STUDENTS REASSESS WOOSTER'S PRIORITIES

Monday, October 20, the Black Student Association confronted President Drushal with their concerns. The blacks' plan, although not yet specifically revealed, has set as a figure the admittance of 150 black students next fall. They were also concerned about financial aid cuts beginning in the Sophomore year. President Drushal asked the BSA where the white students stood in accordance to the blacks' concerns.

On Saturday, October 25, Jerry Waters, spokesman for the BSA addressed the white students of Wooster. He explained the blacks' meeting with Drushal; stated that the black students knew where they stood and knew that they would fight for their plan. Furthermore, having more black students at Wooster would give the whites a more relevant and a more real community in context with Black America. It would also help do away with singular white middle and upper-middle class views in classrooms. Jerry told the whites to get organized before Friday, October 31, when there will be a meeting between black and white representatives.

Beginning Sunday at 7:00, there was a series of discussions in the Lowry Center pit. Sunday, white students attempted to clarify the situation and began organization. Monday, three committees were formed: investigate financial aid system, investigate admission methods; and inform trustees and ask for their reaction. Tuesday, Mr. Copeland, Dean of Men, attempted to answer questions concerning financial aid and administration "sincerity." He stated that the administration had set a goal of having 150 black students at Wooster. The students discussed another proposal which involved admitting a Freshman class in which approximately 12 per cent of the class would be black. This procedure would continue each year. Wednesday, admission representatives will answer student questions. Thursday, President Drushal will confront the white students.

An average of 400 students have attended these discussions. There is a definite interest in black concerns at Wooster. But, there remains a long political struggle between students and administration. This past week has been the beginning of an awareness of black students and Wooster's isolated community.

Council Discussing Sixth's, Crandell's Housing Proposal

Concern over more flexible housing standards has long been in the wind, but it was not until last Wednesday's Campus Council meeting that concrete proposals by specific living units were discussed.

Originally scheduled for the October 29th agenda, proposals by Crandell House and Phi Sigma Alpha were withdrawn on October 28th when it was rumored that certain Council members representing the Administration would be unable to attend the week's meeting. Both Sixth Section and Crandell recognized the need of having as many Council members as possible in attendance, especially Deans Cropp, Coster and King.

At the time of the meeting, however, the only member absent was Cropp, and the body agreed that while a vote on a specific housing proposal demanded all 12 members be present, there was no sense in delaying much needed discussion.

John Crewson and Bob Dunsmore, communicating the sincerity with which the Crandell house proposal was conceived, replied to the questions and advice put forward by various members, notably Dr. Calhoun. The proposal which begins "Wishing to live as honestly and responsibly as possible, with full pride of group and self, we wish to set forward the plan for a new, more tenable, environment," goes on to eloquently articulate the rationale behind the house's action, and the corresponding limits and responsibilities if such a program were put into effect. Commenting on one aspect of the proposal which considers sexual conduct and alcohol to be matters of an individual's discretion, Dr. Calhoun indicated he hoped more emphasis would be placed on personal responsibility to one's environment. The proposal refers specifically to the local, state and federal laws regarding alcohol, drugs, theft and gambling and calls for visitation hours from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily.

After more than an hour of discussion, the Council went on to examine Phi Sigma Alpha's proposal. Well thought out, and with detailed attention to the intricacies of realistic judicial and legal system, the plan attempts to create a social system of peer pressure within which individuals are presumed to be mature and hypocrisy minimized.

Larry Lindberg, president of Sixth, explained that the fraternity was working towards implementing a change in the philosophy and standards of community living, with the hope that the College as an institution would soon recognize that its present social structure is at odds with individual freedom and responsibility, actually undermining rather than promoting personal maturation.

Lindberg explained that the anxious tone of the proposal was not designed to be threatening, but that the men of Sixth Section are just tired of working within a hypocritical system and wish action to be taken to implement a more realistic set of rules as quickly as possible.

After two hours of discussion, the Council adjourned, voting to invite the President to the next meeting. It is hoped a description of the social philosophy of the college will emanate from Wednesday's meeting, after which time a vote on such proposals would have a firm foundation.

Any junior interested in the Washington Semester Program should see Dr. Weeks immediately for details.

Voter Turnout To Determine Result In Tight Cleveland Mayoral Election

BY AL UNGER

"With a Little Help From His Friends," a benefit concert for Cleveland's Mayor Carl B. Stokes, might best describe the efforts being made by Wooster and mother college and high school students to re-elect Stokes. Peter Yarrow, Odetta, The Billy Taylor Trio, and Bill Gidney came to Cleveland last weekend as many Wooster students have over the past weeks to help the incumbent Stokes in his race against the Republican County Auditor Ralph Perk.

The backbone of the Stokes' volunteer effort is the "Young Folks for Stokes," a statewide group of college and high school students. For the past month they have been telephoning, canvassing door to door, and adding vitality to the efforts of Cleveland's mayor of two years, a vibrant young and progressive figure on the national scene.

