I'm All Ears

It is with tears coursing down the typewriter that I write to you, the readers, that "I Am All Ears." Wounded, of course, that's just a bit of milk to spell out a word this week, we are all a bit short on news. But it looks good on the print and besides, it's traditionally a war time.

Out with the sun came Holden's famous flowers to expose winter white to his reigns in hopes of convincing people at home, that they spent the winter in Florida. The court, filled with a breezy winnowing wind, demanding the answer to Earl Carroll's prayer. But, for another side to the story, they leap. Jeanne San, Jan Reid, at Butch Chopful. And how could you miss?

Just so things wouldn't get subdued, published and published by returned soldiers Sunday eve, Ed Heldens' diamonde in his third force, left hand. Be wise, you wish! And further in the Cupid Column (absolute in Wine) Mr. Hull Burket, Our newest Platonic. Marine Mr. Ray Saunders, Your newest Platonic. Marine give with the liliprops, a shade of past days in these parts.

Back in our ranks is Jack Speyer after a siege of illness in Cleveland. Jack, inacobian, a welcome. Here on furlough was Tom Denis, Nth Section man, who is treated to sweet hospitably by all.

A Tribute: Au Shackle

The time-honored "blue smoke" atmosphere of the "Shack" has been lifted at last, the smoke and the war. The present population is predominantly feminine. The juicy boxes are less hindered by the box conversation, which is just as frequent but not so loud, with flows and trips, and Mrs. Planes are as endless as ever, with someone always on hand to fill in any use of a feminize has to go to class. Waitresses no longer trip, and the musty, employing肮空 empty coke glasses, but Bill still there with a word of the woody.

Uniforms appear now and then, with nothing glinting through the hat, a faint silhouette, gigantic little building appreading. A room of students集花), carrying on, leaving a peacquet san- in the hearts of all true WOOSTER teratia.

In Appreciation

This year to the poignancy of another approaching Commencement comes the added stress of deciding what to buy for the president (President Charles F. Wooster, to the non-Woosterites), who for twenty-five years has helped Wooster through its ups and downs. When Commence- ment arrives around on May 11th, the student body will be seeing in the graduating seniors in their gowns and caps, and looking at another due commencement. For the joy of the occasion.

We will be seeing the beloved, familiar figures of poetry. In thinking of his presidency addresses, no student ever misses her classmate's "Cawey At The Bat," by request, into which he could insist, in his matriculation way and without "being studied," a lesson on life and fair play.

We will remember, too, at this year, Sunday morning services, offi- cially sponsored, narrating "Mother Meeder," talking to the Tech and Little Sisters at Convention, or playing the "Love Song" at the Student-Staff Receptacle. We will all have our dinners and our memories—meeting Perry on the campus for the first time, as green Froshies, and stammering a confused "hello" to his always gregarious and glimmering self. As we slid down to the Red Cross bandstands in the Woosterian's recreation room.

The heart of Wooster must change as it progresses. Each year it must represent the dreams and dash of a new class, and only an end of a new class, to be unrolled. But this year must love a particularly vital part of the college. One who has her coming and classmate in her heart and she must certainly refresh a vacant place, but Perry's leaving creates a void which we shall not be able to fill. We hope we are saying only "to long" and "not goodby.

Shotgun Tactics

With the fervent hope that we will practice what we preach, we urge all you who must needs pass your examinations to Study Now or Forever Hold Your Peace.

We set forth the following considerations:

A. You know now that a week from today you will be busy, in fact every day, that you did not take yourself by hand earlier. You will wish with all your heart that someone had made you sit down with the book in front of you and nothing practical on line. To save you deep in your heart that once you begn the torturous task the follow- through won't be too tough.

B. You value your health. You don't want to drag home in a daze brought on by the demon caffeine and this is the right time to accept his wants to help spread the various gnomes that seem to gather around gleeful at early hours.

C. You can feel superior to your fellow classmates who will be wallowing in the mine of dependance. You can go to bed at an early hour, tell yourself you'll be late when you sleep, and you will, and know that one will make you do it. Are you going to risk your faltering self-esteem, this would appear to be a good plan.

D. And, only can, you bring this minor miracle about. You know that if it doesn't go well, you will not see him, and who will know, you will no one make you do it. Are you going to bring this challenge as a self-educated adult or are you going to ignore it?

A Note of Thanks

We of the new staff wish to express our grateful appreciation for the wonderful help given us by members of the old staff. They have been more than willing to help us in overcoming all the difficulties that crop up, and in avoiding them whenever possible. Our chief hope is that we will be able to carry on successfully all the journalistic traditions of the Voice.

Annoyed

I undersigned, by Beaver, have been very much engaged at the most important matters, and am therefore unable to give you the great satisfaction of answering your letter. But I must say that I have been very much occupied with the business of the country, and have no time to write to you. I shall, however, be glad to hear from you at any time. Very truly yours,

A. Beaver

It's a Date

In Betty Stuckslinger

What shall we talk about?

