Thomas Proposes Congress Revamp Into Committees

SGA President Mark Thomas proposed the creation of a new committee at the first meeting of the new SGA Congress, the other day, and said, "It was declared dead and the Congress assigns as its sole purpose for this quarter the writing of a new set of by-laws. Since a quorum was lacking, no action could be taken. Another attempt to obtain a quorum to take action on Thomas' proposal will be made this Sunday.

Regarding the statement Thomas said that the main reason for the endowment of the executive board to the Congress was that "A crisis arises from first-hand and not distant observation."

This was reported on the Congress during half of his freshman year. However, one speaker of Congress the second half of his term. This being the statement was approved by Congress Wednesday night.

The authority, not only exercised by but inherent in the Congress of the Student Government Association does not appear to have been the subject of considerable questioning and discussion in recent years. Each year the student response to the opportunity to run for Congress declines. Significant constructive action initiated and not merely endorsed by the Congress has been conspicuously absent in recent years.

As a result of these facts and in an attempt to stop playing the game of representative democracy by passing an anachronistic and ineffective institution, I propose the following motion:

"That the by-laws of the Student Government Association Congress be amended and that the following amendatory to the first quarter, 1968 declare as its sole task the formulation of the Constitution, assigning the conduct of ongoing activities of student groups to a board of directors and the six cabinet members and charged with the corresponding standing and special committees.

The amount of practical power with which the Congress has not is not appreciable. Any attempt on the part of Congress to change the status of a clear notion of its own identity and potential for positive contribution, is fundamentally unsound. Furthermore, reducing legislative-the legislative scope on campus help may hold to focus attention on the Campus Council, a body which has real and clearly defined authority."

"We must also keep in mind that by effectively suspending Congress we are abolishing the Student Government Association or diminishing the voice of the student body in the affairs of The College of Wooster. On the contrary, such action could very well serve to revitalize the collective efforts of students to democratize Our College to its serious, sensible structure than now exists.

The key to effectiveness of an organization such as student government is diffusion from the structure outwardly to include participation by as many individual groups as possible. If such diffusion is successful, real strength emerges. On this basis the Congress has been failing for some time. A mere written word of purpose of this diffusion is through the committee structure. It seems only natural, therefore, to place more emphasis on the committees.

The regular, frequent meeting of a board comprising the chairmen of all committees, a meeting which would be open to all students, would produce a higher degree of communication than is now occurring.

"The current state of the SGA desperately calls for change and experimentation. The above motion makes the first step."

Since each member of the new Congress includes Ray Chopin and Betsy Major. Andy Clute and Clay Mentell have been elected to the second SGA election for the freshman class. The freshman election, held last week, was declared invalid because some in-completed ballots were printed and used before the error was discovered.

Black Students Call Open Meeting After Advising Drushal On Charge

Last Monday evening a delegation of Black students visited President Drushal for election of several points and to offer suggestions. The group's concerns centered around financial aid, recruitment and recruiting of Black students and in student affairs. A follow-up meeting will be held Saturday in the Pit.

A cut-back in aid is reportedly making it difficult and in some cases nearly impossible for some to meet this quarter's tuition. Several students might find it necessary to withdraw next quarter, or sooner, because of these cuts. Drushal said that he was unaware of the situation.

A check with the Dean's Office reports a readjustment of some students' aid and loans although not in the over-all aid budget. They also report no student having notified them of anything concerning an inability to meet costs.

Suggestions were made by the group to Drushal that scholarships and grants be raised and increase enrolment through the various offices and special efforts have been established for just this purpose.

Parent's Day Weekend: A Taste Of Tradition, A Look At The Change

Early indications are that Parent's Day, set for this weekend at The College of Wooster, will be a successful one. Advance reservations are at an all-time high, and ticket sales are very good. The play "The Lady's Not For Burning" will be presented.

COUNCIL COUNSEL

Few campuses across the country have realized the potential of a student power. As evidenced by the present state of dissolution of the SGA, Wooster also suffers from a plethora of indifference and difference with regard to the latest search of a vocal student body.

