Student Christian Council Calls Retreat To Camp Luz To Blueprint Year's Plans

While Freshmen learned about life at Wooster last weekend, members of the Student Christian Council retreated to Camp Luz for two days of planning and fellowship. The two-fold purpose of the retreat, as expressed by Bucky Smith, SCC Chairman, was to plan the activities and functions of the campus religious organizations for the coming year and to have a meaningful experience of worship and association with fellow students and faculty members.

College Reopens; Sabbaticals End

Wooster welcomes back the four following members of the faculty who were absent from the campus last year on sabbatical leaves:

Mr. Alan Collins of the Department of Music spent his year at Eastman School of Music at the University of Rochester where he studied for his Doctorate of Musical Arts degree. In addition to studying the cello with George Miquelle, Mr. Collins also did work in conducting through which he conducted at a special program given by the student orchestra.

Dr. Spencer

Dr. Warren Spencer worked with the Zoology Department at the University of Texas in Austin. Associated with the Genetics Foundation in its new $5,000,000 experimental station there, he worked with the world's leading group in the genetics of Drosophila. During his travels he visited the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Berkeley, California. To end his year, Dr. Spencer traveled this summer with his Texas colleagues to the Marshall Islands where he was associated with a project of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Mr. John Swigart of the Department of Physical Education spent his time traveling throughout the southwest and visiting university campuses. While taking in football games in this area, he attended the Big Seven Football Conference and the Rose Bowl game with its Tournament of Roses. Besides visiting several national parks in the US, he also toured the Hawaiian Islands with a group from San Francisco. In Terry Bard, Religion-in-Life Week Chairman, announced that three speakers have been obtained through the University Christian Mission for the religious emphasis week in February. They are Dr. Shelton Hale Bishop of New York; Dr. Alfred Garrett of Columbus, O.; and Dr. John H. McCombe of Tuckahoe, New York. The Campus Committee is working with the UCM this year in order to bring a new type of program to the campus.

In the words of Peg Sessions, President, the YWCA is launching an "experimental program in an attempt to find out whether it can be a vital organization on campus." There will be no association meetings, however, work will be done through the Big Sister-Little Sister program and the three service projects: 4C's, Girl Scouts, and the church nursery. Contact with SCC and the national YWCA will be maintained.

UCF

The United Christian Fellowship, under Bob McQuilken, President, is planning to have several speakers this year. They will be concentrating on the way in which Christ invades personal lives on campus. Work with the Student Volunteer Movement and clothing drives are also part of their program.

Brotherhood Meals

Plans for the Brotherhood Meals have not yet been settled. After speakers have been heard on the subject of having these periodical sacrificial meals, a vote of the student body will be taken. A 75% vote in the affirmative would automatically install the plan; a negative vote of over 25% would call for the working out of a plan for those desiring it.

The David Brainard Society is continuing its program of study,

Nineteen Men, No Women Headline Initial Fall Little Theatre Production

Nineteen men will make up the cast of the Little Theatre's first presentation of the year, The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial. The navy nineteen, as announced by Theatre Director W. C. Craig yesterday, will be Dave Bouquet, John Buechner, Bud Campbell, Scott Craig, Ted D'Arms, Bob Dodd, John Gooch, Fritz Guenther, Steve Gurley, Fred Hoffman, Dick Hyde, Bill Jennings, Ed Moore, Alan Peabody, Conrad Putzig, Dick Roeder, Dave Seyler, Don Shonting, and Bob Watson.

Senate, SCC Give Annual Reception

Under the joint sponsorship of the Student Christian Council and the Student Senate, the annual reception for Freshmen and new students will be held from 7:30 to 12 on Saturday night, September 24, in the gym. Once again Big Brothers and Little Brothers will meet Big Sisters and Little Sisters as they are presented to members of the administration and officers of the student body in the reception line. Jan Smith and Bob McQuilken, co-chairmen of the dance, have announced that Howie Boyd's band will provide the music.

The theme of the dance is Once in a Blue Moon, says Murray Blackadar, chairman of the decorations committee. The chairman of the entertainment committee is Sam Hunt. During the intermission, there will be three performances by students.

For this first all-college social event, all women will be given 12:30 permissions.

Sixteen New Faces In Choir Loft Places

Sixteen new instructors, including one former Woosterian, will be among the high and mighty in the choir loft this year.

