with the "Board of Elections," "County Court-House," at the county seat in which a person is registered. A total of three letters may be necessary: The initial request for the application form, the completed application form, and the absentee ballot itself—so correspondence must start NOW to meet the deadlines.

The application form must be completed and received by the board of elections no later than 4 p.m., April 27. The application form does NOT need to be notarized. The local board will then mail the applicant the absentee ballot itself which

Sen. Hartke Of Indiana To Keynote Convention

Vance Hartke, United States Senator from Indiana and until recently himself a presidential aspirant, will deliver the keynote address Saturday morning, April 29, in Severance Gymnasium. Senator Hartke's address will kick off the proceedings at Wooster's 1972 Mock Democratic Convention.

Senator Hartke was first elected to the United States Senate in 1958, following a two-year term as Mayor of Evansville, Indiana. He served as vice chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee for the year 1959-60 and chairman from 1962-63. He was re-elected to the Senate in 1964, and again in 1970.

Currently chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee, Hartke has served on several Senate committees and subcommittees, covering the areas of Finance, Commerce, Postal Affairs, Civil Service, and many others.

Senator Hartke's Senate record marks him as an active and liberal Democrat. Speaking before a Senate subcommittee considering the 18-year-old vote, Senator Hartke blamed "the press of other business, procrastination and procedural difficulties" for the failure of Congress and state governments to lower the voting age previously.

In another testimony, before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on April 20, 1971, he said, "The setting of an agreed date for complete U.S. military withdrawal from Vietnam is the absolutely indispensable first step toward a

Poll Shows Students Lean To McGovern, Democrats

by Dr. Bradlee Karan and Bill Hook
Institute of Politics

Recently, 435 Wooster students responded to the 1972 Political Party and Presidential Preference Poll of the Institute of Politics. The poll affirms the trend to Independency that has been revealed in past annual polls. Three out of five of the respondents consider themselves Independents. However, only six per cent refuse to "lean" toward a party. Sixty per cent of the students identify as either Democrats or Independents leaning toward the Democratic Party; thirty per cent say they are either Republicans or Independents leaning toward the Republican Party.

Political Party Identification

Democratic	19.3%
Independent leaning Democratic	40.2
Independent	6.4
Independent leaning Republican	13.3
Republican	17.5
No response	3.2

Each student was provided the opportunity to indicate his/her preference for the Presidential and Vice-Presidential nominations of each party. Thirty-eight per cent of the respondents preferred McGovern for the Democratic nomination for President. Muskie ran second with twenty-four per cent of the votes; Humphrey came in a poor third. Chisholm won a Plurality of Vice-Presidential votes with seventeen per cent; second was Lindsay with thirteen per cent.

Nixon was preferred for the Republican presidential nomination by forty-five per cent of the students; McCloskey was next with twenty-one per cent of the votes. Agnew, with only ten per cent of the votes for Vice President on the Republican ticket, trailed Connally slightly.

If Yale Can Do It . . . !

NEW YORK (CPS) - Joining the ranks of selected mutual funds and other institutional stockholders, Yale University trustees have decided to assume an activist role as a stockholder with an estimated $500 million in assets.

In effect endorsing the concept of the social responsibility of institutional investors, the shift from a compliant to a participatory role as a major stockholder represents a considerable change for Yale. And it may soon be reflected among even more institutional investors.

Most of Yale's $500 million in assets is invested in common stock, representing ownership and voting power in several of the nation's corporations.

Under the new policy the university will cast the votes represented by its stockholdings for or against proposals that extend financial gains. The policy shift grew out of a year-long seminar at Yale in 1969-70. The seminar dealt with the ethical economic and legal complexities of an institutional investor's responsibilities with respect to the stocks in its portfolio.

Yale's policy shift follows a similar move by the gigantic Investors Group mutual fund organization (assets $8 billion) whose directors last decided last November to take more of an active role in encouraging social responsibility by corporations.

At that time Hamer H. Budge, president of the funds predicted before a meeting of Securities Analysts in Minneapolis, that there will be an increasing involvement by institutions - bank trust departments, pension funds, mutual funds, etc., in forcing more social responsibility by corporations. Perhaps his projection may hold true.