The inauguration of the Campus Council in spring of 1988 made possible a channel for rapid and comprehensive personal communication, capable of immediately rendering a decision. Consequently the CE's nay nationalism, no, and a fact of that legislative body, ruling on proposals submitted by various committees and associations.

It follows that the new SGA's constitution should be concerned primarily on establishing a well-coordinated group of committees capable of adapting to the fluctuating areas of concern on campus. Each participating group would have responsibility for a proposal, considering the individual members actively soliciting advice from the campus community.

The much SGAs committees and then on the Campus Council seems the most logical procedure to eradicate, modify, or implement the myriad issues which have continually petrified Wooster. - D.L.

The Freshman Class Is Diversified

Perhaps the most salient feature of the Class of '73 is that no typifying characteristic really exists. Several professors teach Freshman Calculus who have never met one another.

Raymond McCall of the English department, speaking generally of his class found them "naive, ignorant. ... in short, they are basically新鲜." Paul Christensen, also of English, said that while many of his students based their opinions on misreading and partial information, at least he has definite views and might not have been true for several years ago.

According to David Moldstad, his class more reflects the varied backgrounds and upbringings of their homes and the great polarization of American society. Many Woosterians are more conservative than last year, the men in his class, while others--the Hodges of the History department, not included in this)--are more liberal. From the Class of '72, pointed out that his group was still quite guard- ed and hesitant about expressing opinions on important national and world issues.

The variety of reactions may stem as part from the different personali- ties of the students, and the topic discussed, and the students in the College class. Nevertheless, the lack of agreement reflects the heterogeneity of the freshman class as a whole.

Queried on such subjects as last week's presidential address, a grading system for College alumni also met with a number of responses. Some professed that it was "inane," others that their topic was "irrelevant." Expressing a sum of the responses, a common theme was "too many otherencountered indifference.

Moldstad stated that some of the students were quite definite position, or even serious about important issues. He added that they are still emerging from the high school atmosphere and are still adjusting to the demands of college--other encountered indifference.

The feeling of Calvinism was that the fruit are now finding their responsibility and adjustment--while this may be tentative coming out it does not indicate that they have no opinions, but they are unwilling to listen and participating as numbers of an inherently, it seems, they are "still maintaining what freshmen to have to each other a fresh view. They aren't Wooster students yet.

The Class of 73 presents an image of variety, in every aspect of opinions. What will happen to the future of these "newer students" remains to be seen.

VOTE 19-1 Issue

Interested in getting to vote in this year's election? Students will help influence the people of Wooster through the medium of this issue. This Saturday when members of the Young Democrats in the area in favor of issue 1, lowering the voting age.

This Saturday, the square downtown and the Point will be the arena for the discussions. If you need not be a Young Democrat, meet outside Lower Center at 9:15 a.m. Monday. More important to having a posted around campus. Bill Sparty should be contacted to answer any questions.

A random sampling was taken in Wooster of the men on the street's reactions to the Moratorium last October 15. The majority of those questioned felt that the spirit of the Moratorium -- namely the peaceful character of the nationwide demonstration for peace -- was a meaningful expression of American feeling about the war. In answer to a question of whether the peace movement would continue, most similar numbers (i.e. well over 50 to 425 on October 15) by CBS count) in succeeding months, a number warmed that as long as the demonstrations remained peaceful, "How can there be violence in a demonstra- tion for peace?" questioned one. Others argued that the President should be open to American opinion but also that he should not be pressured into a position that would jeopardize the negotiations now underway.

Those who protested the Moratorium had varied reasons for this stand. One man felt that the Moratorium was a political ploy move on the part of some Congressmen; yet he could not substantiate this opinion. Several disagreed with all forms of mass protest or demonstration, insisting that America's foreign policy and its ef forts to disengage itself from Viet- nam has been a farce and that the Government who represented the people. Nixon has more facts and influence. ... we should have, and therefore the President and Congress are better prepared to make a correct decision this time who participated in the Moratorium.

