Bundy, Krock Cite Princeton
In Federal Aid Controversy

The Princeton University administration has disclosed that over one-half of Princeton's $4,800,000 budget comes from direct federal government grants.

McGeorge Bundy, Special Assistant to President Kenedy, says that Princeton and "most other universities" have made a "serious" effort to get away from federal assistance.

Bundy argues that Princeton should have applied for a grant from the Office of Health Education and that, if accepted, the funds might have been used for experiments in new curriculum materials and student aid.

Several Princeton University presidents have expressed dismay over the federal government's support of private college programs.

Professor John H. Hervey, founder of the Princeton University in 1746, said that the federal government's support is "a violation" of the principles of American universities.

Bundy adds that the feds made an "unjustifiably large investment" in the federal grant program, which has forced private colleges to reduce their programs.

Bundy says that the federal government's support of private colleges is "an act of capitalism." He states that the federal government's support is a "threat to the freedom of education" and that
the federal government's support is "an affront to the principles of American univerities.

Bundy concludes that the federal government's sup-
port is "a violation" of the principles of American universities.

JFK Special Assistant Brooks Hays, U.N. President Khan Address Campus

Special Assistant to President Kennedy, Brooks Hays, will speak in the chapel on Wednesday, May 6, at 8:30 P.M. following the afternoon service at 4:30 in the Library of the United Nations.

President Khan of Pakistan will be on a speaking tour of Asia in the coming months, so he will be available at the UN.

President Khan's speech will take place at 12:30 P.M. on Thursday, May 7, in the University Center of the University of Pennsylvania.

Working in low and high positions in his home state of Arkansas, Mr. Hays became interested in the history of the South. After being called to Washington as an assistant to President Johnson, Mr. Hays was a member of the U.S. peace mission to Vietnam. He was appointed in 1947 to his first foreign mission.

Mr. Hays has served a major role in public and political af-airs since his graduation from George Washington University in 1922.

This evening we break a topic and a take a stand which causes fear and publishing will go up in our mid-sections: the defense of the Wheeling girls. We feel with the painful加热 弗兰克兰特的 roomy shapes that filter out of the state universites, how to many reporting, we rights of moral adventure. The when Siberian sisters discover among them the were to so any users, and blue, even a shame weapon. We think it is as white as any boys. What is that kind of woman is true of Wheeling women and the exemptions are far and for between. Take mobility. General female students, or true notations in fact that we believe it is a lie! for our girls, or for their superior and the most.1 aa, we will: a city of Charlestown. Breaders are reminded that the Voicer will print facsimile letters in the edition of all weeks. If we will print all letters except for some very near personal, we will do so, but we reserve the right to edit or correct any word or word, 200 words in length. Letters should be as short as a letter shot or the Voice officer, Student. Final copy, 10-15 p.m., of the Monday before publication. All letters should be given some consideration. Any print a pseudonym will be used if the letter is not signed.

Blushing Greenes

The Antioch College Record came in this week and in the recent student government can- not be much of a collection to some Wheeling students. In a com- pany talk a candidate suggested that he be one of the new presidents of the Antioch College. He said:

Two Spades or Love Among the Presidents

The Wheeling Girl.

At the same time that the Wheeling Steel announced their prices were increased, it was noticed that the stock market had recovered to its previous levels. In this period, the company had followed Wheeling's lead and raised prices to cope with the increasing costs. This decision would be seen by the Subcommittee on Reorganization as a crucial step in the process. The Subcommittee was set to meet on October 25th, which was the last day of the month. It was expected that the Subcommittee would make recommendations that would be considered by the Committee, which would then make its final decision. The Subcommittee's recommendations would have a significant impact on the company's future. The decision would be made public on the 27th, after the meeting had concluded.

The tempo is beginning to accelerate this week as plans are made for the upcoming meeting between the "Gentlemen Don" Baker and the "Challengers." King Column.

Wooster Bowling Association president and professor Reggie Min-nes announced in a press conference yesterday that the dual will be held at Wooster May 3, 2022, when the final site has not been selected. Baker is the only man in the field to ever consistently win a WBC match in a year.

Wooster has been holding pre-season matches in the Douglas split and has taken some steps towards a return to the Douglas.Ala., "In reply to the week's schedule of the College's Post-Laxman, one only wants to see King Color (Bad Dog) Turner to pay his insur-

"How would you think Turner?"

"I'm not sure he's on the right track."

"What of his ability to go far, that he has an edge on the football field?"

"I'm sure to make a touchdown in the least."

Seventh Leads Softball

The early games in the Kenosha Intramural Softball League indicate that the seventh team may give the tournament a run for its money. The seventh team is over the top in their play. The top team is not given a second thought. The seventh team is the team that is going to go the farthest. The seventh team is the team that is going to win the tournament. The seventh team is the team that is going to make it a close game. Lizo Analyzes Catalysts In Changing Africa

Among the many forces at work in changing Africa are nationalism, communism, technical development, and the cross-fertilization resulting from its new world-relationship. These forces are catalytic in that they continually generate new and cumulative forces that accelerate development, progress and change.

Nationalism

The most powerful and important force in Africa today is nationalism—this, just as in the United States. Perhaps more than all other forces combined, nationalism has awakened the African sense of pride and self-improvement, a sense of destiny and obligation, and an irreplaceable desire to work for the sake of their own people. This nation is nationalistic.

Communism

The import and influence of communism on the changes taking place in Africa are not obscure. That they are not necessarily evil, forced, or imposed is the hallmark of Africa. This, too, in a general way, makes it possible for the continent to maintain some of its independence.

The growth and spread of communism in Africa, like other causes, has been accompanied by both good and evil. The African has a right to know the truth about the influence of communism in Africa. The African has a right to know the truth about the influence of communism in Africa. This, too, in a general way, makes it possible for the continent to maintain some of its independence.

War

In the final analysis the Africans are as deeply involved in the communist cause in their continent as they are in any. As Nigeria—where after a few years of independence—now politically mature enough so that the leadership is able to change the political course of the continent. In Africa, many nations, making the continent a world of independent nations, are not likely to exchange their leaders for red masters. External pressure is mounting.

But Guina is becoming increasingly war. Even though the rebellion and civil war forced the country out of the country with its help or assistance from outside countries. But, with the country's peaceful liberation in 1964, Guina has been able to maintain its presence in the world and influence in the region.

And the communist movement is making deeper inroads. In the countries and parties of the continent which are controlled by the communists have become more widespread and powerful in their activities.

Russia

In the past, Africans have learned from the West and the Soviet Union, but in recent years, this has become less true. The countries of the Americas, including the United States, have become more isolationist in their policies.

Communist youths in all countries are being offered a new vision of the world. In the past, they have been taught to hate and to destroy. Now, they are being taught to build and to create.