Stokes faces an uphill fight as reflected by voter registration and turn-out figures of past elections. Since the 1967 mayoral election there has been a decline in voter registration in black, East Side Cleveland wards where his strength lies. At the same time, there has been an increase in West Side voter registration in what are almost solidly white, blue collar areas. For Stokes to be the victor on November 4, his vote from the favorable East Side Wards must run nine per cent ahead of the rest of the city. Therefore, if the West Side and ethnic wards on the East Side turn out 79 per cent, as in the 1967 race, at least 89 per cent of the registered voters in his East Side strongholds must vote. That is a substantial figure in any election. If the voting percentage pattern were to follow 1967, the Mayor would lose by 4,600 votes.

Beginning Friday, students will be arriving from points all over Ohio. Wilberforce, Central State, and Antioch alone have scheduled 10 buses.

Drushal Sees A College Commitment Of 150 Black Students By Next Fall

President Drushal stated at the open faculty meeting on Monday evening that he is personally committed to work toward the goal of 150 black students on this campus, if possible by next fall. This means that he is prepared to go before the Long Range Planning Committee and other necessary faculty and trustee committees to support this goal. He said, however, that he cannot commit the faculty and trustee committees. Furthermore, he said that this goal could only be obtained with the cooperation of everyone on the campus.

Drushal explained that $200,000 would be necessary to reach the goal for the scholarships and faculty salaries. "We could pick up $1,000 here or there on re-distribution of funds we already have, but we still have $1,000,000 to pay on debts. It's going to require a lot of leg work."

Students raised the question at the Lowry Center meetings this week of why the College could not re-allocate funds from such departments as public relations and physical education into a scholarship fund. Dean of Students, Henry Copeland, explained that the College sees the Physical Education Department as contributing to the philosophy of developing the full person — intellectually and physically — and, therefore, it is not probable that any funds can be used from that department. Copeland put the emphasis on fund raising, echoing Mr. Drushal's stand. Said Copeland, "Difficult as this task might be, it does not seem insurmountable." As for black students and employees working with the Admissions Department, Copeland stated that the College is working on getting a black intern in Administration for the Admissions Department for next year. Copeland hopes that black students will continue to help in recruiting, as three black students did last year. Responding to the events of the past week, Copeland finds it "encouraging that white students are concerned."

The Department of Development is already working to raise money for black scholarships. Said G. T. Smith of that department, "We have applications pending at two foundations." He explained that Wooster has an advantage in asking for foundation money since it is on record as having started the Lincoln Scholarship Fund on its own. Nevertheless, every school in the country is trying for this type of grant, and the competition is stiff.

Smith suggested that a Scholarship-Development Committee be set up especially for black student scholarship funds, and that the College set an objective for the next three to five years to keep this overall effort from becoming an ad hoc one that runs out of steam.

Volunteers will spend the days up to and including election day canvassing and telephoning.

Wooster students will be joining this effort. Volunteers are being signed up to go to Cleveland over the weekend and on Tuesday, election day.

During the final week of the campaign the candidates have been criss-crossing encouraging their supporters to go to the polls and to pick up new support from those who still remain undecided. Perk, a candidate with strong ethnic and homespun appeal, emphasizes in his campaign a concern for lowering the tax burden on the voter, a stronger stand on law and order, as well as his displeasure with the newspapers and critics who urge him to meet the Mayor in a face to face debate as every candidate for mayor has for the past thirty years.

Stokes is running on the accomplishments of his administration over a short first-term of two years. He cites $100 million in Federal funds which have been committed to Cleveland, revival of the downtown area with a renewed faith on the part of investors and developers, the improvement of health and recreational facilities, the modernization of the police department, and putting more men in the street.

It's In Our Hands

A long standing problem on this campus has been strongly articulated this week - - what concrete form is the College's concern for the black student going to take. A first step in that solution has been found - - increasing the number of black students here will bring Wooster closer to the "relevant" education that is its goal. The College community has chosen to commit itself to the problem. The action is now in our hands

Institutional change usually does not move as quickly as we would like to see. Implicit in the suggestions of the Black Student Association is the need for the constant re-evaluation of policies and priorities. We must not stop with the entrance of a large number of black students, but should critically examine the institution and environment which they as well as all Wooster students, will be living in. Intentions in the past have been good but it is the increase in pressure from students, responded to by the faculty and administration, that has speeded this week's re-evaluation of priorities. The immediacy of the BSA's suggestions has been brought to light in this manner. There is little need, at the moment, for philosophy or statistics since the only realization will come from commitment.

The foundation of this goal for a more diversified student body is financial and individual support. We must discover the means of channeling concern into cash and action. Is it unrealistic to envision a unified student body taking the time to ferret out sources for a scholarship fund, reaching the proportions of hundreds of thousands of dollars? Our words must be converted into a program. Here is a start:

FUND RAISING

- Students writing friends and possible donors and visiting them over vacation.
- Organizing work days.
- Visiting and contacting civic groups to ask for financial support for scholarships.
- Canvassing this area in search of donations.
- Visiting churches (The Synod does not allow soliciting in Presbyterian churches for operational costs but seeking scholarship aid is permissible).

RECRUITING AND ADMISSIONS

- Utilizing the intern in administration program immediately to add a black member to the admissions staff, while looking for a permanent member.
- Black faculty members recruited for a broadened Black Studies program.
- Students recruiting black students, visiting non-wasp areas, working for general diversity.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS

- Hiring an educational consultant(s) to examine and aid black recruitment and black curriculum.
- Setting up an exchange with transitional schools such as the Philadelphia's GLCA transitional program which admits black students to Great Lakes campuses after a semester in Philadelphia. This should eventually become a one-to-one program.
- Full utilization of the quarter system, i.e. a summer orientation program with a reduced course load and employment opportunities in the area.