The former Woosterian is Mr. Andrew Weaver, instructor in biology, who received his B.A. from Wooster in 1949 and his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Weaver, his wife, and child will reside at 1618 Burbank Road.

ATTENTION!

Next Wednesday night at 7 p.m. an open meeting will be held in the VOICE office in Lower Kauke. All students wishing to join the staff are urged to come. Experience is not necessary. Notify Peg Williams in Holden, if interested but unable to come on Wednesday.

The new head of the education department, Dr. Fred Dennett Barrett, though not a Wooster graduate, has strong connections with the hill, since his father received his B.A. from Wooster in 1901, and his grandfather, Dr. Joseph Barrett, practiced medicine in Wooster for about 50 years. The present Dr. Barrett will live with his wife at 536 McDonald Street. He has a daughter who is now attending the University of Wisconsin.

This female-less play, which will be directed by Mr. Craig, has been chosen for the Homecoming Show and will be presented for the Queen's Court, the students, parents, alumni, and visitors for four nights starting Wednesday, October 19. Tickets for this show, which will have the usual 8:15 curtain, will go on sale at chapel hour on Monday, October 10.

The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial was adapted from the novel, The Caine Mutiny, by Herman Wouk. The novel was made into a motion picture starring Humphrey Bogart, Van Johnson, Fred McMurray, and Jose Ferrer. The play, which was directed by Charles Laughton, opened in New York January 20, 1954 with John Hodiak as Maryk, Henry Fonda as Greenwald, Lloyd Nolan as Queeg, and Robert Gist as Keefer.

The play, a quick-paced drama, deals with the court-martial of a naval lieutenant who took over command of a ship during a typhoon, acting under article 184 of Navy Regulations: "It is conceivable that most unusual and extraordinary circumstances may arise in which the relief from duty of a commanding officer by a subordinate becomes necessary, either by placing him under arrest or on the sick list; but such action shall never be taken without the approval of the Navy Department or other appropriate higher authority, except when reference to such higher authority is undoubtedly impracticable because of the delay involved or for other clearly obvious reason."

Because the Caine Mutiny Court-Martial has an all-male cast, the Little Theatre has promised that the Parents' Day play will be Time Out for Ginger in which the cast is equally divided between men and women. Time Out for Ginger is a comedy which has been widely used by amateur theatrical groups and has experienced a rather widespread revival this past summer in straw-hat theatres. Tryouts for this show which will be directed by Mr. Winford Logan, will be held in Taylor Hall next Tuesday afternoon and evening.

Senate Sponsors 'All-American'

The Senate movie tonight in Scot Auditorium will be The All-American, starring Tony Curtiss and Lori Nelson. This recent film is the story of a "guy from the other side of the tracks," and the girl they said he couldn't have. There will be one showing at 7:00 o'clock.

NAME TROUBLES? SOLVE THEM HERE

by Dave Dungan

I don't believe there is anyone who hasn't had someone come up to them and say, "Why, hello John (or whatever the name is), how are you? Where have you been lately and how are all the folks at home, etc." and while they rattle on you're sitting there playing a brisk version of Place the Face. And another agonizing situation that all of us have been in I'm sure, is this one: "Hi Betty! Say, I want you to meet an old friend of mine; Betty, this is, uh, oh, ah, she's up just for the week end, uh, ah, etc." Remember? Even thinking about it is enough to bring back memories of wanting to kick yourself in a southern extremity, isn't it?

Well, I'm sure all of us at one time or another have been terribly embarrassed over nothing more than someone's name. However, there's an interesting aspect to the situation and it is the fact that, most of the time, names don't even matter. Quite often we are either around people whom we know well enough so that we can just begin talking to them without calling out their name first, or we are around relative strangers and it is possible just to call out, "I say, you there," or "Hey, you!" which works rather well. But there are special times, times when impressions need to be made, times when it's important to call everyone by his first name—and that's why this article is written; to bring back the lost art of remembering the names of everyone with ease and complete assurance.

There are, first of all, two types of names — plain everyday names that we see in phone books and advertisements, and then there are picturesque names like Cadyallader Oglethorpe or Terrence Throckmorton Lurp III. Well, actually there are three types of names; there are those names we never even heard of such as Ptryovnoxeki or Dzacklazuski, but these names are invariably either Russian or Yugoslav and we won't have to worry about them.