Newsweek (October 16) lists five factors for the upcoming vote. First, "more of the same" in the contin- ued "Vietnamization of the war" in the Middle East and South Vietnam in Paris. Second, an "immedi- ate and last" moment, the changing views of all American troops. Third, an all- out military victory in Vietnam, the end of the Vietnam War. The north and, if necessary, the mining or bombing of Heping har- bor. A fourth attitude would be the Nixon Administration to re-evaluate their position to broaden the political base of his Government. This could be ac- complished by linking in liberal opin- ion leaders who would favor a complete withdrawal of the NLF. The fifth is a "standstill cease- fire, known as the accommodation plan. Such a situation would stop and each side would re- starch in order becoming the de facto government in the areas they con- trolled.

First of these options was the majority's choice. The conclusion was that "more of the same" would become the policy of the United States. The content of the U.S. would only persist until the next election. Meanwhile the Vietnamization of the war would be continued. The media did not reflect the status quo to "keep up the economy and keep the peace." The most accurate one the second and favored the Nixon Administration's attitude. The "standstill cease- fire" proposal because it was wrong for the U.S. to pretend to support democracy in Vietnam and the most reasonable action would be to drop the Vietnam War.

The quality of Wooster play on the soccer field has been equal to the competition lately, as the Scots played poorly in beating Mt. Union and Hiram. This week the competition is a bit tougher as the boosters hosted Denison tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. for Parents' Day and played Bowling Green this past Wednesday.

The Scots started both clubs last year but the score was by one goal in both games. The game at Bowling Green was 1-0 on a windy day, and at Denison, Wooster had a score before winning 2-0. Tomorrow's rematch between the tough defense of the Scots and the explosive offense of the Big Red should make for an interesting game.

In last week's action, Wooster's defense extended its shutout streak to 14 quarters but the offense's ability to score was lacking. Last Tuesday at Wooster, the boosters won their third straight Ohio Conference game, 2-0, over Mt. Union, then traveled to Hiram Saturday and won a thriller, 1-0.

Against Mt. Union, the Scots were unable to score until late in the first half. Senior Chuck Neth crossed the ball from the corner to sophomore Dave Naggiar, who headed the ball in for the goal. Only six seconds remained on the clock at the time. Lifted by the goal before the half, the Scots charged out in the third period eager for more. A number of passes and shots bounded around the Raiders' goal late in the period. Sophomore Grant Underhill picked a loose ball out of the air and kicked it in for the insurance goal. The only problem was that the Scots had shot 31 times to get those two goals.

Junior Steve Cerrettani received the coaches' Most Valuable Player award for leading the defense in allowing only five Mount shots. Last Saturday the boosters traveled to Hiram for what should have been a fairly easy game. The Terriers had lost all five of their games before the contest and Wooster was in the midst of a three-game winning streak. Assistant Coach Wynn said before the game, "This type of game worries me more than when the competition is tougher," and the Scots nearly justified his fears. The Scots dominated play from the start as it is their norm. The seven Wooster shots in the first quarter were hard but wide or high. The second quarter was marked by a stepped-up Wooster attack. Although the Scots outshut Hiram, 5-6, few were on target.

Wooster came out with a better appreciation of its opposition and more spark, but the Terriers defense continued to use every possible tactic. A dog (perhaps a Terrier) even came to their aid and followed the ball on a Wooster drive to add to the frustration. The third quarter ended without a score. Hiram's luck began to ebb midway through the fourth period. Three Wooster corner kicks came dangerously close. Finally halfback Steve Parker moved in on a Hiram defensive kick and headed it out to Scotch captain Bob Dow at right wing. Dow kicked a perfect cross past to freshman Jim Broehl at the left side of the goal. Broehl's boot punctured the net and the game was all but over.

Wooster outshot Hiram, 24-6, but once again was low on accuracy. Coach Bob Nye praised the play of center fullback Cerrettani and goalie Ted Caldwell, the latter registering his third straight shutout.

"We can't seem to get up for a proper opponent," Nye said afterwards. "We play our best games against the tougher teams." If that's the case, the Scots were up for Bowling Green and should win their sixth straight tomorrow against Denison.