Commentary

That Kind Of Promises

By Stanley E. Perdue

"Promises, Promises, Promises" denotes not only a hit Broadway musical but characterizes the platform we received from our S.G.A. officers the latter part of last quarter. S.G.A. elections were very exciting. Mimeograph sheet after mimeograph sheet was sent out to the student body explaining each candidate's platform. Characteristic of politics, mudslinging took place also. It still slips me what good it does, but altogether the campaigning they did was supposed to bring to Wooster a new light of hope for its apathetic student body. Now that the posters have been taken down and the mimeograph sheets thrown into the incinerator, promises fail to be a stable base of support for our S.G.A. officers. Now they are in the process of molding those promises into something worth looking at. Something closer to this real world of ours.

Before starting on their trek to turn those promises into reality one barricade is to be removed, that of the S.G.A. constitution. If you have never read the constitution, I suggest that you do so. It will be an enlightening experience. Most of you who start will end up skimming the rest. It is evidently not responsive to students needs. This is why previous S.G.A. officers have used up their three quarter terms trying to rewrite one. Trying to rewrite the constitution is not an easy job. You will have to be overbearing, often apathetic and underhanded, but seem honest. These traits are by no means ones our officers should try to acquire but traits that will be forced upon them due to their involvement and status in the student body. In the positions of our officers one threatening thing may plague them. The feeling of loneliness. At times they may feel that they have no support community to direct their goals so they will insert their own personal goals to keep things going. It is up to you as a student to see that this doesn't happen. If it does happen the traits enumerated above will slide into place and feel quite comfortable in their new home.

Politics on any level is no child's game. It must be dealt with, with a clear awareness of what is going on. Who likes you and who doesn't. Too often politics moves away from its idealistic connotations, that of honesty and fair play. Even here at Wooster politics is no closer to its idealistic model than it is in the city of Chicago. Politics is said to corrupt but it can also be said that people can corrupt politics. Watch out for corrupted people in politics.

Wooster's S.G.A. has a lot of potentials for staying away from corruption, false promises and broken dreams if we as students become involved in our student government. I would also like to see S.G.A. officers become involved with students. If student and officers do their part, we can reach the moon in no time at all.

Best wishes to you and yours Mr. Browder.

Let Them Eat Cake!

I am one of many young men who, because of pressing financial responsibilities, is forced to work some forty hours a week plus take a full course load. Most of us who work are forced to order our supper through food service by way of Mom's Truck Stop patrons; the food at Mom's is hardly worthy of comment. On top of this we are only allotted $1.25 for the not pleasant experience of eating snack bar food, thereby cutting down on menu alternatives.

This week I confronted Mr. Clark, a food service representative whom we students are working to employ, about the dilemma working students were facing. I expressed concern over being limited to a daily diet of greasy hamburgers, potato chips, and worm-eaten apples. I pointed out to Mr. Clark that working students were certainly not getting enough vitamins and experiencing severe decreases in weight, upset stomachs and mounting frustration as a result of these juvenile meals.

Mr. Clark told me, and I quote, "You are lucky to be getting what you are getting." Mr. Clark refused to give the working students a choice in our daily meals.

This is shocking! Then again, it is not. This only reinforces a concept that is implicit within all American Institutions; the poor pay more for their goods and services than do the rich. I pay the same board bill as any other full time student, yet my cost greatly outweighs my benefits. The students that don't have to take on a part-time job to survive in this institution can get two - three choices at supper and eat to their hearts content, where as the poor working student is subject to an imbalanced and improper meal.

So if some of you poor students are forced to look for work in the near future, don't expect nothing from food service. Forget it, man! You don't count! As far as Food Service is concerned, if you fit into the proletariat class your meals are minor and you dare not question it. Mr. Clark implies that the minority of us that are poor in this College should be thankful for the distasteful crumbs we do get! Right on Mr. Clark, you are just the man this college needs (smile).

George Wants To Join You!

To the Editor:

George McGovern was speaking out about our involvement in Vietnam in 1963. He has been speaking out ever since—about the war (even though he is not going to be drafted), about bringing the military industrial complex under control, about conversion of defense spending to peacetime use, and about poverty in the United States.

Now McGovern needs help. Ohio with 153 delegates to the presidential convention is a key state. McGovern needs to win in this state. He can't do this without help.

More than $350.00 has been raised in Wooster in the past several weeks for his campaign. In addition to this some townspeople have been sending him $10.00 a month for more than a year. Eight or ten College of Wooster students and a few townspeople have been going door-to-door handing out literature for McGovern in Wooster on these past two weekends.

THIS IS NOT GOOD ENOUGH FOR MCGOVERN TO WIN. A HUNDRED PEOPLE WILLING TO GO DOOR-TO-DOOR in Orrville, Canton, and Massillon are needed during the weekday and on these next two weekends.