We have spent a week in thought and discourse. Little remains to be said. We must gather all the resources available to the College, human and material, of those on the campus and beyond. Our words have deepened our commitment to diversified, "relevant" education. Our energies are now called upon. It is time for united action.

BLACK STUDIES THROUGH "PROPER" CHANNELS!

Honor Board Clarification

To the Editor:

The Honor Board, in conjunction with the Honor Code Revision committee, would like to clarify its function and operation to the students of the College of Wooster. Many times we are asked basic questions like who is on the board, how the trials are conducted and how much evidence is necessary for a person to be convicted. We feel it is important that the student body should be informed on these matters, especially in this year of the Honor Code revision.

The Honor Board consists of six members, five of whom vote. For the present school year these members include Neal Brown, chairman; Don Dewald sixth member; Karen Collins, Bill Dale, Jean Wilkerson and Nancy Oechsle. These members were chosen last spring after each filed a petition for application with the SGA. After reading the applications the Congress of the SGA chose who they felt to be the best qualified candidates. Anyone desiring to apply for one of these positions should get in contact with an SGA officer in the spring.

The responsibility of the Honor Board lies solely in the enforcement of the Academic Honor Code. This Honor Code at Wooster extends only as far as academic work is concerned, that is, the Honor Board does not deal with any social honor code.

The actual trial procedure is probably the least known operation of the board. The trial usually takes place in the Board Room of Galpin Hall sometime in the late afternoon. Present at the trial are the following people: the accused, the accuser, six members of the Honor Board, and three personnel deans. The chairman of the board presides. In keeping with traditionally recognized trial procedures the accused is confronted by his accuser and allowed to ask any questions he desires. After both the defendant and the accuser have been cross-examined by the board and the Deans, they are excused from the room. The three Deans also leave at this time. The six board members are left alone to decide the verdict and, if necessary, the penalty. It is impossible to say any certain amount of evidence is insufficient or adequate to determine the guilt or innocence of a person. Each case must be treated individually with all extenuating circumstances brought into consideration.

In order to protect the name of the accused, all persons involved are requested not to reveal the proceedings of the trial.

After the five voting members have reached a decision (by a least a 4-5 vote for guilt or innocence and 3-5 for the penalty) the Deans are consulted for their approval. If they comply with the board's decision, the verdict stands. Sometimes the board and the Deans do not agree, at which time, there will be more discussion of the case with a possible revision in the verdict or penalty. The penalties range from an "F" on a paper to suspension for three quarters. After the verdict is agreed upon, the sixth member must then inform the accused of the court's decision.

The function of the sixth member is that of investigator. It is his responsibility to inquire into all pertinent facts concerning a case, confer with the Deans to decide if sufficient evidence is available and present to the board the relevant facts of the case. Because he is more likely to be biased in his opinion, he is not allowed to vote at the trial.

It is the hope of the Honor Board, that by clarifying our function and operation, we can dispell most of the misunderstandings that now exist. We also hope we can aid the Honor Code Revision Committee by making our position and function well known to the student body.

S.G.A.: Sewing Society?

To the Editor:

The recent move underway to abandon the SGA Constitution dissolving the SGA Congress into a set of committees reminds me of a ladies sewing society.

Having attended the National Student Association Congress, serving as a SGA Committee chairman, and as a SGA Congressman last year, I too have some observations about the SGA. First, it has always been evident that the success of the SGA rests on the leadership and drive of its members. If the SGA President makes his two speeches each year and collects his salary only, then the SGA rests in peace for a year.

Last year the SGA Congress exercised power by drafting a proposal for beer in the union, polling the student body and proposing a voluntary chapel policy, approved the coed dorm proposal, obtained longer Andrews Library hours, and created the Vocational Services Committee.

Now we are told that the Congress has no practical power and that is should "stop playing the game of representative democracy."

So, a few Platonic Guardians in the SGA have decided they can suspend the SGA Constitution without consulting the students. Clearly, they have usurped power here, for only a vote of the student body can amend the Constitution.

Last year each student paid $6.50 each to the SGA programs which were approved by the SGA Congress.

If there is no Congress this year, who will determine where your money is going inside the SGA?

Now the SGA has yielded what power it had to the new campus panacea known as Campus Council. From the SGA Congress' attempt at representative democracy we are handed another oligarchical board of trustees.

If Wooster students can no longer find a legislative student forum within the SGA, I suggest a new student coalition be formed which listens to students and assumes the responsibility of power. Since the SGA is preoccupied with how it can circumvent its Constitution, it is time that a concerned group of students press the administration on vital campus issues.

It is time to have explained to the students why tuition actually was hiked $450 this year since we are going to school two weeks less. It is time to ask why the College cannot recruit more black students. It is time to object to the present Chapel requirements system which is worse than a fine, since now Chapel attendance is made a requirement for graduation.

It is your money the SGA is spending and it is your Constitution they are avoiding. As the deans have long said, "The SGA doesn't represent the students because it can't even follow its own rules."

Well, as the saying goes, I guess "I dream of things that never were and ask 'why not?'"

