MR. NORMAN COUSINS

It Says Here . . .

by Don Reiman

Well, everybody has cast his ballot, and the last of the clubs have elected officers for next year. At meetings last week Pembroke chose Mary Crow as president for the coming year, and THE Corporation elected a full slate of officers. Dave Gamble will serve as president; Dale Kitzmiller, veep; Bob Kerr, secretary; and Lee Butts, treasurer.

Now, to depart from tradition, I'd like to take a little space talking about a very controversial subject: Wooster's social situation. Bob Atwell told us last week in a Senate chapel about the Senate's dilemma. It seems that many transferring students, presumably many of them girls, have attacked Wooster's social program as childish.

Mike Winfield, Senate social chairman, has prepared a very excellent questionnaire in which each student can give his analysis of the Senate social program. After looking over the program, one comes to the conclusion that perhaps the most basic trouble with the social life of the campus is that not enough fellows date.

The program of all-college affairs includes Senate movies, vic dances in the Union and gym, athletic events all year round, six big all-college dances, class formals, Gum Shoe Hop, concerts, plays, Color Day activities, co-rec nights, carnivals, and the all-school ice cream social and street dance. In fact, counting section functions, club parties and dances, dorm formals, departmental clubs and the like, Wooster has a multitude of almost every type of social function except beer parties.

Wooster guys are no different than men at any other college. Some like to date, and some don't. The trouble is that with the 1 to 1 ratio, every time a man stays at home it leaves a girl high and dry. At some universities, fraternities put pressure on men to date. Many times the boy to girl ratio is as high as 7 to 1 in these schools. Dating is relatively cheap here at Wooster. There is no reason why all the fellows can't get out and circulate a little. It would do them good, and would lift the co-eds' sagging spirits.

Last weekend Joe H. Bindley, acting head of the political science department of the College of Wooster, traveled to New York City to attend the National Conference on Preparation for Political Participation.

This meeting, sponsored by the Citizenship Clearing House, was a synthesis of the information and opinions which had been presented at earlier regional meetings. The purpose of the conferences was to discuss improvements for the political science programs of the nation's colleges and universities.

Mr. Bindley was program chairman of the northern Ohio conference which was held at Lakewood on May 8 and 9. He also presided at the joint sessions of the conference.

Mr. Bindley left Wooster Thursday, May 14, and returned from the New York conference Sunday evening, May 17.

As the end of the school year approaches, senior students are beginning to hear from graduate schools in regard to their applications for scholarships, fellowships, assistantships, and grants.

The following list of names has been compiled by checking with the heads of various heads of departments of the college. It is probably somewhat incomplete due to the fact that some awards are still pending.

Biology majors, and the places giving the awards are as follows: Jean Bangham, assistantship in genetics, Oak Ridge; Dan Wingard, assistantship in genetics, Wesleyan University of Connecticut; Ralph Pauly, University of Florida; and Pat Blosser, teaching, Castalia.

History majors are: Gene Cox, fellowship, Johns Hopkins University; Dave Pierce, Yale Divinity School; Mary Lou Carmer, Walter Hines Page School of International Relations of Johns Hopkins University; Dick Martin, Cornell University Medical School.

From the Spanish department, Bernice Engman has a fellowship at the University of Kansas. Also in the field of Romance languages, Tess Turnbull has a scholarship to study in France under the Middlebury plan, while John Williams will receive a grant to teach English in a French school.

In the political science department the following persons have received offers of scholarships or fellowships from the following schools: Art Louch, Fletcher School of Diplomacy and Iowa; Duncan McKee, Duke and Southern Methodist; Bob Atwell, Minnesota; and Dale Chastain, Iowa. Tania Chirikov is an alternate for a fellowship at Johns Hopkins.

Rounding out the present list are representatives from three different departments. Dick Duke, an economics major, has received a fellowship from Yale University. Don Bell, a philosophy major, has received an award from University of Chicago Divinity School and Bill Mithoefer, also a philosophy major, one from Duke University. Jerry Calame, physics major, has been awarded an assistantship at Harvard.

