Buses To Carry 200 Migrants To Oberlin Game

Two hundred students will board buses at 11 a.m. tomorrow, November 16, to attend the annual football game between Oberlin and Carthage. The students will leave Oberlin after a long wait for the buses.

The performance at St. Claire will be at 4 p.m., in the First Protestant Church. Tickets for the performance here at the college will be at 6 p.m. at the Commons.

S.C.C. Brings German Visitor To Study Wooster, U.S. Schools

A young German teacher, Mr. Erno Paul, is a visitor to the United States for the purpose of seeing more of this country. He is especially interested in education, and this is his primary interest. Mr. Paul is one of the leading educators in Germany, and he has been invited to visit the United States as a representative of the German government.

Mr. Paul will travel throughout the United States, visiting schools and universities. He is particularly interested in the educational system of this country and how it differs from that of Germany.

Mr. Paul will stay in various cities, including New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles. He will meet with educational leaders and attend conferences and seminars. He will also visit some of the leading universities and colleges in the country.

Mr. Paul has been scheduled to give a lecture at the University of California at Berkeley on the topic of "Education in Germany." He will discuss the German educational system and the role it plays in society.

Mr. Paul is looking forward to his visit to the United States and learning more about the American educational system. He hopes to share his insights with his colleagues in Germany and contribute to the ongoing dialogue about education around the world.
As We Say It...
The Communist Bogye

The word "COMMUNISM" used as an accusation has played a prominent part in the recent elections, and was continually on the lips of conservative politicians. The Administration was accused of "Communist codding." State Department was declared to be "Red-tainted," and various Fair Deal liberals were said to be "soft" towards Communism. These accusations have also been used in a less overt manner. Some party leaders have strenuously exercised their influence on the election results, and became many of the "petty bourgeois, Communist" crowd got into public office.

THESE SEEMS to have grown up a climate of political fear which, according to accusation and evidence as Communism without resort to fact. It is a climate in which persecution has become a political liability. Many in California recently fled to Mexico, and Jim Mur, a radio actor, lost her job because her name was mentioned in the Communist publication which seeks to capitalize on the general alarm about the state and fear. Residents of Los Angeles were urged to report any suspicious activities were told that the information conveyed to the police need not be disclosed.

The prevailing insulation has threatened our Justice Department with what two prominent judges have termed the "creeping subversion of the judicial process." Newspapers have said that the expansion of government is occurring in the winning of the battle, that the"waving of a red flag" among the things in which anti Jews, non-acquisitions, particular, non-legal activities are involved.

We must not resort to coercion until it is legally demonstrated that there is a threat to the public order. We cannot afford to be in a hurry, and we must not act rashly.

The principal difficulty encountered with this last question was the project of "propaganda in the press." "Side effects," radio and similar results, are mentioned in the press. It is difficult in any how much propaganda is included in this category, given the evidence in its judgment.

A substantial part of the question, lastly, was the question how long the Republicans would be able to sustain it in its current status with conventional means.

We do not think that the practice of the press will include the asking of any of these questions, or the making of any attempts to determine how well-written newspapers are.

Brotherhood Meals

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the White House for its support of the Brotherhood Meals Program. Through the generosity of the White House Program, the White House is able to support a large number of families in the area with food and clothing.

We appreciate the White House's cooperation with this program, and we are grateful for the support it provides to our community.

Sincerely,

Compartment Is The Cry!

The current state of the American economy is a major concern to many people. The high cost of living and the lack of job opportunities have made it difficult for many families to make ends meet.

I believe that the government should take steps to address this issue. One way to do this is to invest in education and job training programs.

Sincerely,

Who Says Who's Stricter?

At the University of North Carolina, the student body has voted to eliminate the racial quota system. This change was made in an effort to ensure that all students are treated equally and given equal opportunities.

The decision was made after a lengthy debate on the issue. Many students praised the change, while others expressed reservations.

Sincerely,

The Bob Sled

As an Ohioan, I love the Ohio State football team, even though I attended Ohio State as an undergraduate. The Bob Sled is my favorite college football team. I've been a member of the Ohio State Alumni Association for over 20 years, and I've attended every home game since 1990. With the Ohio State Buckeyes in the mix for another national championship, the Bob Sled is certainly a team to watch this season. The Bob Sled is known for its strong defense, led by the Ohio State defense coordinators. The Bob Sled is also known for its powerful offense, led by the Ohio State offense coordinators. With the Bob Sled in the mix for the Big Ten championship, it's a great time to be a Bob Sled fan. I'm excited to see what the Bob Sled will do this season.

MORE ON... Danner, Moke At Geology Session In Washington

Across the Geological Society of America's Washington this weekend were William R. Danner and Charles R. Moke of the geology department.

The convention, held annually to present professional geologists from all parts of the country, consists of high-quality papers and discussions on recent research in various fields of geology. A number of the members announce the program of his choice or the one designed to meet his individual interests.

Mr. Duncan specializes in科学s, surgery, and palaeontology while Mr. Moke's interest lies in mineralogy and speleology.