Try Name Association

Now, one trick that works very well with many people is the one called "name association." Upon being introduced, immediately think of something with which you are familiar that could cause you to think of this person's name the next time you see him. For example, "Bob, this is Mary Underwater." Immediately begin thinking of a connection; underwater means submarines and submarines mean submarine races and, well, anybody can see how effective this system would be. Now a popular variation of this method which often helps, and brings a few laughs besides, is to make a mild pleasantry about the new person's name to help it stick in your memory, like, "Oh, is your name Mary? I knew a horse named Mary once, she died," or "Thaddeaus? . . . That's too bad, etc." The only trouble is that, after using this method, you won't need the name. And of course there's one other slight variation which is executed as follows. As you're being introduced, look the person steadily in the eye and mumble their name over and over under your breath. However, this method isn't very successful because quite often the poor fellow thinks we aren't in complete possession of all of our marbles, which isn't exactly the impression we had intended.

Repetition May Work

Then there is the habit many people have rising either out of sheer laziness or plain inability to remember anything, and this is the habit of calling everybody the same thing such as, "Mac" or "Jack" or in extreme cases, "Dahling, etc." The more adept in this type of personality uses a form of low cunning and gets his cue from some facial or other physical characteristic, as "Where have you been, fish-eyes?" or "Hi, repulsive, etc."

But now we come to the more subtle methods employed by people who have studied all angles of this situation and have come up with some pretty sharp ideas. For instance, there's the Mumbler, who says in greeting, "Hi Mlbskrfk, etc." passing his hand over his mouth feigning a swipe at his nose, or there's the Mistake-maker, usually possessing enough nerve to hang on a fence, who operates thusly, "Hi Barbara—oh, isn't your name Barbara? Janice! I'm so sorry. Say, how about a date, etc." And of course there's the person who has studied the problem exhaustively, decided that there's nothing he can do about it, and who settles the question by hiding from everybody. But usually he's the kind of guy who goes for basket-weaving in a big way.

This Formula Might Help

Well, these are just a few of the different devices with which people have solved this age-old dilemma. My own formula is a bit more elaborate in that I have three separate plans which I use whenever I see someone approaching me on the sidewalk. For instance, I either quickly open a book and appear lost in deep contemplative study, or I suddenly perceive an object of extreme interest high up in a nearby tree, or I stop abruptly and get a panicked expression on my face as I start rummaging thru my pockets as if I had misplaced an object of extreme importance. However, these strategems have their drawbacks, I must admit. I mean, the trouble with the first is that quite often, as I am peering at my volume of lore, I walk off the sidewalk or into the on-coming person and am forced to look up, ruining everything. And with the second, difficulty often arises out of people's curiosity as to what I am looking at and they stop and look too. Sometimes this proves rather embarrassing because there isn't really anything up there at all. And in the third ruse, the only disadvantage is that in order to make it look at all plausible, after I'm thru with my panic-stricken search of my pockets, I have to turn and dash wildly in the direction I came from, with the result that I hardly ever get anywhere.

However, I'm still working on the foolproof method of remembering names, and you may rest assured that, as soon as it is discovered, you will be among the first to learn it. (Incidentally, I don't believe I got your last name . . .)

Faculty Grieves — SCC Receives

by Sheila McIsaac

Another fall, another Freshman class, another SCC-Senate-Reception. SCC—three little letters which during most of the year represent an active group of people behind the scenes of campus Christianity—cast a daggerlike chill over all those connected with it. For at least a week in advance, Big and Little Siblings, drooping J.R.'s and Douglass Counselors and Deans with feet out of shape after a reception-free summer, steel themselves for the cause.

Now don't get the wrong idea. The SCC Reception is always looked back upon as one of the nicest things that happens to Freshmen and other people. It's just the look forward that brings the uneasy feeling. You know how it is. The telephone rings, all the Freshman women in the dormitory cock their ears, each grabs her directory and prepares to run. Anticipation reigns, then we find it's a long distance call from Mary's mother who sent fudge that is really excellent but don't eat too much dear it's not good for your complexion. A few dozen sighs and back to waiting.

Meanwhile, on the opposite side of campus, Douglass men have acquired Emily Postine habits insisting that, "You go first." Sooner or later they come to the conclusion that someone has to go first, or else their Big Brothers (helpful to the bitter end and sometimes it is bitter) may remove the necessity of phoning.