Bill Spratley

Moratorium

The Moratorium to end the war in Vietnam continues. 180 Wooster students and at least 10 faculty members have signed up to participate in the Moratorium in Washington. The American people are being called to Washington on November 13-15 for the "March Against Death," and a mass march and rally. At midnight, November 13, the first of 50 state delegations totalling about 45,000 people, will begin their solemn walk from Arlington National Cemetery in a single-file procession past the White House to the steps of the Capitol. Each member in this procession will represent one dead American soldier or a Vietnamese town.

This march will end 36 hours later on the steps of the Capitol, followed by the march and rally. Members of the Wooster student body and community will be in Washington on this day. Buses will leave Wooster at midnight on November 14 and arrive at 8:30 a.m. in Washington. That night, November 15, the buses will leave Washington at midnight and return to Wooster at 8:30 on the 16th of November. The round-trip cost will be no more than $13. Students not at the Wednesday night meeting who would like to go to Washington, are to contact Bob Bonthius, chairman of the Social Action Committee, at Box 1155, or extension 449.

SAC is also planning Moratorium Days' activities in Wooster for those not going to Washington.

Cleveland Urban Quarter

To the Editor:

As a student currently enrolled in the Cleveland Segment of Wooster's urban studies program, I am concerned about the general naivete on campus concerning the Cleveland quarter, specifically, and the urban studies program in general.

For those who have participated and especially those who are about to participate, the urban studies program is a unique opportunity at Wooster. It is unique because it offers a special kind of relevance to each student's own academic schedule. It is unique because you can count on one hand the number of undergraduate institutions where full credit is offered for; an urban field experience. This is the kind of program which is generally offered only at the graduate level. In recognizing the validity of undergraduate field work and research in an urban setting, Wooster is perhaps a bit ahead of its time. When we consider, however, the real needs of students to get involved in the non-academic, practical learning experience, the other colleges and universities are perhaps lagging behind in their academic programs.

Ask Ray Day of the Sociology Department how Wooster's urban studies program compares with, say, VISTA's training program. Of course, as is the case with any structure geared toward a learning experience, there is a basic inescapable human flaw — growth and learning are directly proportional to input. What are the basic standards for good input into the urban studies quarter? Speaking out of the context of my experience in Cleveland, would list commitment, flexibility, and loyalty as necessary prerequisites. commitment to learning about the field of "urban affairs," flexibility and an open mind throughout the various stages of orientation and participation, and loyalty to the people with whom you will be working. . The Cleveland Cooperative Urban Studies Center, under the very capable direction of Mrs. Lucille Huston, offers every opportunity to work, learn, and grow, both within the classroom and the urban field setting.

All day Monday, November 3, Mrs. Huston will be on campus for informal talks and meetings with faculty and students. Ten students from each of the four participating colleges at the Cleveland center, Oberlin, Hiram, Heidelberg, and Wooster, will be accepted for the winter quarter. Times and places should be verified with Ray Day or any member of the Urban Studies Committee. Applications should be in, with faculty approval, by Monday, Dec. 1, 1969. Mrs. Huston and I hope to see all those interested in the Cleveland program on Monday.

Did The "Cow" Miik The Students

To the Editor:

I would like to ask the editor of the 1968-69 "COW" why he published a yearbook for himself and his associates at the expense of the majority of the student body. I feel that a yearbook should be something that can be enjoyed in the future for its reminiscent value. However, when I see some long-haired hippie walking on a sand dune, it does not remind me of Wooster. In fact many of the pictures in this oversized picture book are nothing but pure art, and I cannot even tell what some of them are supposed to represent. I am not condemning the value of this type of art, but I do not believe that its place is in the yearbook of the College of Wooster. I will concede that some of its fantastic photography, but I cannot believe that this abstract, irrelevant, and even wierd collection of Photo 399's work is supposed to represent a yearbook. If the author, who was undoubtedly a member of Photo 399, wanted to show off his work, then he should have found some other vehicle.

SGA Report

The SGA Congress met Sunday night with 11 of 16 members present, thus gaining the quorum which was lacking at the first meeting a week ago Wednesday. The Congress members present unanimously passed the proposal presented by SGA President Mark Thomas to suspend the SGA by-laws for the 1st quarter.

There were no major arguments presented against Thomas's proposal at the meeting. Thus the by-laws of the SGA are suspended and the Congress is now a committee charged to formulate a new SGA Constitution. The first meeting of the new committee — with Bob Gates, a junior who served in Congress last semester, as chairman — will be this Monday, Nov. 3.

The Congress will divide itself up into smaller groups to facilitate better discussion of various matters. At least one subdivision will be concerned with the question of what is the basic premise for a student association, and what does such an association hope to accomplish. Thomas definitely feels that "this is not a futile experiment."

He has asked the committee to consult with other schools, specifically those in the G.L.C.A., on how they are dealing with their problems and to obtain documents from them as a basis for comparison.

Thomas warned against analyzing the present constitution section by section as he feels this ties them to the past. He would rather see an entirely new document created.

If a new document is formulated it will have to be approved by the student body and the Campus Council.

The six member SGA Cabinet is technically a part of the committee. Thomas, however, sees its role as being an infrequent one, free too make suggestions to the committee as needed.

