Spring Formal

N' SPRING formal, the official so- "cial event of the season for the students of Wooster, is a ball held at a knows many students realize that they themselves are not required to attend. Yet many wonder how many students realize that there was a decision of the spring formal to be de- clared a "no".

We should hasten to rail "cruising" but that we do not mean that all going to a formal is really going to the woods and make it so

Yesterday when the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors were voting for their student repre- sentatives, a paper was placed on the desk for them to vote on. It was a "no" formal. Their attention was not particularly called to it, and many students passed by. The last was placed on the bulletin board outside the dining room last night and secured exactly two signatures.

The debate was not of much and larger groups at $1.25 each so they can break even on them and they are quite probably in being aware of plugging into a losing position.

However, we think the students would be more interested in the student government, the dance question, and in the cafeteria, and as student interest and should be of fair prejudice.

Union Bands

S'EVERAL weeks ago the off-campus fresh- men's girls arranged for a band from Louis- ville, Ohio, to play at their formal Saturday evening, March 27. Since then they have en- countered quite a bit of difficulty because their band is not available and the campus has a union argument and is used to hiring only union bands.

But the state of suspense still exists and we would be afraid to predict the outcome. The band may be able to play but they can hardly break it out any time they choose, they are also very hotly opposed to their being a fair price.

On the other hand the agents threaten to keep the band away unless they can suffix a non-union band play here. This is the sparrow-lever from both situations. Just how real their threat is we cannot say.

We think the union hasn't much to worry about though they are in a minority, and as far as the girls are concerned, we would not be just a good and it has been decided.

The future is only the past again," with the formal invites from Doctor's Day or more important perspectives of the campus student social life.

The sections are, however, making brave steps, and Friday night from 5:30 to 11:00 the EIGHTH SECTION will be building one of its last stands for the year. Our section (formerly M. I. M.) has broken into its weekly discovery again. We should perhaps mention the Hung Formal, the Hung Informal and Poynter party of last week.

The Seeoo Night that is being held now Wednesday, seems to be the only opportunity for a few bright stars to contribute. This exhibition should be well attended. The weather remains much better than it was last week. The baseball games are scheduled for tonight. The fans are not too fond of the fare, but they will give the game a check. The Section will come through with a good team.

The Section is in no rush to win, and the Section will come through with a good team. They have been in training and have the feeling that Section has a good team. This Section is a new and different one. The power is not so strong this year, and there is a chance for a few surprises.