If you were planning to go on the peace march, perhaps this might be a more effective way of spending your time and money for peace.

McGovern urgently seeks your help. Put your name on the sign up sheet in Lowry Center, or call Bill and Betty Whitmore at 345-7004.

Sincerely,
Betty Whitmore

What It Is

Dear Editor:

Congratulations! One VOICE (March 31) - One year at Ewing. That issue was all it took to contradict almost everything we have tried to stand for here at school in India. Advertisements for "instant term-papers," or examination questions for two rupees in the bazaar—it's all the same thing! Our only question is "What do we use for an example of "moral integrity, self-respect, and student responsibility," if our old school condones—cheating?" (That's what it is, isn't it?)

It's That Time Again . . .

By Charlie Lindner

Woosterites are back at that favorite of all springtime pastimes, revising the SGA. As in the past, SGA leadership has failed to identify the basic governmental problem—community control.

A quick survey of the College's power structure reveals an autocratic governmental structure. Every action of campus governmental units is subject to the approval of the Board of Trustees, a body that is not receptive to a changing COW. Because of their narrow perspective, any controversial proposal is doomed to be compromised and diluted until acceptable to the values, interests, and priorities of the Board.

Neither SGA nor Campus Council has ever submitted a proposal that would either challenge the make-up of the power structure or the values of the Board. This year Campus Council maintained this proud tradition by diluting student proposals for full 24 hour visitation rights to an extension of visitation on weekends to 3 AM - but probably 2 AM.

The newest SGA proposals will not offend the sensitivities of the board, as they carefully ignore the issue of community control. An exceedingly myopic analysis of the campus power situation has led the new SGA leadership to identify Campus Council as the source of campus power problems. SGA proposes to shift the power to allocate student fees from Campus Council to SGA. Such an action is a horizontal power shift that will be divisive and result in an aggregate power increase of zero. Furthermore, student activities fees amount to about 1% of the $3600 students fork out to the college. Of that grand 1%, the vast majority is a predetermined allocation to organizations such as LCB, which have substantial yearly budgets. Clearly, such a change is an exercise in futility.

Members of this campus community have incessantly been frustrated in their attempts to bring about change. Working from a powerless position through power-oriented channels has proven to be futile. The remaining option is to desert the system and employ tactics most of us are reluctant to consider.

Reconciliation of this situation can only come from a drastic revision of the power structure that leads to effective community control. Campus governing units should be joining together to end the futile frustration of working through channels by changing the channels. Evidently SGA has opted for horizontal power shifts rather than significant structural revisions. This being SGA's choice, the autocratic system will remain and community control will continue to be something you read about in a sociology class.

Notes From the Midnight Rider

By Randy Luvaas

Friday night. Datenight U.S.A. The end of another week of school and the beginning of yet another weekend of Wooster. Time for the campus to do its Famous Magic Act and disappear. All the students who frequent the oaklined walks during the week are gone—they have left town, holed up in their rooms for a little studying or more serious activities, or gone to the Movie. Deciding to play the campus cowboy, I begin a detailed search of the premises to determine exactly what Friday night at Wooster is.

First stop, Lowry Center. Thirty-one people are bowling, another fifteen playing pool, and still another fifty are huddled over the pinball machines. A few are still checking their mailboxes—

God knows for what—and a few more are enjoying the relaxing atmosphere of the Pit. One fellow buys some Dentine—apparently he has a date or something.

Proceeding to the Shack, I discover another group of eight guys listening to Grand Funk and slurping on a cold Pabst. One of them is talking so loud that the other customers cannot even hear Mark Farner's screams over his story. All of them have doubtlessly heard it fifty times before, anyway, so they are content to sit and play with their empty pretzel bags.

Next, I visit the roof of the chapel, always a hot spot. Sure enough, I have stumbled onto something here. A solitary figure stands looking out over the edge. As I approach him, he asks me, "What color does this wall look like to you?" I see there is no sense in staying around here! We are in different worlds.

Two hundred people pour out of the movie, spread out over the whole campus, and vanish from sight within three minutes. They are replaced by two hundred more who come out of nowhere and disappear into Mateer, clutching their quarters and secure in the feeling that this is something to do.

A car full of guys from town drive by in a '66 Dodge whose back bumper is raised a full six feet off the ground. I can see by the gleam of their hair that they mean business, so I head back into Lowry. The people who were checking their mail before are now trying to decide on what kind of candy they want. Two of the guys I saw in the Shack before float in, one of them doing an interesting bit of footwork and ramming the wall with his head. I guess he enjoyed the Pabst, and probably didn't mind the wall too much either.