Scotties' Victory Skene Ended At Seven With Muskie Defeat

After rolling past seven straight opponents by a total score of 42-7, the College of Wooster women's field hockey team hit a bit of an uphill struggle.

A week ago yesterday, the Scotties had their unbeaten string snapped at Muskingum when the Muskies took a 5-2 decision. Libbie Marshall put Wooster ahead 1-0, but Muskingum tied the score at halftime and went ahead, 2-1, after the intermission. Jane Finley, whose 14 goals lead the team, knocked the count over once more, but a Muskingum goal with eight minutes left turned the tide.

Coach Ginny Hunt put the blame for the loss on over-confidence and lackadaisical play by the Wooster forwards.

Karen Duffy's goal with less than a minute to go gave the Scotties a 2-1 tie with Kent State last Saturday. The visitors had taken a 1-0 lead after a scoreless first half.

"We dominated the first half, and our defense played an excellent game," said Miss Hunt, "but our offensive forwards were just not aggressive enough."

The Scotties, who were 7-1-1 before Wednesday's game at Ohio Wesleyan, host Ohio University tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. in the Parents' Day contest.

ROBBLE SHOES FOR MEN

The breakout boot

Locator's new ankle high boot will up-to-date European styling.
History has a wonderful habit of selecting relatively obscure locations for its greatest— and most memorable— dramas. For example, there were the two small, quiet Massachusetts villages which became the scene of the outbreak of the American Revolution. Similarly, there was the sleepy little Pennsylvania town that witnessed one of the most significant battles of the Civil War.

Sports has its famous places, too. One can ever forget the "Miracle of Coogan’s Bluff" in 1931 when Bobby Thomson hit his "shot heard round the world" to give the National League pennant to the New York Giants. Now sports has another memorable scene— Flushing Meadows, home of Shea Stadium and the newly-crowned World Champion New York Mets.

It was in these last weeks that the Mets pulled one of baseball's biggest upsets in knocking off the Baltimore Orioles, four games to one in the World Series.

Lexington and Concord had their heroes in Jonas Parker and Major Pitney. Gettysburg's central figures were General Meade and the Young Thorner George Pickett. At Coogan's Bluff, Thomson had to share the stage with Dodger burles, Ralph Branca.

The heroes of Shea were similar to these six men in that they had never received a great deal of publicity prior to their "coming out."

Take, for instance, Mets' center fielder Tommy Agee. After winning the American League’s Rookie of the Year award in 1966, Agee fell miserably at the plate and was traded from the White Sox to the Mets. He hit just .271 in 1968 before bouncing back to .271 with 29 home runs and 78 RBI in 1969. His leadoff hitter in the third game provided Gary Gentry with the only runs needed in New York’s playoff victory, but Agee will be remembered more for his two spectacular catches in center field that robbed the Orioles of five runs.

Then there was Glasses Feelgood Swoboda, who saved the Mets' third triumph with an unbelievable diving grab in the ninth inning. Swoboda, a double play, drove in what proved to be the deciding run in the fifth game with a line drive to left that scored Cleon Jones.

And there was Al Weis, the American League redhead who had smashed the greatest total of all major league batters before he batted in three runs of Dave McNally's two out last field barrier for a game-tying round-tripper in the Mets’ final victory. It was Weis’ first home run ever at Shea Stadium, and no matter how few his hits in the years to come will be his most remembered. Weis also was the leading batter for the classic 2-1 Mets win in 1969.

There were other Met heroes— Jerry Koosman, Tom Seaver (and his wife Nancy), J. C. Martin, the upstart who persuaded the Mets to sign Koosman several years ago on a tip from his nephew in the Army, and, most of all perhaps, the beautiful Met fans.

Here, too, there were Mets who captured and cleaved their way to seven years of jubilation in the National League's basement (although twice the Mets managed to get past some on the first step up). These were the same Mets who gave birth to such "immortals" as Hod Kazee, Cliff Cook, Ed Kranepool, and Roger McDowell.