The Cabinet along with the Board of Committee Chairmen of the SGA will temporarily take the place of the Congress in carrying out its functions. Although this group is not as representative of the campus, since all but the six Cabinet positions are appointed ones, it can still make recommendations to the Constitutional Committee and the Campus Council. The main function of this group will be to keep abreast with what is happening on campus. Thomas has directed all SGA Committee Chairmen to submit requests to the Black Student Association for representatives from the B.S.A. to serve on all SGA committees. Currently all SGA committees are white which paralyzes them in some activities. Since certain committees' functions are to deal with situations impossible for an all white committee to handle. This, Thomas feels, will help to meet the need for black representatives, to deal more realistically with the situations on campus.

Student Opinion

What Can I Say?

BY NATE SPEIGHTS

We hear an awful lot about morality today, in this reporter's opinion too much. Why? Because the trend is now to be a concerned student and here at the College of Wooster where such animals are a rarity we are unable to weed out the student who looks concerned from the ones who are concerned. The issue on campus now is the increased enrollment of Black Students. Where I stand on this issue is important but it seems that in a white institution it does not so much matter what I think unless my opinion coincides with the views expressed by the white mass. Most of you belong to that White mass and there are probably a thousand thoughts running about in your mind about the "Black Challenge." One predominant thought, whether you want to admit it or not, is what are we going to do with 150 more Blacks on this campus. Is our campus going to become like other campuses where increased Black enrollment has resulted in violence? This reaction is fear. Fear causes a man to act wrongly, to lose sight of causes and of perspective. The actual cause of racial tensions on other campuses was the white masses turning a deaf ear to the voice of the Black man on his campus. Don't become alarmed; this is not a threat. It is simply an observation of tendencies which seem to proceed in a situation that has been created on this campus.

Let's take a look at the College of Wooster as it pertains to the Black: The college began admitting black students for a myriad of reasons. The most important one being that Blacks have been known to excel in the fields of entertainment and athletic competition (for reasons I won't go into). Since entertainment is a dirty word on campus we must assume that the main reason for bringing Blacks on campus must be athletic endeavor. In the early sixties almost every Black on campus was a "Jock." No I'll go farther "A Super Jock." Now to keep these gentlemen happy we (the whites, I've changed my way of thinking momentarily because due to my environment I can think White) realized that man does not live by bread alone so we invited the sweethearts and girl friends of our Black athletes to come to campus. But in our quest for superior athletic teams we began admitting more and more Black athletes. not to seem too obvious we admitted also a few Black Lizards, and lost sight of the "Boy-Girl" ratio until today I think it's 48 to 20. Which is not "too" ridiculous. I mean after all look at the opportunity we are offering the Black man. I'm sure that every Black male is happy to be at the COW drinking the pure white milk of Wooster knowledge as opposed to being in Vietnam fighting in a disproportionate number to further the cause of White supremacy. Another reason for admitting (more) Blacks is the cry for a relevant education by all American students. Is the percentage here at the COW comparable to the nationwide figures (11-18 per cent) or are we (Whites) at the highest stage of relevancy that we desire? What is relevancy?

The Black student comes to the COW with visions of the college being "person-centered" and thus able to help him adjust to the new environment (upper middle-class White protestant) but he quickly learns that he is merely a guinea pig for White observation. From his first day on campus Whites are quizzing him "as a Black man how do you feel about ..." Thus in effect the Black man on campus is earning his financial aid package by sharing his views with the student body and the faculty: students are teaching faculty! The Black teaching load does not decrease with years spent at the COW, however his Financial Aid does. What faculty members would stay here one second if his salary was inversely proportional to his teaching load. What is being said to the COW is "lighten our teaching load by bringing in more Black students to help with the education of the White man." Freshman colloquium instructors have been disappointed with the lack of Black viewpoints in their classes because of disproportionate enrollment again this year.

The request for more Blacks on campus is not new this year. Last year the BSA requested 75 new Blacks for this year. The Administration made an effort; they accepted 60 Black applications. It is commonly known however that the COW always accepts 900 applications in order to get a class of 450. Does 60 sound like twice 75: This year however you have a chance to voice your opinion. Do whatever you feel is "morally" right. But in reading the memo sheet handed out by the administration "FACTS ABOUT STUDENT SCHOLARSHIPS (BLACK & WHITE) the last heading read to me REASONS WHY BLACKS (STUDENTS & PROFS) MIGHT LEAVE WOO. U. Whether Wooster becomes all white or relevant is as I see it up to you as a responsible citizen of the COW community.

Naggiar's Overtime Goal Gives Scots 2-1 Victory

By DAVE BERKEY

With a bid to the NCAA Mideast Regional tournament at stake, the Wooster Scots soccer team travels to Delaware tonight for an Ohio Conference game with the Battling Bishops of Ohio Wesleyan. In last week's action, the Scots lost a heart-breaker to Bowling Green, 1-0, and extended their Ohio Conference record to 5-0 with a 2-1 win over Denison.

The Bishops have always been tough for their Ohio Conference foes. This season Wesleyan won its first four games against Heidelberg, Dennison, Hiram and Wright State. Last week, though, the Bishops lost two straight 1-0 games to Kenyon and Oberlin, both previous victims of the Scots.

The big star for Ohio Wesleyan is its center forward, Ali Ladjevardi, from Iran. Their style is more of a long pass type than Wooster, but the Bishops use the same four-man line. Wesleyan played Ohio State Wednesday as a warm-up for tonight's clash at 7:30 p.m.