Nearly ten o'clock—my, how time can fly. Back to the dormitory, and into a dark room with fifteen people sitting in a circle watching a candle. Between records, I hear someone outside smash a bottle against the sidewalk and yell, "Sigs Stink." Finally, after two hours, the candle is gone, and a group decided to go to the Shack for some beer. On the way down we pass another one of the guys who was there earlier, standing in the middle of the street and trying to light a cigarette on the wrong end.

REVIEW:

Auditory Deja Vu

By Evan

The music of this British group is a maze of musical corridors, each one chock-full of surprises. With much of their work you get a feeling that you've heard it all somewhere before - sort of an auditory de ja vu. Yet the music never fails to excite me because it's like a rich and detailed tapestry; the more you look at it, the more complex it becomes and the more there is for you to see. It is a beautiful, often mind-expanding trip through the maze and when you reach its end the overwhelming feeling is - go back and do it again. You're bound to hear something new.

The Yes didn't just pop out of the ground overnight, however. The original group was conceived and put together in a London basement in 1968. Four years and four albums later, we find the finished product. Along the way there have been many changes.

Much of the reason why The Yes' first two albums failed to set the world on fire was due to substandard engineering and production. With the addition of producer/arranger Eddy Offord (who also produces Emerson, Lake & Palmer) that problem has been alleviated.

On their third effort, cleverly entitled, The Yes Album, the group displays some of the tightest arrangements and fine musicianship that one can hear. The extended cuts on this album (Yours Is

No Disgrace - Starship Trooper - Perpetual Change) are all nine minute masterpieces of interweaving melodies, abrupt tempo changes and counter-rhythms. The group has the remarkable ability to place two sounds side by side which ordinarily would never go together. While all their music is composed of a myriad of different sounds, there is nothing improvisational about their work. Every cut has been blueprinted and is done to perfection.

While each of the five group members are distinct entities, they always manage to blend into a delicious stew of rhythms and tasteful licks. Every member of the group contributes something special.

Drummer Bill Bruford does much more than pound-out a steady beat. He is the traffic coordinator for all the sudden shifts in tempo which characterize most the Yes' music.

Steve Howe is probably one of the most under-rated guitarists in the business. His acoustic picking is particularly impressive. All of the little riffs he so frequently throws into a song are little diamond chips of sound, greatly enhancing the composition as a whole. He is also a fine soloist, as can be heard on The Clap from The Yes Album and Mood For A Day from the Fragile album. Jon Anderson's voice is as much of an instrument as Howe's guitar and he uses

A Member of the Wedding

by Chuc

What can you say about a 45 year old woman dancing the "pregnant penguin", wearing her 18 hour girdle over her navy blue stretch pants?!? Being a member of the wedding means never having to say you're sorry?

Such was the scene at the reception of one of Wooster's wildest marriages, and it may lend some insight into the whys and wherefores of the generation gap. I attended the wedding and "la Fiesta" that followed with a Wooster friend: Mother Goose. (No, the bride's name was not Snow White as one of my fellow VOICE staffers wondered) - and if you don't believe it just ask one of the F-Sectionites who have relayed her helpful hints concerning YMCA inferno's and messages from home to me. Mother Goose is alive and living, and boy is she living!!!

We had lunch at the Green Leaf and over chippy cheeses discussed her husband's Georgia (golf) junket and my sister's latest grounding - she knows more about my family than I do! So, just to get even we called home and found my mother busily planning a trip to Cedar Point, my father's third baseball game snowed out, and my sister still grounded.

Then it was on to the church. The first person we met was a friend of M.G.'s named Pearl. We three encountered the caretaker of the institution who within the short span of the wedding gained some lovely pseudonyms: "nice" lady, staff sergeant in World War II, and "somebody who needs taking care off!" Her crabby attitude unimpressed a lot of the guests - so I gathered. The ceremony itself was informal, a la 'Love Story' you might say with only a few distractions.

While M.G. and Pearl were trying on each other's shoes, the mother of the bride turned around and asked us if we thought "they served drinks here."

M.G. asked me if I noticed the Maid of Honor. I replied that I dug her dress. "You mean her undress," she laughed.

Finally when we finished our tour of the chapel, M.G. and I ran into the caretaker again. "This place is restricted", she informed us. "You're gonna be rated X if you don't get off our backs," M.G. replied and we drove to the reception.

