Violent lawbreakers?

The above comparison of our situation to the fable of the fox and the grapes is little for further critical consideration. Kenyon Hall has a $5,000 fire alarm system which engages the faculty and students in an educational institution. They apparently have failed to profit from the lesson taught by the Fox, Wiscomb College, where a supposedly fire alarm system turned to the great danger and loss of lives. Because of its material state, fire alarm systems require regular inspections and regulations, forcing all colleges in the state to add new and costly features to the fire alarm system.

TWO thousand students wonder if their field of study is worth the four years of school at the College of Wooster. It would find itself literally a ghost school with only a handful would not necessarily be campus leaders nor on the dean’s list.

Looking at these additional facts objectively, what does this mean? Our major concern should be to student leaders. To support the legal nature of the lawbreakers? The answer is no. The drinking, smoking, cutting, and other illegal activities are regulated by the administration.

A critical conclusion must be that the rule is unreasonable and consequently ineffective. Completely unrealistic is the administration’s attempt to keep students from breaking a rule to which they are voluntarily opposed and which they had no voice whatever in making. It is reasonable to say that the rule is needed for lawbreakers.

One wonders whether the only way it can ever be enforced is directly by the administration and faculty. In other words, if faculty members are expected to make some punishment reasonable, it would most likely be before a trial by jury. If not, more students would be willing to abide by the ruling.

Another aspect of this matter is, should the try to be taken on this score, history papers are like Walkerville.

Does this mean to the question of whether the Wooster fire alarm system is necessary for all the students, that we should close down the system altogether? This editorial is not written to encourage chapel abolition nor to demand complete abolition of compulsory chapel. It was written so that the opinion might be heard. It is written to show to the administration in the direction of realistic modification. This is the only serious agreement among students to the effect that the penalty is too severe and the way it is carried out is unreasonably.

The Wooster student newspaper, the Beacon, had an article on the topic, and, it seems to me, there is something to be said for the Wooster fire alarm system.

Swimmers Bounce Back In Home Pool To Edge Kenyon 43-41 On 5 Firsts

Black and Gold swimmers returned to the status of victors Wednesday afternoon in their home pool when they captured five firsts and five seconds to edge Kenyon 43-41.

The victory gave the men's squad a 1-0-1 record and one record for the young swimmers who placed third in a loss in the opening meet.

Coastal Georgia's Larry Price, Dave Carter, and Dennis Hall showed the way for the Hans by winning the first event, the 50-yard medley relay. An error Freeman Hall finished a full length ahead of his opponents.

On taking the lead, the Hans continued to win events, winning the 100-yard breast, 200-yard medley relay, and the 400-yard freestyle relay.

In the 15-year-old individual medley John Irvin and Dave Cartledge took first and second.

The swimmers travel to Baldwin-Washington State this weekend.

COLLEGE ATHLETES are the center of nation-wide attention and support, and are expected to do well back from the college president conferences in Urbana and the football coaches' conferences in Cincinnati. The presidents expressed basic approval. Coming from this statement, it must be admitted that all college athletic directors and coaches were probably in agreement with this plan.

Student Poll Favor Some Coed Meals; Opposes Commons

Good eating is favored by majority of students on this campus, according to a recent student poll taken by the Senate at the request of the Board of Trustees shortly before vacation.

The questionnaire also concerned the problems of cafeteria vs. several meals and dormitory dining rooms vs. a common-central dining hall. The treatment and results will be included in a consideration in establishment of future dining facilities.

Nearly 600 students were polled, with 413 voting for coed eating, 208 favoring dormitory eating and 375 respondents with the exception of breakfast.

Among vigorous comments received on the sheet were these that coed eating would "save the line of conversation of men," and that it would help the dining situation for the girls, in addition to improved manners in general.

A breakdown of the voting follows:

1. You do favor eating...
   a. In separate dining halls in the dining area on campus...
   b. In a College common-central dining hall...

2. If a central dining hall or coed dining area were established you would favor...
   a. All cafeteria service...
   b. All seated service...
   c. Cafeteria just at breakfast...
   d. According to amount of meals...

3. If any dining hall facilities were added, you would favor...?
   a. Coed eating at all meals...
   b. No coed eating