The Falcons of Bowling Green achieved their goal of revenge last Wednesday when they edged the Scots, 1-0. Last year on October 22, Wooster traveled to B.G. on a cold, windy day and beat the Falcons on a first quarter goal, 1-0. In '69 on October 22, Bowling Green came here on a cold and windy day and exactly reversed the process.

The only goal of the game came in the first quarter on a Falcon fast break. The Scot defense didn't have time to setup for the long pass play and the shot that scored came suddenly and broke Wooster's string of 14 consecutive shutout quarters. The Scots played an outstanding game the rest of the way, but they couldn't put the ball in the net.

Dennison's Big Red invaded Carl Dale Memorial Field last Saturday for Parents' Day with a big, strong team and a 5-3-1 record. The Scots were up to the task, however, and treated their fine crowd to a 2-1 overtime victory in a close game.

"Dennison was bigger physically than any team we've played this year," commented Wooster Coach Bob Nye after the game. The Scots were out-muscled and out-jumped by the taller Big Red on high passes and consequently resorted to a faster, more-skillful game plan.

The Scots jumped out to an early lead, and spirit was high on the Wooster side from the start. The team's leading scorer, co-captain Bob Dow, took a cross from sophomore Bruce Hiller at the right front of the goal and tapped a soft shot past the goalie. The goal came only six minutes into the game and it looked like a runaway.

But Dennison wasn't ready to concede that early and staged an attack of its own. With eight minutes remaining in the first period, a Dennison halfback's close-in pass was deflected by a Wooster defender. But the Big Red's top scorer, Ron Wells, moved in and sent a rifle shot into the top of the Wooster net. When the first quarter ended in a tie, the crowd knew that some fine soccer lay ahead.

After a life and death struggle for three quarters had produced no more goals, two five-minute overtimes were invoked. The seemingly deadlocked game had short life in the overtime. Wooster stole the ball from Dennison and moved quickly up the left side of the field. Freshman Jim Broehl passed ahead to sophomore Dave Naggiar who had a one-on-one with the goalie and slipped the ball past. A minute and 54 seconds had elapsed and the margin stood for the remaining eight minutes for the Wooster win.

Wooster outshot Denison 22-5. Goalie Ted Caldwell received the coaches' Most Valuable Player award for coming out in heavy traffic and grabbing many a ball. It was a balanced offense and defense that won it.

Scotties Blank Ohio Wesleyan, Tie Ohio U. On Finley's Goal

The Wooster women's field hockey team brought its record to 8-1-2 last weekend with a 2-0 victory over Ohio Wesleyan and a 1-1 tie with Ohio University on Parents' Day.

A week ago Wednesday, the Scotties journeyed to Delaware, O. to meet Ohio Wesleyan. Goals by Karen Duffy and Jane Jacobs produced the victory, Wooster's first after two straight scoreless ties with OWU.

In the Ohio University contest, both teams scored in the first half, then battled scorelessly during the final half. Jane Finley, whose total of 15 goals leads the squad, tallied

"Inconsistent" Scots Lose To Lords, Take Three Straight Losses To Hiram

By TOM HILT

The almost winless Fighting Scot football team will make a trip to Hiram tomorrow in an effort to get back on the winning trail. The Scots dropped their third straight and fourth game of the season last Saturday, 10-3, to the Lords of Kenyon College in front of a near-capacity Wooster Parents' Day crowd.

"Inconsistencies in the little things again seemed to be our major problem," said a dejected Scot head coach, Jack Lengyel. "Our inability to make the clutch play is a big problem."

"Our attitude and team morale was very high for the game; but our offense lacked the poise to make the critical down, and our defense lacked the poise to make the critical stop."

Late in the first quarter, the Lords drove 74 yards in 12 plays. With a fourth and 10 situation on the Wooster 16-yard line, Kenyon's Scott Huston kicked a 33-yard field goal.

Early in the second quarter, quarterback Paul Christen hit his ace receiver, Chris Myers, for gains of 28, 5, 14 and 17 yards in four plays which led to the lone touchdown of the game. With a first and goal situation, fullback Jim Schneider dove over to score. Huston kicked the extra point. It was an 80-yard drive of nine plays.

The Lords got the ball on their own 20 in the touchdown series after Wooster's soccer-style kicking specialist, Bob Macoritti, had attempted a 57-yard field goal. Macoritti's kick has the distance and the height for the field goal, but it was just to the right of the uprights.

Macoritti, a freshman from Hamilton, Ont., did put the Scots on the scoreboard in the third quarter with a 37-yard field goal. The series of plays before his field goal started at the Wooster 37 and ended with a fourth and six situation at the Kenyon 20-yard line. The Scots moved the ball 43 yards in 12 plays.

The Scots did not threaten again in the ball game. The Lords did. Driving from their own 22, they drove 58 yards in 11 plays. On a third and six play, Christen threw a pass intended for Myers but it was intercepted by Wooster's Bob "Blinky" Buchanan at the Wooster 10, and he returned it 17 yards to the Wooster 27-yard line.

Kenyon's second threat also was in the fourth quarter when Steve Miljenovic intercepted a Gary Vendemia aerial at the Wooster 18. The Scots held, and with a four and five situation on the Wooster 13, Huston attempted a 28-yard field goal. It was no good.