Norman Cousins Speaks At Graduation Exercises

Mr. Norman Cousins, prominent editor of the Saturday Review of Literature, will be the main speaker at commencement this year. Born in Union, New Jersey, in June, 1912, Mr. Cousins was graduated from the Samuel and Sara Barry College. In 1933, Mr. Cousins received the Litt.D. degree from Teachers College, Columbia University.

Batterman, Kirk Star In Production At Commencement

The commencement play, "Night Must Fall" by Emyln Williams, which will be given on June 5 at 8:15 and on June 6 at 3:30, was first produced in 1936 and later made into a movie starring Robert Montgomery. It was the original "thriller" of the psychological drama type and is still considered one of the foremost suspense melodramas. Not only does the mood of the play create horror, but also humor, so that the play can be called basically entertaining.

The plot, set in England, is centered about a young man who edges his way into the household of a gullible hypochondriac and through obvious "apple polishing" tactics, gains a stronghold on the woman which he never releases.

Peg Batterman will star as the hypochondriac and John Kirk will play the part of the young man. Other members of the cast will be: Diane Lawrence, Mary

During his career in journalism Mr. Cousins has served as an editorial writer for the New York Post (1934-35), as Managing Editor of the Current History Magazine (1936-40), and as editor of the Saturday Review of Literature since 1942. In 1948, he received the Thomas Jefferson award for the advancement of democracy in journalism.

Mr. Cousins is also vice president and a member of the executive committee of the United World Federalists besides serving as a consultant on international problems for the American Broadcasting Company.

Among Mr. Cousins' well-known books are: The Good Inheritance: The Democratic Chance (1942), A Treasury of Democracy (1941). Edited with William Rose Benet, and Modern Man's Obsolete (1945).

Other commencement events will include the Senior Prom on June 4; the Phi Beta Kappa Initiation and Tea and the Senior Concert on June 5; the Alumni Dinner and the Senior-Alumni Dance on June 6; and the baccalaureate service with Dr. Lowry preaching on June 7.

The Commencement Play, Night Must Fall, will be given in Scott Auditorium in the evening of June 5 and the afternoon of June 6.

E. G.

... by Bill Mithoefer

As the end of each school year approaches the voice of the turtle gives way to the song of the swan. To many, the swan songs sound like the idle honking and hissing of geese. These many who impute such strange noises in the songs they hear are typical of a very large element on the Wooster campus. It is to this large elements that my "parting blast" is directed. This element is in both the student and the faculty-administration sides of the campus. We shall first direct our efforts to the student side of the campus.

Among the students, it is the group of people that are the first to attack any policy of the school as being bad merely because it is a school policy. Any new ruling becomes just another piece of red tape in the Wooster bureaucracy. This is the group that loves to set up a Wooster straw man and then knock it down. This is the group that suddenly evaporates whenever any help is needed to initiate a new program. It is the group of irresponsible complainers who refuse to accept the responsibilities of even student representation. This is the group that thinks it's nice to throw a booze party in the spring — a "friendly get-together to say goodbye to the seniors" — because everybody does it. This is also the group that thinks it's smart to report in to the chapel monitor and then go out for a cup of coffee. This is the group that could call themselves the anti-Wooster snobs. But this group is not as exclusive as one might think, for almost every one of us is a member of it at onnen time or another during his college career.

The faculty-administration side of the campus has a large group that is convinced that the only way Wooster can continue to endure is to cling tenaciously to a set of traditions which, in some respects, are old and out-dated. This group sets up its own little god, calls it Wooster, and then falls prostrate in adoration before it. Naturally, everything that a student proposes that might in a small way change some of the hallowed tradition of Wooster is a rabble-rouser. Anything that a student proposes is wrong, for the simple reason that it is a student-sponsored plan and anything that a student proposes is always the work of a child. This is the group that would like to set up an un-Woosterian Activities committee. Any attack against a small part of Wooster is in itself an attack against the whole of Wooster. When someone wishes to help to make Wooster a better institution, a member of the un-Woosterian committee says, "Well, if Wooster is so bad, why don't you go to another school?" And that is just what a great number of students are doing.