There are a lot of interesting people at wedding receptions and this was no (ex)ception! Retired policemen with their vinyl booted wives, roly-poly businessmen in high waisted gabardine, and a large assortment of great aunt types. M.G. and I went straight to the basement and the booze! We located a stereo and soon the music was flowing as fast and free as the liquor.

It was here I met Peg, the sister of the mother of the bride who would (see the beginning of article) eventually let it all hang out. She told me her hobby was dirt - not filth, the sandy and peatmoss kind.

Then there was the nervous woman who, surveying the rompin' stompin' party, told me not to go away with a bad impression of "the older generation." That was the farthest thing from my mind! In fact, I was more than happy to see the over thirty set get down.

The comparison I'll make now is with the "happening" (so called) we threw Friday for Paul Sebron who was elected to Campus Council. We required less booze, and a little more music - a thanx to Robin for the two extra speakers - but our party was hearty just the same.

Instead of girdles and stretch pants, there were hot pants and maxi's, and Spanish, German, Urban Studies and Lit majors were our "members of the wedding". All I could find to play at the reception was a 'Supremes Golden Hits' album, while Friday's happening sounded every thing from 'Carole King' to 'War' - with special mention to "Hay Hay Que Fiebia Hay - Jungle Fever" (that's what they'd like us to believe . . .) The adults gravitated toward the Funky Chicken while we were moving on with the Scorpio and the Crawl. (Uh-huh huh!)

The atmospheres of the two events were remarkably similar, however. The object was Fun, to celebrate, and it proved to me that the word 'Party' transcended the barriers of age.

The last thing I remember about the reception was M.G.'s joke "Did you hear the one about the couple who decided to go to the same motel for their 50th wedding anniversary, the same town, room and everything; only this time the husband was the one who locked himself in the bathroom and cried." Ha! Ha! Actually, considering the fifth of Mchainten's Scotch we shared I was lucky to jot down the punch line and M.G. was lucky to recall the joke! Indeed it'll be one wild wedding I'll remember.

Evaluation Of Section Initiation Activities By ISC

Summaries of all segments represented at the initiation evaluation meeting on April 13 were included in the report submitted to Council. About half the pledges felt that unity could be achieved by means other than those employed presently. "All said that they would work through the Section and that reform from the ISC, Campus Council or the Deans' was not desirable." A Fifth Section pledge believed that most criticisms of Fifth were "not true."

Observers, two for each Section, concurred "that there must be a better way to build pledge class unity and getting the pledges to know the Section."

ISC was unable to review the specific initiation plans that were given to Council, the Deans and Dr. Startzman due to their late submission.

Seven goals were outlined in the report's conclusion: ISC encourages individual intra-Section evaluations; measures should be taken to prevent infringements of non-Section members; "unnecessary inter-Section derision should be discouraged;" the observation procedure should be broadened and defined; time spent on initiation should include preparation; guidelines should be explained to pledges and actives; and, finally, "the ISC will strive for a more realistic identity of the Sections on campus."

The meeting was opened for discussion after the presentation of the report and Ted Williams' memo.

ISC President Dave Berkey said that by nature Sections are defensive. He also claims that if Sections had their own way, there would be no guidelines.

Jim Hyman thought that people were questioning ISC's credibility. It follows in the footsteps of the Mens' Activities Board (MAB), he pointed out. The MAB did nothing, he claims, and the ISC "is a viable organization."

Charles Lindner charged Sections with "perpetuating closed attitudes" including "institutional racism." He described Hell Week as an initiation into a closed mind. Sections, he feels, should not exist on campus.

Addressing himself to Lindner's comments, Hyman noted that many groups on campus without initiation are guilty of institutional racism.

Tom Woodward, responding to Hayden Schilling's question asking the rationale for Hell Week, said that it acquaints pledges with fellow pledges and actives, unifies the pledge class and during initiation the actives' "true colors show." A pledge, he elaborated, can see which active will be a "bastard or will look-out for you."

Schilling feels that tradition is an insufficient basis for retaining Hell Week. He also said, in response to an observation by Berkey, that there is no value in sacrificing one's individuality to enter a Section.

Peter Havholm suggested that any unity derived from Hell Week was only temporary. A Fourth Section active disagreed, saying that initiation "breaks the ice between people" and that artificial unity grows into permanent friendships.

