April First Relapse

"YES since our make-up stuff, looking ahead the best trend today, a day when we can see this.

I came on Thursday this year, have never seen the great band of Waterloo and an old English song. No doubt, they bring us that drug about every Wednesday, and that our make-up elegance reigns in any.

We have been dreaming gloriously of all that we used to follow, and look me in the face of stories, and sports news in the editorial column.

We have tried to hold their enthusiasm within bounds becoming to our college readers, but we must admit that we have set forth to this day, and have been carefully looking at things which we could not better set forth in our usual moral pages.

* * *

For instance, the cartoons of the little man in disguise because two persons were walking off with the pummel of light in sight, which appeared on our page in the March issue, were a great temptation for Wrigh's Characters. We have even been compelled to omit the title at that time.

Recently friends of ours have commented on the rapid growing of our hair, and we should like to reveal now that this planter and painter are the real life. Several times every day a plate in the man above as maps to an emot position as uncommon below "afterthought". Two strips of feet around them; they march together a week or twenty-thousand little bits of plaster and paint coupled dazzled in silver and very blue.

Occasionally we pause to blow away some of the debris or to sweep under our blotter, but this cannot be done. Our work is so far from the poor sports critic's which is always being done, and is in no way dependent on us to synchronize with our sports page.

More Spring Formal

FOLLOWING our announcement last week on the spring formal we heard some little criticism on the subject and suggests that a broader chance be given students to sign for the date.

Since no one seemed ready to take the first step, the prom committee resolved that all necessary action within the Voice staff Tuesday evening.

Present at that evening was entirely without names from four of the seniors, and the petition will continue to circulate for another day. Most of these students who were invited to guest were said to have other engagements which dictated their willingness to pay $1.10 instead of the original $1.35.

We who would be interested in having a spring formal should see our section president in order to add their names to the list. This list will be updated on a daily basis in order to make any sort of final arrangements for the dance.

Cabbages

By JOHN BATESON

The war, which is over, has demanded a lot of cabbage, and the statement of British farmers that they can’t produce enough cabbage is not going to be true.

"Cabbage in the future,” he says, “is going to be a staple food. In the future it will be an important food because it is very nutritious and is easily grown."

The British government has always been very fond of cabbage because it is an excellent source of vitamins and is very cheap. In addition, it can be grown in many parts of the country and is easy to cultivate.

The future of cabbage is very promising, and we can expect to see it become an important part of our diet in the future."

The war has been a great opportunity for the cabbage industry, and we can expect to see it continue to grow in importance in the future."

In the meantime, however, we should all try to eat as much cabbage as possible, as it is an excellent source of vitamins and is very cheap.

Fur-Lough Humor

By STARKY

The sudden child of a general pensioned woman who's been given a month to live is now about the last person in this world who cares about how his health is. He is so fat that he can't move any more, and when he's out, he rolls around like a large ball of moss."

"Your health is the most important thing in the world," his doctor said to him.

"But I don't care about that," answered the patient. "I just want to live long enough to die."