Administration members busily open envelopes containing nicely worded white cards. Aha, but they're not fooled! Behind the gentle handwriting lies two hours of hand shaking, smiling, how-do-you-do's, and the afore-mentioned feet. A reception always means a reception line, but the line doesn't end with the handshakers and the hand-shaken. Weaving in and out with introductions are those non-entities, otherwise known as junior counselors. They have already equaled practice. Gathered in a group, they have taken turns at playing Dr. Lowry, Virg Musser, Big Sister, shy frosh man, and of course themselves, the latter a masterly portrayal.

What this all adds up to really is quite surprising. You find yourself going steady with the shnook your Big Sister asked to be your date. The receptors have received the nicest frosh since last year and go home with a warm glowing feeling about youth and life and college and such. The rest of us bunched into groups of Big Sisters and Brothers, committee members, counselors, etc., bask in the glory of a successful evening.

Dr. Lowry Names Faculty Promotions

At Convocation Monday, President Lowry announced the following Faculty promotions:

Miss G. Pauline Ihrig was promoted from associate professor to a full professorship and was made head of the Department of French.

Miss Frances V. Guille was promoted from associate professor to professor of French.

Miss Helen H. Kaslo was promoted from instructor to assistant professor of history.

Mr. Warren D. Anderson was promoted from assistant professor to professor of Latin and was made head of the Department of Latin.

It has also been announced that Mr. Joe Bindley has been confirmed as acting head of the Department of Political Science.

Mr. McKee Speaks For Alumni Fund

by Skip Hoyler

"It has helped to secure and hold a better faculty while keeping educational income at a high level," commented Mr. John D. McKee, Director of Wooster Alumni Relations, in behalf of Alumni Fund, a branch of the Wooster College Alumni Association.

This fund, a program of annual giving since 1942, has raised over $1,500,000 for free use by the Wooster board. Providing the same purpose as a living endowment, the fund has helped to stabilize the college financial picture to a very encouraging extent. Last year alumni donations passed the $75,000 goal by over $2,000 as 4,478, or approximately 39.13%, contributed. Mr. McKee has high hopes of reaching the $85,000 goal which is set for the coming year.

Other functions of the Alumni office are the maintenance of permanent addresses and biographical records of alumni; publication of the Wooster Alumni Bulletin; assistance of classes and alumni clubs in their respective activities; administration of the alumni trustee elections; and cooperation in the observance of Wooster Day, Homecoming, and Commencement events.

A member of the Wooster class of 1917, Mr. McKee has been associated with the college since 1920, when he became alumni secretary. After earning his Ph.B., Mr. McKee also received an M.A. degree at the University of Chicago in 1935.

Iranian Czech, Peter Starek, Joins Wooster Fresh Class

by Dave Dungan

Every Freshman class brings with it new people, different ideas, and distinctive ways of looking at things. One of the more unusual personalities in this year's Frosh class is a young Czech from Iran—Peter Starek. In asking how he happened to choose Wooster out of all the schools in the states, he replied, "Oh, you have quite a colony of people from Wooster out in Teheran," which was news to me. Actually the choice was between Ohio Wesleyan, Kansas State, and Wooster, and it narrowed down, by one thing and another, to old Woo U.

As I got to know Peter a little better, I became more and more amazed at how cosmopolitan an environment he had come from.

Originally from Prague, Czechoslovakia, Peter's father was sent out to Teheran by his company to build a combined water and sewer system for the city of Teheran. When he got there the project fell through because the king, agreeing heartily to the proposed water system, saw no need for the sewer system, and Mr. Starek had to return to Prague. The next year he went again to Teheran, this time to build a silo for storage purposes for the city, and a short time later his family, including young Peter, aged two, joined him there. This was in 1938 just before the Nazi invasion of Czechoslovakia. Peter remained in Teheran from then on, except for a five-month period in 1946 just after the war when he and his mother returned to Prague to visit relatives. Knowing that he couldn't remember anything of Prague from his early years, I asked him what his impression was of this famous city from this visit. "It was pretty well built up but to me, it is the most beautiful city I've ever seen. It looks something like Washington (D. C.) only about 200 years later. I guess most of its beauty comes from its oldness—but you can't explain beauty, you have to see it."

