Celebrate Wooster Day Dec. 11

"Old Man" Before the Disastrous Fire of 1901

For three successive years on the same day a great crowd had gathered on Wooster campus. The first year on Dec. 11, 1900, the crowd had been there to see the dedication of the new library to the college. It was an impressive occasion as the President conducted a brief dedication ceremony at the dedication address.

Not in that crowd thought that on the same day one year later an even larger crowd would be gathered for a dramatically different occasion. On Dec. 11, 1901, the streets and sidewalks were suddenly filled with the smell of dust and sawdust and the sight of an unusual reddish-yellow glow in the sky. Nearly everyone was unfamiliar with it as the town joined the growing crowd that was surrounding theWooster Market.
Remedy for Provincialism

Guest Editorial—Art Palmer, Senate President

Upon investigation of the national student situation in comparison with the international, the American student stands in a peculiarly isolated position. A large number of Americans, with students on American campuses, and even less contact with students abroad. Because of this lack of contact and experience, there is a lack of intellectual exchange and a neglect cooperative action on American campuses.

There is an opportunity before us to rectify these deficiencies, and it is the duty of the Senate to take the lead in this effort. For our students, there are few opportunities to participate in international exchanges and learn from the experiences of students abroad. It is imperative that we provide a forum for our students to share their knowledge and learn from others.