Hyman, while saying that he did not see much value in Hell Week, felt that it is wrong to pin racism only on Sections. Programmed houses operate along the same lines as Sections, he noted. Council also received "more flak" from units other than Sections on the racial clauses in social codes. Finally, he objected to people who, in "total ignorance," wish to abolish initiation because of their principles, totally disregarding the fact that pledges want to go through Hell Week.

Some people pledge Sections, Barry Roop remarked, not for social reasons, but to secure better housing facilities.

Council will continue discussion of Hell Week in closed executive session next Tuesday at noon. The regular public session will deal with the Human Relations Commission and the Social Code at 4 p.m. in Lowry 119.

Proposed SGA Amendments

We the Executive Committee of the New Student Government Association have endorsed the following recommended amendments to the S.G.A. Constitution. In keeping with the belief that S.G.A. must function for the students and by the students, we feel that these changes will increase the effectiveness without diminishing the quality of representation in student policy-making. We, therefore, submit these amendments to the student body for ratification. Ballots will be issued to each student by Monday, April 24.

Amendments to the current S.G.A. Constitution

Article II. Central Committee—Eliminate

Article III. Change to Student Senate

1. The Student Senate shall be composed of representatives from each of the housing units. The representatives shall be elected by each housing unit. The number from each unit shall be specified in the By-laws.

By-laws

6. The Student Senate

The housing units having representatives shall be the following:

1. Andrews—one representative
2. Armington I, II, III—three representatives
3. Babcock—one representative
4. Bissman VI, VII, VIII—three representatives
5. Compton—one representative
6. Douglass—one representative
7. Holden Annex and Wing, New, and Main—three representatives
8. Kenarden—two representatives
9. Stevenson IV, V—two representatives
10. Wagner—one representative
11. Westminster/Scot, and Miller—one representative
12. Crandell, Gable, and Kieffer—one representative
13. Lewis, Myers, and Bechtel—one representative
14. Slater, Kate, and Hart—one representative
15. Culbertson, Bontrager, and Dunn—one representative
16. Off-campus—one representative

Each set of off-campus houses shall elect three representatives, one from each house, for the purpose of electing or determining procedure of election for that sets' Senate representative.

2. The Student Senate shall be divided into four sub-committees for the purpose of enhancing legislative effectiveness. Each subcommittee will be chaired by one of the student at-large members of Campus Council, except the Academic Affairs Committee which will be chaired by the Vice-President of S.G.A.
3. The purpose of the Student Senate shall be the following:
  - a. To appoint the following:
    1. Chairmen of all S.G.A. standing committees
    2. Student representatives to faculty committees
    3. Student members of Judicial Board
    4. Student members of Publications Committee
  - b. To adopt a final annual budget for S.G.A., upon recommendation of Cabinet
  - c. To represent student opinions to Campus Council, the faculty, and the Administration, and to legislate recommendations concerning any issue by a majority vote of those present.
  - d. To conduct all S.G.A. elections, surveys, and reference and to tabulate the results.
  - e. To initiate legislation either as a sub-committee or as a large assembly. Any legislation introduced shall be passed if a majority of those present approves it either in a large assembly or by a tally of votes taken at sub-committee meetings.
  - f. To implement communication between the students and the faculty and administration.
  - g. To encourage student involvement in programming, policy-making and standing committee capacities.

Principle Concept of Senate

The Senate shall be a democratically operated student legislature in which the voting constituency can be represented according to a fixed number of representatives elected from each designated geographical location. The principle being that the size of the Senate can be small enough to facilitate efficiency without expending reasonably accurate representation. This can be accommodated by one student representative elected from and responsible to each area. Holden will have three representatives as Annex and Wing constitute one living area and New and Main constitute two. All off-campus student houses would have a total of five representatives. There being fifteen houses which can be divided into five designated groups of three in which each group elects one representative. The Senate would have a total of twenty-three representatives with the President voting in the event of a tie. With this size, the Senate, unlike the General Assembly, would be able to meet regularly as a whole to discuss issues and perform its legislative responsibilities. Each Senate session will be publically announced and will be open to the entire student body. News Service will cover each Senate meeting and a Senate Newsletter accounting for the Senate's actions will be printed and distributed regularly to the student body. Any student will be able to introduce legislation in the Senate personally or through his or her representative.

Finally, we urge all students to support this amendment as we feel it is vital if S.G.A. is to function for the students.