Going into the game as the second leading pass receiver in small colleges of the nation, Myers caught 10 passes for 184 yards. Christen completed 13 aerials of 32 attempts for 208 yards. He had two interceptions.

"Kenyon's Christen-Myers pair is a very fine combination," praised Lengyel. "Myers has considerable speed and excellent moves."

"With Parson and Schneider, Kenyon now has the complete attack which it lacked in years past. They're a much improved ball club," continued Lengyel.

Again substituting for injured Ed Thompson, freshman Paul Bronkar played another fine ball game. He gained 58 yards in 22 carries. Fullback Jim DeRose continued to play his determined, hard-nosed football with 53 yards in 17 carries. He has lost only two yards in five games.

Macoritti punted six times for 260 yards — an average of 43.3 yards. He had two 50-yard punts in the game.

The best words echoed by Lengyel in three weeks were heard last Sunday when he said Wooster's leading rusher, the Greenville Express — Ed Thompson — will definitely start tomorrow's game. The Scots will regain their much needed experience in the backfield with his return. Lengyel also indicated that Vendemia would start at quarterback.

Hiram lost to Mt. Union last Saturday, 35-19, but scouting Coach Marion Zody, said the score was not an indication of Hiram's potential. Hiram had controlled the entire ball game and only trailed 21-19 with less than two minutes to go.

Leading Hiram's offensive attack is a very fine quarterback, Don Wallace. He gained 48 yards in the Mount game. He was also 11 of 22 in the passing department for 160 yards. His favorite receiver is end Scott Ziemer who has considerably good speed and moves. Hiram's leading rushers are Kevin Maisch and Eric Thompson.

The Terriers are 2-2 in the Ohio Conference and 2-3 overall. It will be another tough day for the sagging Fighting Scots.

Voice of Sports

By PAUL MEYER
VOICE Sports Editor

One of the minor inconveniences inherent in the weekly nature of VOICE is that frequently we are forced to save our comments on a particular event for seven days. For example, last week our column on the World Series appeared a week after Cleon Jones caught Dave Johnson's fly ball for the final out. In other words, sometimes we are not very timely.

Well, fans, this week is no different.

During last weekend's Parents' Day festivities, particularly those having to do with the athletic events, we got to wondering what it's like to be the parent of an athlete. Here are some of our thoughts.

All too often, being the parent of an athlete is a vicarious vehicle into the past. It's a way of reliving those high school and college days when the parent was a third-string end on the football squad and never got to play unless the home team was ahead by 60 points. Through the career of his son who starts for the alma mater, Dear Old Dad is able to gain some measure of that success which he was never able to gain on his own.

The reverse, of course, is also true. Many boys suffer through their athletic careers as bench-warmers, never able to measure up to the standards set by their fathers 25 years ago. The boy is always reminded of his Dad's success — and is never able to achieve any of his own.

From Mom's point of view, being an athlete's parent can be a frustrating experience. The language of the athlete is completely foreign to her. She has trouble learning about "square-outs," "fast breaks," and "the hit-and-run." It's difficult for her to keep up with the batting averages and statistics of her son's latest heroes. It's easier for Mom to go to the games and chat with her friends than it is for her to follow the action on the court or field.

One mother in particular serves as a perfect example of this last point. It was this mother's fate to have a son playing for a high school basketball team which had one of the worst records in the state. Coming within five points of the opponent was a moral victory. It was cause for a parade through the downtown streets.

But on this one night, the local team managed to eke out a last second, one-point victory. The players whooped and hollered and danced with the cheerleaders after the final buzzer. The fans went berserk. And Mom? She had missed the last hectic seconds, had lost track of the score. She thought all the excitement was because her son's team had LOST by only one point!

Parents also have a hard time finding the right words after a tough loss. They sometimes fail to understand that often the best thing to do is just to leave their son alone for a few hours. Dad's sympathetic handshake and "Nice game, son," and Mom's kiss and "Tough luck," though well-intended, are frequently salt in an open wound. That wound is more likely to heal overnight by itself than it is with the help of parental prescriptions. The next day is usually the best time for the parents to talk about the 15-foot jumper which didn't drop or the touchdown pass that was dropped.

But though the best-laid plans of Mom and Dad often go awry, it's enough that they made the effort. It's enough to know that they care — even if they don't know the score.

Harriers Trip Wittenberg By One

By JIM NELSON

The College of Wooster harriers pleased the visiting parents with a victory in the triangular cross country meet held last Saturday on the Wooster course.

Scot coach Hugh Ruffing was pleased with his team's showing. "We won on a total team effort; everyone did their best job of the year," he said.

The Scots scored 28 points, one less than Wittenberg, in winning the big meet. Mt. Vernon Nazarene came in third with 78 points. It was Wooster's second win of the season.

Freshman Bob Brown paced the Wooster runners with a 22:15 timing that was good for second place behind Wittenberg's John Zerhle, who was clocked at 22:08. It was Brown's best effort of the season.

Doug Stoehr was next to cross the finish line for the Black and Gold. Stoehr placed fourth with a 22:30 time. Just seven seconds back in fifth place was Scot Ray Day. Ed Mikuelsen and Dave Pugh took seventh and 10th place, respectively, for Wooster, as the Scots captured five of the top 10 places.