"I don't know," said the Prime Minister, as the car pulled out- side Septavest, Dewey had said anything. "I've seen too much, and I've read too much. "Not yet, dear, but we'll talk about it later," said the Prime Minster, "probably some form of street demonstrations," he added, "but the Prime Minister."

"You are by this morning's paper that there will be a "big thing" happening Friday night in South- ern Galpin," said the Prime Minister."

"Undoubtedly subversive," said the Prime Minister."

"I read in this afternoon's edition where the Woosterites are having some kind of a party. Friday Night, Sir, you are green from the top of your head to your toes." said the Prime Minister."

"It's a date," the King said.

COUNTER SHOOTS

FREEFLED RANDERS

One thing is sure in these un- certain days of April, that all of us that are old and that is that everyone is mighty tired of the free-floggers. And, here is the great news to give new life to water rats or perky, spring dancing from Freefledlanders. Then whether the day is rainy or not, you can find your own particular pleasure, and, comes a bright, happy morning and we'll be sure of your place, with you in your yellow coat and your red flannel shirt.

In the downtown tomorrow- morn and make yourself the proud owner of a particular eternity and this outstanding because of its brown eyes, and your hat to the top of your head. The jacket is trimmed in blue, and the matching shirt is the diagrammatically "cool." This attractive dress is made exactly so, by the stitching of border of circles that circ- les, and is to be purchased at the amazingly low price of $9.99.

Now for all an occasional dress for your spring home is the "boss" of the summer. What could be better than a white background item, with blue, blue and green shaded skirts, a plus a round neck, puffed sleeves and a blue buttons.

Last of all we bring into focus the "boss" of the summer. "boss" of the scallop neck line and sleeves for just 99.99.

A. Beaver

I don't know why, but the thought didn't occur to me. After I heard the request, I found myself in the summertime, but I'm not sure, only to be at the knok, so take advantage of it:

We wish you much health and happiness
Well, the last issue of this year's WOOSTER VOICE is out, and this is the last time this year anyone will be reading this column. This, the third year of the war, has seen radical changes in the Wooster campus. The Navy has taken over, subjects have changed, the paper went through many changes, but the sports schedule of Wooster went on as usual.

Last fall, Coach Johnny Swigart presented the college with all five professional football teams. It was a good team, a good coach, and a good win. But, oh! it was just that much better and the college ended up with two wins against five losses. The games were close, too close to lose, the team had spirit and punch, but just not enough to outdo the opponents.

It was the first time the college had ever been represented on the field by anything but students at the college, Swigart and Mose did a grand job with the boys, but it was not enough.

Next year a football team is in doubt. As things stand now, there will be no college sports at the Wooster campus, if any at all. The Navy has now got a local ruling forbidding the participation in any college sports at all, so that shoots the whole idea. On the other hand, it is a chance to be paid any rate, credit must be given John- ny and Mose for the hard work they put forth, getting a football team on the field. It was not an impressive season for the Scione, it was one that will be remembered.

After the football season, there came something that will not be forgotten for many years to come. That is, of course, the basketball season. The Navy ruling had gone into effect as to the use of cagers, so Coach was faced with the problem of putting a civilian team on the floor that could carry on for Wooster. As anyone here at Wooster will tell you, he did just that, and then some. The Five Iron Men, that's what they were known by. A fine man team, and it was one that made history.

Their schedule was only 11 games, and their record was 9 wins against 4 losses. It's not much to look at on paper, but it was really something to watch on the floor. The team was composed of two freshmen, two sophomores, and one charged soldier, that was all, but in many cases that was more than enough for the opponents.

This year also, the college broke a long standing precedent, by tak-Burton by presentation to "Musical Whimsies" by Daniel Parmele in the Quadrangle. An assembly and academic pro-cram in the Quadrangle will start Sunday morning activities. The Bechtolence Service is to be held in the Chapel, with President Wishart delivering the sermon. The afternoon forecasts a reception of seniors and their parents at the Wishart home, in addition to a concert by the Faculty of the Music Department in the chapel.

The Promenade and the Seventh-fourth Commencement exercises will be held on Monday, May 13, in the Quadrangle. At this time Harold R. Burton, United States Senator from Ohio, will deliver an address.

Y.W.C.A.
Candy, soft drinks, and other foods will be sold on Color Day by the Y.W.C.A. under the direction of Jane Stewart. The money will be used to send delegates to the General Conference which is scheduled for June 7-14 this year.

At the last meeting of the cab-net Margaret Shreve was appointed to formulate plans for the full reinact. She will work in coordination with the president, Margaret Ruth, on this project.

surprisingly enough, the trash-

Other announcements come from the various bands of chewing gum. It wouldn't be so bad if you could buy them. The old jule-box has broken down so often that I'd like to know where they're all coming from. "Bee-em's" at last had the good taste to change from the one starting with "I 'chose Berman's they had destroyed all liking for the product. And I was somewhat surprised to find myself on multiple occasions advising me to buy

Beechut gum by the pack. (Awk-

My savings about this per gage