High School

The high school Peter comes from is the Community School in Teheran which has all grades from kindergarten to 12th grade and is financed and staffed (largely) by the Presbyterian Church (USA). This school is mostly for the foreign element in Teheran, there being many other schools for native Iranians. Peter said there are 30 nationalities represented in the student body despite its small size (only 200 plus in the high school division), and how tremendous it was to have Iraqis, Egyptians, Syrians, Americans, French, British, Russians, Greek, and all the other nationalities working and playing at the same time in the same school. One result of this international environment is Peter's multi-lingual ability—he can speak French, Russian, and Iranian, and read and write Czechoslovakian and English.

Extra-Curricular Activities

Some of the extra-curricular activities in which Peter participated were Glee Club, Choir, International Boy Scouts, and Student Government which culminated in his election to Student Council President his Junior year.

Here at Wooster, Peter is thinking about taking a pre-med education and probably will major in Chemistry or Biology. He wants to join the Men's Glee Club partially because he likes to sing but mainly (we know) because he wants to see Florida come Christmas vacation.

Asked about his future plans, Peter says, "I'm not too sure yet. I still have three years of schooling to go after college, and of course, there's the army. I've already applied for citizenship in this country and that will be five years in arriving." I asked him if he planned to go back to Iran after he was done with school. He replied, "Yes, I think I'll go back for a couple of years anyway. I didn't realize how much I missed the place until I left it. I don't know whether I want to go back to live there or not . . . if I do, it will be as an American citizen."

fellowship, and practical experience for students interested in church vocations. They are also planning six open meetings with speakers for all students.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship worked on the program for its annual Squash Party on September 30. They also talked about their study and discussion program which will center this semester around the theme: "Considering and Investigating Christ's Claims for Today."

Peter Perry outlined his plans for starting a student bookstore. This would be an expansion of the Religion-in-Life Week store and would provide books of all types, not strictly religious and not textbooks, at reduced rates.

Requests for the budget were presented, but action on the proposal was postponed until the next SCC meeting on September 27.

The retreat was keynoted with an address by James Blackwood, advisor to the Council, in which he gave a history of religious organizations on campus and showed their changing emphasis. He stressed the unifying effect of SCC and urged that there be room for growth within unity.

Besides the planning and report sessions, there were worship services, with Communion served by Dr. Tanner on Sunday. Time was also provided by retreat chairmen, Mary Haupt and Bruce Stuart, for individual meditation as well as camp fellowship in the form of serenades, meals, and campfires.

For The Girls

by Anne Marsh

The Women's Athletic Association is here for you, the women of the College of Wooster. There are no dues, no qualifications; you don't even have to sign a membership card. You're in!

The WAA's big job is the sponsorship of all women's sports — individual skills, intramural contests, and intercollegiate playdays included. Each sport has its own club which meets a number of times for fun and relaxation. Anyone may join simply by attending the sports of her choice.

There are other events which the WAA supports. The Red Cross Blood Drive, co-ed fun nights, square dances on the quad, and a benefit bridge party are just a few.

The fall season brings two major sports into the spotlight—hockey and tennis. Hockey is on Monday and Wednesday afternoons at 4:15. Tennis is on Wednesday and Friday at the same time. If you like to work with rhythm why don't you try Modern Dance on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 4:15 in Lower Babcock. You don't have to be an expert to have fun; so don't let lack of skill keep you away. You're not too old and decrepit to improve an old skill or develop a new one. There will be someone there to offer you hints if you want them. Remember, these sports are your sports, and they need you to make them successful.

College Completes 'All-Purpose' Organ

In the near future the chapel will reverberate with many new sounds—those of the soon-to-be completed organ. The first part of the organ was installed in 1953, as a result of the gift made by D. D. Davis in 1949. His family later gave the donation to complete the organ. Announcement of this was made in June of 1954. The college had to wait until this year for the final installation because there were many orders ahead of this one. The Holtkamp Company of Cleveland is installing the new organ.

When completed the organ will be an all-purpose instrument equally suitable for services and for recitals. It will also be the most complete organ in this part of the state. It is hoped that the dedication of the complete organ will be on November 20.

Senate Petitions Go Out On Friday

Fall elections are coming up soon, and petitions for Student Senate offices will be available one week from today at the Senate office. There are four positions to be filled in the Student Senate: Freshman Male Senator, Freshman Senator-at-Large, Sophomore Senator-at-Large, and Junior Senator-at-Large. Students with political aspirations are urged to consider running for these positions, keeping in mind the serious responsibilities that go with them.

