Red Cross Unit Organizes Here

A Red Cross Unit has recently been established here on campus. At the organization meeting Tuesday afternoon, Apr. 4, Aneta Howie was chosen chairman. Working with her are Elma Edel, Joan Koel, Jeanne Wadell, head, of the entertainment section; Marjorie Stewart, head of the sewing section; and Henry Trupp, head of publicity.

Members of the unit have been chosen and will continue until Thursday, Apr. 16. The unit will hold a meeting here in the Chap center at 8 o'clock Tuesday night next week.

Nason Discusses Modern Education

President John Nason of Swooths

College, brought to the campus Wednesday afternoon, April 16, a classic in which he brought some thoughts on the modern education. He said that the world is now moving into the 12th century and that education is rapidly becoming one of the most important aspects of life. He also discussed the importance of modern education and the need for a more comprehensive approach to education.

Baroque

Baroque is a style of music that was popular in the 17th and 18th centuries. It is characterized by its use of complex harmonies and counterpoint, as well as its emphasis on rhythm and meter. The Baroque period saw the development of many important musical forms, including the sonata, the symphony, and the concerto.

Five Seniors Elected to Phi Beta Kappa

Five senior girls were honored last Friday in chapel as new members of Phi Beta Kappa. Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Johnson, Miss Chandler, and Miss Yancey were chosen for the honor. They have all shown great promise and have been active in the college.

Phoebus Start For Freshman Play

"Elsiebeke Pudding," a drama presented by the Freshman Class, will be given Thursday and Friday in the auditorium. The play is directed by the Freshman Class. It is a historical drama, dealing with the life of a French nobleman during the reign of Louis XIV.

Seniors Nominate Robert D. Workman New Rear Admiral

Robert D. Workman, graduate of The College of Wooster and commencement speaker in 1930, has been advanced to the rank of rear admiral in the United States Navy. This new position was created by the Senate for the duration of the present war, and Admiral Workman's nomination to that post was confirmed by the Senate on Mar. 17.

J. Donald Adams Speaks May 28 At Graduation

J. Donald Adams, chairman of the Columbia Broadcasting System, will deliver the address at the college's commencement exercises on the campus on Monday afternoon, May 28. President R. C. Farmer announced today.

A prominent journalist, Mr. Adams graduated from Columbia University in 1915. The following year he served with the American United States Geology Survey in the Arctic, where he was employed by Mr. R. M. B. Westwood, then head of the United States Geology Survey in the Arctic.

Mr. Adams is a native of New Bedford, Mass., and has been a newspaper editor for many years. He is the author of several books on the history of the United States and has written numerous articles on American history.

Seniors Eligible for Civil Service Exam

The Civil Service Commission of the United States is now accepting applications from eligible college seniors for admission to the civil service. The commission is conducting a recruitment program for college seniors, and is encouraging all eligible students to apply.

The commission is seeking candidates who have completed at least six years of college, including at least three years of college work in the arts and sciences. Candidates should have a strong interest in public service and be willing to serve in the federal government.

Applicants who have successfully completed at least six years of college work, including at least three years of college work in the arts and sciences, are eligible to apply. Interested students should contact their college's placement office or the Civil Service Commission for further information.
What's it like to be an assistant professor at a university? The title is impressive, but the reality can be daunting. I often wonder how I manage to balance my teaching, research, and service responsibilities. It's a constant juggling act, and sometimes I feel like I'm just scratching the surface. But despite the challenges, there's something about academia that keeps me coming back. I love the opportunity to mentor students and contribute to the field. It's a rewarding experience, but it's not without its ups and downs. I'm grateful for the support of my colleagues and the university, and I'm looking forward to seeing what the future holds.
The Wooster Voice

Reports on Sports

Sports are over, and with it a few weeks before the spring sports will begin to bring news, so that leaves us holding the bag. But turning our eyes throughout the spring sport, things are on the news here and there, so we do see that regard to the lack here. Wooster is still plenty to talk about.

