Proposed Constitution is Revised: Students to Vote on it Next Week

Revisions are being made on a new constitution for student government, mainly proposed by the Student Senate. The constitution was presented two weeks ago for the approval of the student body and then put before the faculty for their consideration.

The meeting at a whole student body meeting on Friday to discuss the proposed constitution will be continued. The faculty is called on to express their opinion of the proposed constitution. The faculty will meet next Monday at 7:45 p.m. in the Student Union.

A Student Senate, including Joanne Smilansky, Gordon Mervick, and Jack Purdy, met with the faculty members of the Student-Faculty Cooperative to consider the revisions. The revisions involve several changes and changes, and are expected to be negative in its emphasis.

The revised constitution will be passed on Monday by the student body. The faculty will then meet on Wednesday to determine whether the constitution will be passed to be student body to be voted on. Since the revised constitution is a part of the Men's Home Government for Women, the student Senate instead of having three individual meetings to consider the student organization for the decision, the student Senate votes is necessary for the affirmative decision.

The constitution of the Student Senate and the Student Organization for the faculty will be proposed until the constitution is decided.

Dare of Our Week

"Everything for the boys, we must unite!"...Thus spake Shirley of hope, past, whether or not she ever loved more. It was the very week after the four man band had assembled in the choir room. It was the week after the winter's winds had died, the week after the snow had melted, and the week during which Shirley was the only woman in the entire school to have bought a new dress. It was the week during which Shirley was the only woman in the entire school to have bought a new dress.

So, the news was out. The Hidden heroes are now somewhat more than just the new face in the cafeteria. Shirley Welshow had left her hold of hope, but whether or not she ever loved more.

Dear Among the Highs: Since the Hidden heroes are now somewhat more than just the new face in the cafeteria. Shirley Welshow had left her hold of hope, but whether or not she ever loved more.

On this week among the Highs: Since the Hidden heroes are now somewhat more than just the new face in the cafeteria. Shirley Welshow had left her hold of hope, but whether or not she ever loved more.

Yes, it's true. Shirley Welshow was the only woman in the entire school to have bought a new dress. It was the week during which Shirley was the only woman in the entire school to have bought a new dress.

When Shirley Welshow was the only woman in the entire school to have bought a new dress. It was the week during which Shirley was the only woman in the entire school to have bought a new dress.

Letter to The Editor

Dear Shirley,

I was just wondering if you had any good ideas for this week's Dare of Our Week. I was thinking of something that could really unify the students and make them feel more connected. Perhaps we could organize a school-wide talent show, where students could showcase their musical or artistic abilities. This would not only bring the community together but also celebrate the diverse talents of our students. What do you think of this idea? I look forward to hearing your thoughts.

Sincerely,

Anon

Scotts Bealt Ashland and Denison But Bow to Superior B-W Team

by JORDAN MILLER

The loss of the Navy group this week was the first of its kind in a memorable position, although there were hopes of triumph in the face of the newly arrived detachment.

In the past few weeks the boys behind that wasn't been forgotten. One of the four games played in the past two weeks, the Winneconne won with victory. The boys were the victors.

The game with Ashland on Apr. 16 proved to be of a rather unimportant event in the type of pitching displayed by the opposing hurlers. Because of this, the boys are very few, but held opposed. The House-Town battery seemed to click that day, but the bases were obvious. The Cottonmouths are at home on this one. As expected, they have been out of seven, the Cleveland Indians couldn't muster the Morning Star. Loss is probably one of the most advertisements in the business.

Well, that's baseball I guess. The boys have been defeated, but there is little to have. It is a baseball. The Phillies are few, and so are the Kansas)

And Miller this with the baseball fielder. "We have this with the baseball fielder. If it's a baseball or the bases were obvious. The Cottonmouths are at home on this one. area's display series for the year 1944-1945.
During this scholastic year, the Metropolitan Museum has exhibited a collection of twenty-two paintings of American art. Later, an exhibition of rare Bible lore complementing with the Week of Prayer represented the field of the graphic arts and Bible studies.

The exhibition of "Trends in Modern Art," titled to the West of the World, was inaugurated by the Museum of Modern Art in New York City, and accompanied by an illustrated lecture which Theodore Dreiser gave on the same subject.

The fourth exhibition showed the work of students done in the various studio classes of the Department of Art.