The deadline for the return of the petitions is Thursday, October 4, and the election itself will be held the following Tuesday, October 11. Results will probably be announced as soon as they are computed by the Student Senate.

Scots Encounter Allegheny 'Gators

by Paul Martin

In spite of the three short weeks of preparation which they have had, the Scot gridders are as ready as they will ever be to meet the Allegheny 'Gators in Meadville, Pennsylvania, tomorrow.

Although this year's team will be lighter than that of last year, they go into the opening contest in almost perfect physical condition. There are few players injured as the big day looms and it is almost a certainty that all the starters will see action.

With a squad of about 40 players, the 14 lettermen boast a good nucleus. Jack Behringer, the line coach, received the assignment of the year as he was forced to patch up the holes left by last year's seniors. He has few veterans in the middle of the line and that is where the 'Gators will be directing most of their attack.

sons in the punting department, will be sorely missed this season. Coach Shipe has been carefully grooming four of his backs for the position. It is a toss-up at this writing. Backfield Coach John Swigart, who returned from his sabbatical leave this year, is working with Gerry Smith, Tom Justice, Bob Bush, and Stan Galehouse.

Wooster fans will get their first look at the new Scots on Saturday, October 1, when the Kenyon Lords will be here. This will be the first Ohio Conference game for both schools. Kenyon meets Ashland in a tilt next Saturday at Gambier. The Scots will go on the road after they play the Lords. The first of these is scheduled for Waynesburg on October 8 and then Denison on October 15, where they will compete at Homecoming Day for the Big Red. Muskingum's Muskies will be the guest team as the Scots celebrate Homecoming Day on October 22.

Glee Club Features Feminine Soloists On Christmas Tour

This year members of the Men's Glee Club will take part in a post-Christmas tour to Florida. Concerts will be given in St. Petersburg, St. Augustine, and other cities where the men sang two years ago. Mr. Karl Trump, Glee Club director, believes this year's program to be lighter and more entertaining than last season's. "Deep River," "All Through the Night," "Bring a Torch Jeannette Isabella," and "Casey Jones" are among the possible selections of folk songs, American ballads, Negro spirituals, and Christmas carols to be presented. The program will include the introduction to a new piece by Richard T. Gore. Nancy Mohr will accompany the concert as cello soloist and Louise McClelland will be the feminine voice quality as contralto soloist. There will also be the usual assortment of specialty acts, featuring the Men O' MacLeod in their colorful kilts. This season has started with a membership of 75, an increase on other years.

Debaters Question Guaranteed Wage

"Resolved: That all non-agricultural industries should provide for their employees a guaranteed annual wage" will be heatedly debated on this campus throughout the school year. It is the basic proposition for this year for the Wooster debaters, who will soon be collecting their ideas and thoughts on the issue.

For all students with the itch for arguing, there are two debate groups which they may join. The first year group will meet on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. The debate seminar, known as the Inter-collegiate Debate Group, will hold its meetings on Mondays and Wednesdays during seventh hour. These will remain open to everyone for several weeks.

Among the scheduled meets for the year are the annual Cambridge University Debate in the college chapel on November 8 and the Debate Tournament on November 12 for which Wooster will be the host.

Mr. Gore Renews Beethoven Series

Mr. Richard T. Gore is resuming his Beethoven Series with a recital this Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in Memorial Chapel. He started this project of presenting Beethoven sonatas in 1943 but the old organ became unpredictable and recitals became difficult to present.

However, pending the arrival of the new organ, he gave twenty-five sonatas in eight recitals over a period of three years, ending in October of 1951.

Due to various reasons the project was not resumed until this year. The series will be completed before the dedication of the new organ. In three future recitals on September 25, October 9, and October 30, the remaining seven sonatas will be played. These sonatas are ranked by many musicians as being among the greatest masterpieces.

MORE ON Returning Faculty

visiting several Wooster graduates in the southwest, Mr. Swigart especially remarked about the warm reception that he received from all of them.

Dean William Taeusch is back with us after his stay at Stanford University in Palo Alto, California where he studied in the university library. Besides traveling extensively in the western states, he addressed Wooster alumni at San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco.