One must regard this particular World Series as a sort of moratorium on the mumbling that was supposed to happen did the whole series was a delicious collection of the incredible, unbelievable and unusual. Press row looked like a field of bright red lima beans as the "experts" were completely confounded by the red faces accordingly (and, one thinks, happily).

Hardly, because the Mets’ victory was probably one of the greatest achievements in the history of baseball. Their triumph seemed to be as remarkable as May when the Mets went on a 14-game winning streak that boosted them over the .500 mark for the first time in their tawny history.

And after the straw fans who thought the Mets could finish the season over .500. When that goal seemed certain, the fans hoped the Mets could place in the first division. When that goal became definite, people worried the Mets would win the pennant. And so it went through the post-season Series. Each time the team reached one "impossible" plateau, it really surprised the fans were able to go up one step further.

So now the Mets have reached the top-rung, the summit. They are No. 1 and they deserve their place.

Truly, the Mets have been Amazin’.

Heading into tomorrow’s mid-season game with Kenyon, the Fighting Scot football team will again be looking for its first game of total team consistency. The Lords-Scott game will be only one of the four athletic events scheduled for the annual Wooster Parents’ Day festivities.

In a very sparkless contest last Saturday, the Scots dropped their annual Conference game for the season— this time to the Denison, 21-7. "There are no excuses for the way we played at Granville," said somewhat frustrated Scot mentor Jack Leggett. "The players and the coaches were both disappointed in the lack of total team consistency." Paralyzed, Lengley continued, "I’ve never felt so inept on the sidelines before. We just never got a spark in our going, and Denison played a very aggressive ball game.

The Big Red scored the first time it had its hands on the ball. Sophomore quarterback Trevor Young moved his team 61 yards in 15 plays to the final play being a two-yard plunge over left tackle by fullback Tom Harrell for the score.

The Scots scored their only touchdown with 8:27 left in the first half driving from their own 35-yard line. The Scots moved to the Denison one-yard line in two plays. Sophomore fullbackJim DeRose dove over the center for the touchdown. Dave Potter kicked the extra point.

Late in the half, Tom Boardman stumbled the ball on the Denison 47 and the Big Red’s Scott Thompson recovered. From there, the Big Red drove to the 15-yards in 11 plays to pay off and tied 33-33. Hartlith again carried the ball for two yards and the touchdown. Steve Bailey kicked the PAT as he did for all three of Denison’s touchdowns.

A luckless Scot team came into the field in the second half and remained들은 went through most of the rest of the game. The closest the Scots came to getting on the scoreboard was 33 yards, nothing killed with the Scots only gaining yards on the ground and 33 through the air.

The Big Red scored its final touchdown with 1:54 remaining in the game. From a short drive of 14 yards in the fourth and final quarter from the Sudan, Young kept the ball on a right end sweep to score the touchdown.

Leading the Scots in rushing was freshman Paul Brookler with 76 yards in 16 carries. Brookler re- placed Wacker’s leading ground gainer, Ed Thompson, who did not play due to an injury he sustained in the Ohio Western game. "Wacker did a very com- mandable job for us," remarked Coach Lengley after the game.

In addition, Lengley had this to say about tomorrow’s Scot- kenay, "the Kentuckys in the past have been known as an easy prey, but the complexion has changed with the combination of Christian-Myers. They cannot be taken lightly anymore. The Lords will come here inspired." It looks as if the Scots will have another rough day ahead of them.

Harriers Pick Up First Victory

By JIM NELSON

Coach Hugh Ruffing and his cross country team captured their first victory in a big way, beating Muskingum, 29-14, on the home course last Saturday afternoon. Ruffing was very pleased with the team’s showing, “The squad is in real- ly getting into shape now,” he said. “We should be ready to make a fine showing in Parents’ Day tomorrow.”

Wooster times were good as each of the runners are steadily improving. The last time the Scots ran at Muskingum, no one broke into the Demarle range but last Saturday only one second.

Plan your whenary week's Thanksgiving Christmas plans travel by comfortable Greyhound bus. Destinations such as New York, Newark, Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Chicago are to be offered. Buses leave from the hotel at 10:00 one week next.