It is a thin line that was brought up once before on this page, but this time we fear that the whole page may be too thin, too. People think that the Bois should present absolutely nothing to their teams, whatsoever for the duration. In our estimation that is one of the worst things that could ever happen here. How would you like if the school was if dealt of sports, saw the kind that could be put together on the campus? We dare say it would be a true happy prospect. It seems the big objection is that since Wooster has always been up on this side of the 850, guys are concerned for so long, should we think that we will see no win we have a winning one. That is perhaps the alluring thing that ever could be said. How in the world can a team get into a fall and have a good team unless you have had a good team? You have had a good team, so many things may be in mind-readers and have a meeting in the summer, or should we say a meeting in the fall to stand in the way which we wouldn't go on so well with the manager of course. Playing a plain ordinary game and determination as to exactly what the consequences are to comprehend and adjournments from other.

No one can tell beforehand, maybe you can get a pretty good idea, but sometimes your idea is not certain. Everything may work out for the worst, every one will agree to that, but there is no use, we can only hope for the best. The other fellows, no one can tell.

Sports a Necessity

If Wooster had forgotten sports a while ago, I do believe that the guys would not be satisfied with what they have. Wooster has nearly 100 citizens and 300 Natives on the campus refused to have sports because they were afraid of what they were doing. So, I do believe we would have sued. We have all gone about our business. Who knows what sort of material they were talking to when the school was closed down the other schools, and did not go in football and some of the other clubs. We would not have done the same thing.

Our citizens have a game where the best of both students and in the eyes of the citizens.

The Wooster is one a little high place with the other schools and the first of four bunch of men in the world there those on our coaching staff. They have the best of the class, and that is all there is to it. To think of having one of these coaches, if Wooster had 400 men on the campus and 300 Natives in the classroom, we would want to go! We would have had a terrible time to fill all the positions which we did decide to have one, and there is no trouble on the right side in the eyes of the people.

Intramural baseball is now in full swing, and the field is still wide open. All the teams are fairly matched and are keeping the ball at its best, the girls anyway. The girls are still being played at 18 1/2, but never fear, the girls will play well and be played off at a time suitable to all.

The Collier Printing Company

John Collier, a Mr. Collier was doorknocking, ran 10 miles in 36 minutes and 11 seconds. He is decorated with three medals, 1 gold and 2 silver, for his services to the country.
Erika Mann Speaks
Of Her Experiences
On Western Front

By Alice Rodgers
Dealing the people of Germany with a picture of the country, Mrs. E. M. Mann, in her address of Wednesday evening, gave them a German Nazi and mutilated picture of Germany, calling the Germans as a whole "a monstrous and wicked race." Mrs. Mann discussed the development of the French-German animosity, and apparently regarded in former generations of the two countries with the advent of the win-

The Parisians were described as belonging to three groups, those who were always ready to fight, those who were perfectly content to be at home, and finally the large group of the middle men, the most likely to fall before the worst of both situations.

The Parisians were described as belonging to three groups, those who were always ready to fight, those who were perfectly content to be at home, and finally the large group of the middle men, the most likely to fall before the worst of both situations.

Mrs. Mann, in a speech with connection in Washington, D.C., was sponsored jointly by the J.R.C. and the College of 1917 fellowship.

Erika Mann Speaks
Of Her Experiences
On Western Front

By Alice Rodgers
Dealing the people of Germany with a picture of the country, Mrs. E. M. Mann, in her address of Wednesday evening, gave them a German Nazi and mutilated picture of Germany, calling the Germans as a whole "a monstrous and wicked race." Mrs. Mann discussed the development of the French-German animosity, and apparently regarded in former generations of the two countries with the advent of the win-

The Parisians were described as belonging to three groups, those who were always ready to fight, those who were perfectly content to be at home, and finally the large group of the middle men, the most likely to fall before the worst of both situations.

The Parisians were described as belonging to three groups, those who were always ready to fight, those who were perfectly content to be at home, and finally the large group of the middle men, the most likely to fall before the worst of both situations.

Mrs. Mann, in her speech with connection in Washington, D.C., was sponsored jointly by the J.R.C. and the College of 1917 fellowship.