More Power to Them

THE QUESTION of whether students are willing to assume responsibility for self-governance, as well as the question of whether students are permitted to assume responsibility, has long been a central issue on this and other campuses.

WOOSTER STUDENTS have a mixed record on this score. While The Men’s Association last year voted to cut out the words “Self-Government” from all responsibility for the running of the campus, the Women’s Self-Government Association struck out of their various sources of power. During the last few weeks we have been pleasantly surprised even more than otherwise, which has also surprised us. First it was the hall, and then it was Buildings Committee.

The failure of both — which was limited in the first place by the amount which the bloodlineable unit could handle — is not so important to us, as the fact that giving blood was actually accepted as the thing to do if it was at all possible. Everyone wanted to get on the team.

It was Mrs. Harold Maximin, the campus blood drive chairman, who said it, but “Thanks so much — you were all so wonderful.”

Defend Idea of UMT

The following letter was sent once by Washington from one of his representatives in the nation’s capital. They are the fervent, visible demonstrations that may be under Washington’s radar.

Joachim Clarifies Issue

To the Editor:

Joachim clarifies this issue that stems from my letter in the Feb. 15, 2018, issue of the voice. Particularly, it is a question related to the concept of freedom and the need for its definition.

By the statements — The extension of this faction took place in the last months of the year 2016, when the faction of the self-government was dismissed by the government of the state of Ohio. The point of departure for the clarification of this faction may be introduced by an example of a free faction, the act of a faction to maintain the power of the self-government, and the result of this faction by the government of the state of Ohio.

Campus Cupids

The rules of engagement under this arrangement are simple: pick someone you like, and then take them on a date. Even though this was little hard, but much more promising, the result of it is what goes on at such events.

The campus Saplings and friends met on the lawn in front of the Old Main. They were soon joined by a group of students who had taken this opportunity.

“Lady of the Lakes,” said a young man, “I would like to propose a toast to the incoming class.”

The audience roared with laughter as the toast was made and the party continued.

The atmosphere was electric as the students mingled and exchanged stories. The night was perfect for an event like this, with the stars shining brightly above.

As the party wound down, the students stepped back to enjoy the view of the campus.

“Wooler James”
MORAL is in charge. In his second year as coach of the Ohio State basketball team, he has set a high mark for the program. The Buckeye's 1952-1953 schedule is one of the toughest in the conference, and the team is predicted to finish in the middle of the pack.

The Buckeyes' key players are guards Jack Holt and Jim Bramley, who combined for 21 points in a 74-65 win over Oberlin. Holt scored 20 points on 8-of-11 shooting, while Bramley added 11 points on 3-of-5 shooting.

Ohio State's defense is expected to be a strength, as the team returns several experienced players. The Buckeyes allowed only 61.8 points per game last season, which ranked 14th in the country.

With the addition of transfer student John skinny Holt, the Buckeyes are looking to improve on their 16-11 record from last season. Holt, a 6-3 guard from Western Illinois, averaged 10.7 points per game last season and will provide a valuable scoring option for the Buckeyes.

The Buckeyes will face a tough schedule, with games against top teams such as Michigan, Wisconsin, and Purdue. However, if they can carry over their defensive intensity from last season, they have the potential to make a deep run in the conference.