Others placing for Wooster were Clarence Baudulph and Larry Lindberg. Tomorrow, Wooster will try to continue its winning ways when it hosts Ohio Wesleyan, Hiram and Mt. Union in an Ohio Conference quadrangular meet.

Sixth Blue Holds 1st.; Seventh Is 2nd.

League-leading Sixth Blue won its only game of the week to remain unbeaten in five outings and Seventh edged Sixth Gold, 18-12, to take over second place as the Intramural Football season moved past the halfway point.

Mike Milligan, the loop's leading scorer with 54 markers, hauled in a pair of touchdown passes from John Weaver to pace the Blue team to its 24-12 victory over Fifth. Hugh Hindman, who is third in the scoring race, and Bill Evans, who is tied for fourth, had the other two touchdowns for Sixth.

Seventh scored the first two times it had the ball against the defending champion Gold squad and then held on for the triumph. Sixth rallied from a 12-0 halftime deficit to tie the game in the last half, but a last-minute pass to Bill Spratley was decisive for the Chis.

In other games last week, Third captured its second win by beating Scord, 18-12, and Sixth Gold, behind two touchdown receptions by Bruce Hightshoe, shutout Third, 12-0.

Andrews First and Second floors continues to lead the B League with a 4-0 slate, but Kenarden G-H-I is right behind at 3-0.

Lomax: Reordering Of American Economic Priorities Necessary

By BOB COLTON

Louis Lomax, noted black author, spoke last Friday on "Two Revolutions: Youth and Race." Mr. Lomax saying that we are obviously living in a time of revolution, but that this one will in the long run affect the basic philosophic and practical underpinnings of American society.

Mr. Lomax stating that there are two concentric revolutions in American society, the black and the young. Lomax sees that by 1972 and surely by 1976 the political majority in this republic will be under 35, thus Richard Nixon's election was the last stand for the status quo.

In examining the two revolutions and the current state of American society, Lomax examined three main topics: "Law and Order," violence, and the re-ordering of economic priorities.

Hefeels that the common interpretation of "law and order" is simply the W.A.S.P. shorthand for "nigger" and thus people voted for Nixon "to get the niggers off the street and the hippies off the campus."

In considering violence Lomax asked why is it only now that America is uptight about violence. One must accept Rap Brown's observation that "violence is American as cherry pie." The issue thus is not one of black or young violence, but violence in America's history.

Mr. Lomax's main point was that nothing short of the re-ordering of the economic priorities in this country will bring calm and peace.

Mr. Lomax concluded by focusing on two institutions which he feels are the major instruments of American society in its attempt to keep the status quo: the college and the church. Lomax likened the college to a cookie cutter. Also, Lomax feels that one must see black studies as an attempt to correct white studies, ending academic nonsense and getting on with the business of education.

The church Lomax feels has been used by the white man in forming an anthropomorphical reasoning that has created God in his image, made God think like him, and for some even to think that they are God. That America has to get out of this anthropomorphic strait jacket and realize that "a brick is a brick is a brick . . ." "If you can't grow freedom, you can't export it."

Lomax stated that the only moral struggle today is being waged by the black, an the young. And that he could only conclude "With the hope to join those prepared to give their last full measure of devotion and that this nation, black and white, Jew and Gentile, shall indeed have a new birth; both rich and poor, and that the battle dead from the fields to the picket lines shall not have died in vain."

IRVING R. LEVINE; 3 P.M. SUNDAY AT SEVERENCE

Irving R. Levine, NBC News foreign correspondent for 18 years will speak Sunday at 3 p.m. in Severence. His talk, sponsored by the Chapel Committee, will be entitled "A Foreign Correspondent's Report."

Currently the Mediterrean Director for NBC News, Levine is based in Rome, but travels widely. Recent assignments have taken him to Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia and Greece reporting on political unrest. Levine also covered the first heart transplant in South Africa and delivered the first report of the British devaluation of the pound. Being based in Rome, he stays in tune with Vatican affairs, often accompanying the Pope on trips abroad.

Prior to Levine's assignment in Rome, he was NBC's Bureau Chief in the U.S.S.R.

Mr. Levine's reports are seen nightly on the Huntley-Brinkly Show and other NBC news programs and specials.

Where's "Who's Where"?

"Who's Where" is coming, according to editor, Ellen Robinson. Upperclassmen will remember that last year's issue came out on November 6. This year copies will be distributed on or around the week of November 9. Ellen stated that this issue has not been delayed although the publication date is being set by the printer, and it is up to them what date they come out.

Individual copies will be distributed to the Post Office boxes as soon as possible with extra copies available to head residents for dorm phones. Ellen promises that this year's issue will be better organized with more information and improved listings. Wooster students, your anonymity is marked for extinction!

Tighter Incomplete Schedule

A tighter schedule for incomplete grades has been approved by the faculty and is now in effect.

When a grade of "I" is given, the work must be completed by the last day of classes of the first week of the next quarter, or the grade becomes an "F." A student previously had four weeks to turn in his work, and under the new system, a grade may stand for longer than the first week, but only with the prior permission of Dean Cropp.

The faculty Committee on Academic Standards, which drew up the approved proposal, finds that incompletes present a serious problem for that committee, and recommended further that professors who assign incomplete grades be required to submit a short written statement describing each incomplete grade.
