OUR Wooster-in-India

EVER SINCE THS war started, the American public has been asked to contribute to the Indian war effort, and backgrounds of students suffering or to quench our thirst. We have been U.S.O. directors, Army and Navy Relief drives, and many other noble efforts to raise money to help our worthy cause.

Each time the American public has responded generously. There have been moments when many of us felt that we could not give more, but somehow we have always managed to scrape a few more dollars together and give them to this worthy cause.

During this time there is a drive for funds taking place on this campus that, in its own small way, will help relieve suffering and quench our urgent thirst.

The Big Four is endeavoring to raise $1700 by student and faculty pledges. To many students, this sums up the extraordinary effort of another dollar to make some easy money. Many students find that the “Wooster-in-India” idea is a dull one.

These students are truly the model. The “Wooster-in-India” idea is not a dull idea but a living, dynamic idea rather than a mere thing of the past or even before.

Today Norins, our representative in India, is being called upon to meet more difficult situations than he has ever been called upon to meet before.

The very essence of India is being threat-
ed. All the advances in education, combating disease, and establishing schools has been made during the past years are being threatened by both internal and external men-taces.

Yet men like Norins are working to thwart these menaces. They are trying to make life better for their fellow men.

Norins has accepted, along with his teaching job, the task of helping the American students understand the situation that has been done outstanding work in his endeavor to make life better for his fellow men. He is a man that we all admire, a man that we all respect.

Therefore, the Wooster students have decided to do our part in this war effort. We have decided to raise some $1000 for the Big Four by giving to the “Wooster-in-India” idea.

There are not enough on the open floor of the student body for the boys, but loads of sitting behind the doors just the same.

The Students in the Union are ready to work hard to make this idea a success.

The Wooster in India

Wooster Students are too much engrossed in the current world situation to be interested in anything else. The idea of a “Wooster in India” has become a reality.

Paul Finefrock Wins First Voice Football: Notre Dame's Tie Game Football Fools Most Fans

With the last burst of the scores from Saturday's big game, the bell for Notre Dame's 13-0 victory over the Wolverines could be heard all across the country. Meanwhile, the Wolverines were also celebrating their first victory of the season. The game itself was a classic, showcasing the strengths of both teams. Notre Dame, with its usual defense, shut down Michigan's offense, while the Wolverines relied on their running game to move the ball. The game was decided in the fourth quarter with a field goal from Notre Dame's kicker. The victory moved Notre Dame to 2-2 on the season, while Michigan fell to 1-3.

Women's Athletics

by Lois Wilson

The Women's Athletics Department at the university has a new director, Virginia Byram, who is responsible for overseeing the entire program. The department has undergone some changes in the past year, and Byram is working to improve the overall experience for female athletes. She has implemented new programs to support athletes, including a mentorship program and a fitness center. The department has also seen an increase in participation in recent years, with more women choosing to participate in sports.

Fifth, Second, Kept Understated Records

The winning team in the recent football game was led by the30-0 score. The team's record now stands at 1-2, but this is only the beginning of their season. The team has several important games upcoming, and they will need to continue to perform at a high level to secure a winning record. The team's offensive line has been a key factor in their success, allowing the quarterback ample time to make accurate throws.

CONTEST RULES

Texas Petroleum Engineer Speaks To Geology Club

Last Monday evening Mr. Edward J. Frutchey, petroleum engineer, and representative of the oil business in this city, addressed the members of the Geology Club. The meeting was held in the Classroom of the Student Union. The meeting was opened by President George Rolph (1940), junior in Geology, and the minutes of the last meeting were read by Dr. Kettie O. Bruce, secretary of the club. The club's business was then transacted, and a vote was taken on the student's annual dues. The proposition was carried. The meeting adjourned at 7:05.

Dr. Leonard N. Frost, President of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, was the speaker of the evening. He spoke on the subject of "Geology of Texas," and the members of the club were extremely interested in his talk. The meeting was closed by President Rolph (1940), who expressed his gratitude to Dr. Frutchey for the interesting and informative talk he had given to the club.

Dr. Frutchey spoke very well in front of the Geology Club members and the audience was very much interested in what he had to say. The meeting adjourned at 7:10.