Marchers Demand Bombing Halt

Peggy Duff will speak on "Vietnam and the P.O.W.'s: 1972" on April 27 at 8:00 p.m. in Lean Lecture Room. This lecture is sponsored by the Current Issues Committee and everyone is invited. Peggy Duff has been a peace activist for many years and is now the Executive Secretary of the International Confederation for Disarmament and Peace, an independent non-aligned organization of peace movements. She also worked in 1957-1959 with Bertram Russell in the development of the campaign for Nuclear Disarmament and served as the General Secretary for C.N.D. She has just returned from a trip to Hanoi.

NEW YORK (CPS) -- Mass marches calling for the end of the Indochina war, a stop to the bombing and U.S. troops out of Southeast Asia will be held April 22 in New York and Los Angeles, according to the National Peace Action Coalition.

The same organization organized the April 24, 1971, March on Washington, which turned out nearly half a million people.

The marches were planned Feb. 27 by 700 young people attending the National Student Antiwar Conference in Washington Irving High School.

The New York march will assemble at 10 a.m. at Central Park West and 72nd Street, and march 30 blocks south to a rally opposite Bryant Park.

According to the action proposal adopted at the conference, "Our peace plan has one point and it's no secret: Immediate, total, unconditional withdrawal of all U.S. troops, planes, bombs and material from Indochina. OUT NOW!"

"The only way that this will be brought about," the proposal continues, "and the war ended is through a massive mobilization of the American people."

The proposal discounts criticisms of mass marches by saying, "we are the movement that in May of 1970 took over the universities of this country and forced the United States to withdraw troops from Cambodia. We are the movement which kept Nixon from sending U.S. troops into Laos last February. We are the movement which has kept the United States military from exercising a totally free hand in SE Asia. We are the movement which American GIs look to, to bring them home from Vietnam and which the Vietnamese people look to, to help end the destruction of their country. We are the movement which is going to bring this war to an end."

The students were also asked to identify, in order of priority, "the three main issues candidates should discuss in the 1972 Presidential Election." The Vietnam War and related issues (e.g., the draft, peace and withdrawal, amnesty, prisoners of war) shared high priority with the economy (e.g., jobs, tax reforms, budget, inflation). Considerable interest in ecology (e.g., environment, pollution, overpopulation) was also indicated.

Vietnam War	29.9%	17.2%	10.1%
Economy	26.2	19.2	13.6
Ecology	5.7	8.0	26.6

Students at The College of Wooster appear similar to national samples of college students in their preferences for Independency and the Democratic Party. There is a slightly greater favoring by Wooster students of the Presidential candidates commonly identified as "liberal" than occurs in recent Gallup polls. The difference between Wooster students and all registered 18 to 20 year olds is in the same direction, but of greater magnitude.

continued from page one negotiated settlement of the war on all fronts. . . Let me begin by dismissing as almost wholly irrelevant the very modest increase Mr. Nixon announced in the troop withdrawal rate. Even if it were to continue through 1972 . . . leaving only a residual ground force by election day, there is still the likelihood of heavy American participation in an air war against North Vietnam . . . And so long as that continues, there will be no peace in Indochina—and no return of our prisoners of war?"

Senator Hartke was one of the Congressional supporters of the mass march on Washington against the war on April 24, 1971. His office was open for assistance during the November 15, 1969 moratorium.

On the issues, Hartke has voted for the Cooper-Church amendment to end U.S. involvement in Cambodia, against SST funding, and for the Mansfield Troop Withdrawal amendment.

He is the author of three books and has sponsored legislation in the areas of Adult Education, Railroad and Highway Safety, Educational Television, Pension Re-adjustment, and Social Securities.

it equally as well. Jon is one of the founding members of The Yes and is responsible for most of the lyrics. His voice can soar ethereally into the clouds or purr breathily into your ear. He has the perfect voice to add to the other-worldliness of the music.

Rick Wakeman is the newest member of The Yes. He is responsible for much of the classical flavor in the group's music. An extremely versatile keyboard man, Wakeman excels on mellotron and Moog synthesizer as well as piano, organ and harpsichord.

Rounding out The Yes is bassist and co-founder Chris Squire. He can aptly be described as the force that binds the band together into the tight, technically superb group it has become. His shifting bass lines hop about, leading the listener into every recess of the musical maze.