Now we are not saying that everyone at Wooster necessarily falls into one or the other of these groups. It just seems that at one time or another, many have fallen into one of these two groups. We call them two groups but they are from the same element—the element that is unappreciative of the things that other people do. All of us are limited by the social group in which we live. We think as others within the group think, and we tend to flock together against other groups that threaten our security.

Wooster is no better than the people that go to make it up. If students and the faculty-administration act immaturely, then Wooster becomes immature. If we can all try to see Wooster as a living institution that belongs to everyone, including the future alumni that are now attending, then perhaps many of the problems that seem so insoluble will become solved.

No matter how good Wooster may be, there is always room for improvement. The times change, and so do definitions of institutions. What may have made a good institution in 1900 does not necessarily make a good institution in 1950. The current educational idea is to fit the needs of the students. Any institution that is not making a conscientious effort to do this is in some way a

We Give Our Thanks

The campus wheels, big and small, are rolling over the last few bumpy miles of the road which was another year at Wooster. It has been a memorable year in all fields on the hill with many wonderful highlights, and the reason for it is simple. A lot of people have done a lot of work in planning, preparing, and carrying out the numerous events that will make '53 on the campus a pleasant memory. It would be impossible to give credit where credit is due to all of the people and organizations on campus which have made this year what it has been but we would like to mention a few of those who have been instrumental, and to whom we give our thanks.

To Bob Atwell, Mark Allen, and John Keitt for their fine leadership of the Student Senate, the SCC, and the MA respectively. To Don Haskell for his Color Day guidance. To Mike Winfield who has brought a new breath to the campus social life, Dick Morey and Blake Moore for many uncounted hours in preparation of our dances. To Janet Coulson and a talented Little Theater staff for some new experiences in the theater. To Sarie Lidle for her untiring efforts on the Student Senate and in behalf of the NSA. To the many music majors who have added measures of pleasure to the college life.

Especially to George Buckbee and Carol Selleck for their memorable chapel program.

There have been many newcomers on the faculty who have helped to make the year a successful one. We certainly must include Jack Carruth for his wonderful music, Ducky Bryan for her terrific sense of rhythm, Arbie Dale for his sense of humor and Mildred Loehlin for her good common sense.

To all of these whom we know about and to the many, many more behind the scenes, who are the real reason for the success of any campus undertaking, go our hearty thanks for jobs well done along with the hope that their loads will be shared more and more in the year to come.

—R.S.

Congratulations On Color Day

Editor Wooster VOICE:

The 49th Color Day will go down in Wooster history as one of the finest. The superb weather on Saturday and Sunday brought to the campus thousands of visitors, for whom the events must have been interesting and inspiring. The congratulations of the College must go to all students who participated in the pageant, play, band, athletic events, and the church service. Wooster students were on parade before our public and gave a series of fine performances.

For most of the Color Day years, the Student Senate has been the guiding force for its development in behalf of the student body. To students and their parents it has become the outstanding holiday of the college year. Let us hope it will always remain firmly fixed in this high place.

In '54 the 50th Color Day will be observed. In many ways it will deserve special handling by all who will be responsible for the events. The pageant can be planned with the semi-centennial in mind, so that it is particularly outstanding. Not many colleges have so grand a tradition nor one which has meant so much to so many generations of students.

Let us all do our part to make the 50th Color Day a truly notable event in Wooster's history.

JOHN D. MCKEE

Ditto

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity, via the VOICE, to express a word of thanks and appreciation to all the members of this year's Color Day Committee. Especially do I want to thank Brough Jones, who has done an excellent job as Business Manager. Jack Holt also deserves a great deal of credit for the fine job he did in managing all of the Queen's activities for the weekend.

It would probably take the rest of this page to thank all of the students who contributed their time and effort toward making this year's Color Day a success. However, I feel the following deserve special mention for their work: Fred Downs, Program Chairman; Don Hart-sough, Ticket Sales Chairman; Bob Martz, Publicity Chairman; Lynn Mouser, Decorations Chairman; and Frank Hull, Concessions Chairman.

