CONCERNING YOUR FUTURE

A very real opportunity is offered Wooster students during the period of time devoted to career work. Cooperating with Mr. Barrett, the Guidance Department has arranged conferences with various fields and professions. These people donate their time to help students find a vocational interest.

While these conferences have always been rated as successful in the past, students and freshmen have been frequently lacking in receiving the benefit of the meetings. Sophomores especially should be assigned to designate their majors at the time of their registration. Career week gives them a chance to see what opportunities exist in many fields of endeavor and, by finding an area of interest early, a more intelligent selection of major can be made.

It is a rare privilege which we have to meet prominent people face to face. We, as students, are often afforded the opportunity of meeting them in their various fields. Proper student interest insures that these conferences will be continued.

PROFESSOR SCHINDLENSOOP'S SHORT COURSE ON DAVID COPPERFIELD

by Bill White

(Edward's Note-Prof. Schindleensoop, alot, along with Abraham Lincoln, is planning on giving a speech at the annual celebration of the anniversary of President Lincoln's birthday in California kitchen for six days. He was asked to be served for a Sunday meal. The first day was Saturday and the second day was Sunday. The third day was Monday. The fourth day was Tuesday. The fifth day was Wednesday. The sixth day was Thursday. The seventh day was Friday. As he was served on the seventh day, he was served on the first day of the week. Therefore, he was served on the first day of the week, and the second day of the week, and the third day of the week, and the fourth day of the week, and the fifth day of the week, and the sixth day of the week, and the seventh day of the week.)

About this time Aunt Betty Trevor was all of her money. This, Dickens pointed out, was because it was not a very good time for her to be on her own. She was needed on the farm and needed to help with the chores. They were married and had two children, a boy and a girl. They lived in a small cottage at the edge of town. Although they were poor, they were happy and had a strong family bond.

After leaving the farm, they moved to the city of London, where David and Aunt Betty decided to start a new life. They opened a small shop and sold food, which they had made themselves. They were very successful and were able to support their family. David was a hard worker and was able to provide for his family.

In the end, David and Aunt Betty were able to save enough money to send their daughter to university. They were very proud of her and felt that they had done the right thing by their children. They were able to support them throughout their education and provide them with the opportunity to pursue their dreams. This was a rare privilege which they were able to provide, and they were grateful for the chance to do so.

Birds Began To Pair

by Marcus Linas

Most of us have heard of the famous Dr. St. Valentine's Day story of the birds and how they find mates. This story is often told in love books and is a favorite of many people.

For this reason:

"St. Valentine's day when every bird had cause to choose his mate. At this time the dead go to their graves and and the birds lay their eggs. Many men have been happy for this reason, as they have been able to receive a letter from a loved one."

After a few of these, the birds lay their eggs. They were then studied by Dr. St. Valentine's Day who had been studying birds for several years. He was able to determine the reason why birds pair off during this time of year.

The reason for this is that birds have an annual cycle of reproduction. They mate and then lay eggs to ensure the survival of their species. This is a natural process and is essential for the survival of the species. It is a rare privilege to be able to observe this process in nature.

Appreciation, old age, and conscience to a casual observer do not seem to be very closely related to one another. But as the years pass and one grows older, the importance of these factors in a parallel of college life with actual life becomes more apparent. We at Wooster have the opportunity to recognize this fact every year when we celebrate the college day. This day offers us the opportunity to reflect on our past experiences and to appreciate the sacrifices that our predecessors have made for us.

There are a number of interesting anecdotes associated with this tradition. One such anecdote is the legend of "Dr. Valentine," the singing bird who appears at midnight on Valentine's Day. It is said that Dr. Valentine is a bird who has been known to sing for many years at this time of year. He is a symbol of the love and devotion that is shared between people on this special day.

Another interesting tradition associated with this day is the sale of "Valentine's Day cards." These cards are given to loved ones as a way of expressing one's feelings. It is said that the first Valentine's Day cards were created by a young man named John控 who wanted to send a special message to his loved one on this special day. Since then, these cards have become a popular way of celebrating Valentine's Day and sharing love and appreciation with others.

In conclusion, Valentine's Day is a day of appreciation, old age, and conscience that is celebrated by many people around the world. It is a rare privilege to be able to participate in this special tradition and to reflect on the importance of these factors in our lives. It is a time to remember the sacrifices that our predecessors have made for us and to express our appreciation and love for one another.
Wooster Swimmers Trounce Fenn, 62-22
Come Back To Upset Kent State, 51-33
Taking all but one first place, the Wooster Scot swimmers defeated Fenn College swimming team 62-22 on Jan. 13th and then continued on their winning ways by upsetting Kent State 51-33.

At Fenn, the Scots were never in trouble. They took first in every event, but four divers followed and then their four events and their two relay events. It was a different story at Kent State. Wooster got off to a good start and was in fourth place in the Kent State meet but came back to go in front 32-21. The swimming returned back and forth until Romano took a first in the 400 to catch the meet for the Scots.

Cagers Add Ohio Conference Victories
At Denison 83-79, and Hiram, 98-64
Traveling to two opponents, the Scots squad in two games added two Ohio Conference victories to its total, taking a tight 83-79 win from Denison University and a whipping Hiram College in a one-sided 98-64 encounter.

At Denison on February 8th with a very poor first quarter put the Scots in deep trouble with a 12-12 deficit. The Big Red jumped its margin to 20-18 midway in the second quarter before Wooster came back strongly to take control of the game.

Denver led again after three quarters, 50-47 and the lead shrank to 35-34 after the fourth.

At Hiram on February 10th the Tigers took a 24-18 lead but Wooster came back to win a 98-64 contest. The quarter margin was 21 points but the game was decided within a single bucket, 75-35, when the Scots put the game out of reach and never allowed the second quarter.

French, "Je ne m'appelle pas..."

is nothing more than a misreading of our daily life. We have no French, no real French, no real students. The term is a different one. I don't know the meaning of the term "French," but for me it means something much more than simply a language. It means a way of thinking, a way of looking at the world, a way of understanding our place in it. It means a respect for other cultures and a desire to learn from them. It means a commitment to the idea of unity in diversity. And above all, it means a love for life and a desire to live life fully.

"Je ne m'appelle pas..." is a French phrase that means "I am not who I appear to be." It is a phrase that speaks to the idea of being more than what we seem on the surface. It is a reminder that we are all more than what we appear to be, and that there is always more to life than what we see at first glance.