Fragile, the latest endeavor by The Yes, is certainly one of the better and more innovative albums to come out so far this year. Unlike The Yes Album, whose songs were mostly group oriented, many of the cuts on this album are individual showcases for the talents of a particular group member. The big hit single off the album - Roundabout - was butchered for the benefit of Top Forty radio, who were wary of its eight and a half minute length. As good as the shortened version was, the album cut is light years ahead of its single counterpart. The song dominates side one and casts its flavor on the whole album. It skips, slips and slides from one time signature to another, but the thread of continuity remains unbroken. The Yes really bring this song home in fine fashion. It's funky, it's sweet, it is everything in between and more.

We Have Heaven is Jon Anderson's solo contribution to the album. On this cut he has over-dubbed five different vocals and woven them into the song. The results are astounding. Even more pleasing is the tiny bit of We Have Heaven which pops

On the way back we are engulfed by the second shift of movie-goers on their way out, and after being carried along by the exodus for a couple minutes, we find ourselves alone once more. I glance up at the chapel and see two more people on the roof, still probably debating the real color of the wall. One of them is playing a harmonica, perhaps auditioning for the Gene Carroll Show. I silently wish him luck and go back to my room. The usual crowd is in the lounge watching television, and someone is downstairs beating a quarter out of the food machine. up at the very end of side two as a kind of refrain. Well thought out little gems like that are what make an album special for me. About the only thing on the album which fails to excite me is Cans And Brahms, which consists of extracts from Brahms' Fourth Symphony in E Minor. This cut is arranged and for the most part played by keyboard man Wakeman, who replaced former Yes-man Tony Kaye just before the Fragile recording session. The only plusses going for this cut are its brevity and the fact that Wakeman seems to be enjoying himself immensely on this endeavor. My own personal favorite on this album is Chris Squire's The Fish. Squire has also tracked four or five different bass lines and blended them into a composite, complete with all his little rhythms, riffs and runs. After you listen to this song a few times you'll almost be able to see The Fish, slowly undulating its way through the water.

With the release of Fragile, The Yes establish themselves as more of an orchestra than just a talented band. It will be interesting to see in what musical direction the group will head next.

Woosterites Sail To Second

Wooster's newest, and probably least recognized team put up a very commendable performance in their first intercollegiate event. The Wooster Sailing Club, which is the only coeducational team on campus, took second place at the Ohio University invitational regatta last weekend.

Defeating stiff competitors such as Ohio State, Cincinnati, Bowling Green, John Carroll, Ohio U., and Kent State, skippers Ron Boehm, Dave Macdonell and Tom Price missed taking first by less than 2 points. The races were sailed on a cold weekend, April 8 and 9, on Burr Oak Lake. The boats used were 13'6" "Flying Juniors".

Saturday's races began under windy conditions, with the temperatures hovering just above the freezing mark. The Wooster team warmed up with Dave Macdonell's 2nd and 3rd in the first tow races in A Division. Then Wooster's Ron Boehm proved his abilities with a 2nd and a 1st in B Division. Dave Macdonell followed with a 5th and 7th. Ron Boehm then trounced the competition with two 1st's, to leave Wooster in 2nd place overall after the first day of the regatta. Pat Dutcher, Chuck Booth and Bunny Major crewed the races on Saturday.

Sunday was clear, warmer, and windless. Wooster stood out the first two races, with "byes". Only two more races were sailed because of the failing wind and Wooster scored a 7th and a 1st place. Tom Price and Ron Boehm sailed the races on Sunday, crewed by Bob Brannan and Sue Pignolet. This was enough to give Wooster 2nd place, nosed out of first by Miami University. Ron Boehm received a glass bottom mug for best skipper in B Division.

four more regattas scheduled for this season. This weekend they sail at Ohio Wesleyan.

These three young men just made the discovery of a lifetime. The oldest is 34.

Remember when a young man could get ahead in business simply by growing old? It was a good system for those with a little talent and a lot of patience, but today's technology moves too fast to wait for seniority.

At Kodak, our extensive involvement in basic research has made the need for fresh, young thinking more pressing than ever. So we hire the best new talent we possibly can. Then we do both of us a favor by turning them loose on real problems, and giving them the freedom and responsibility they need to solve them.

That's how three Kodak scientists in their early thirties just made a breakthrough in liquid lasers, developing an organic dye laser with a continuous beam. Their discovery means more than just a new kind of laser. It means a whole range of new laser applications, in fields from medicine to communications.

It was the kind of discovery most men work a lifetime for. Yet these young men still have most of their lifetimes ahead of them.

Why do we give young men so much freedom and responsibility? Because it's good business, and we're in business to make a profit. But in furthering our own business interests, we also further society's interests. And that's good.

After all, our business depends on society. So we care what happens to it.

More than a business.