I've heard it said that the pageant this year was one of the best that Wooster has seen in many a year. Jane Wycoff, who wrote and directed it this year, should certainly be congratulated for a really fine production. Tom Springer, Jane Brandon, Diane Lawrence, and the Gwynn twins, plus many others too numerous to mention also contributed a great deal to the success of Jane's "Audience With the Queens."

The Color Day Committee received the best of cooperation from students, faculty, and administration alike. Mr. Jay Clapp and Mr. John D. McKee deserve a word of thanks for their helpful advice and cooperation.

Last, but by far the least, I think we all owe a debt of gratitude to the weatherman for his two days of bright sunshine. Without him on our side, Color Day of 1953 couldn't have been as successful as it was.

Sincerely,

DON HASKELL
Color Day Chairman

Fifth, Second Lead Softball Loop; Third Section Heads Intramural Golf

by Grant Uhl

Going into the last week of play, Second Section is in first place by virtue of playing and winning one more game than last year's champions, Fifth Section. Second has a record of seven victories and no losses. Fifth has won six out of six.

Wooster Golfers Tie For Second In Ohio Conference

Due to inaccurate information the golf record, listed as 4 wins and 4 losses in the last issue of the Voice, was incorrect. The first two matches listed as losses were rained out. These were against Ohio Northern and Kent making the record up to May 2nd was 4 wins and only 2 losses.

Following May 2nd the golfers took to the road and won both away matches beating Denison at Granville 11-5 and taking Heidelberg at Tiffin 13-3. They stretched their win streak to three straight as they returned to the home course to beat Fenn 9 1/2-3 1/2. However, at Oberlin, they took their third loss as the Yeomen edged them 8 1/2-7 1/2.

Saturday, May 16, the Scots traveled to Alliance to play in the Ohio Conference and came out of the match with a tie for second place and a total score of 325. Mt. Union won the Conference with 324 as the Scots tied the Big Red from Denison for second. Mel Riebe, first man on the team tied for medalist with a 76 while Ralph Ely took an 81 and Bill Gurley and Dave Augspurger collected 84's.

The golf squad ended their season against Kenyon on the Scot links on May 20. Their season record at this writing stands 7 wins against 3 setbacks. In third place is Sixth Section with a record of four wins, against two set-backs. Rounding out the first division are Seventh with a three and three record, and Eighth with a three won and four lost record.

Fifth Section has games remaining with Fourth and Eighth. Second has to play Seventh. Fifth and Second were to have met Wednesday or Thursday. Due to bad weather many games have been postponed, so it is doubtful that a championship tournament will be held.

Notice: Fifth Section behind the pitching of Ogden Tucker practically clinched the softball crown Wednesday afternoon when they whipped Second 9-1.

The standings as of Saturday, May 16:

	W	L
Second	7	0
Fifth	6	0
Sixth	4	2
Seventh	3	3
Eighth	3	4
Third	2	3
Fourth	2	4
Rabbis	2	4
Kappa Phi	2	5
First	0	6

Due to bad weather there have been many golf matches postponed, and the standings are not up to date. At this writing Third Section is leading the league with an undefeated record. Seventh Section is in second place.

The first year of a league is always the roughest. I feel that this league has gotten off to a very good start. Next year it should be even better.

Scot Nine Loses To Oberlin, Hiram; Morris Leads Squad Over O.W., 7-3

Making up a previously postponed game, Coach Swigart's baseball nine trekked to Oberlin Wednesday, May 6th to meet the Yeomen. There the Scots dropped their third decision of the season, 5 to 2. Playing on a heavy field, under cloudy skies, the Wooster nine took an early lead by scoring twice in the top of the first inning but their scoring start was slow and they trailed until the seventh when they brought home three men to take the lead. The Swigart men also forged three across in the top half of the ninth to win 7 to 3. Pitcher By Morris had a good day giving up only five hits and two free passes while striking out nine. He also collected a single, but the big men at the plate were Cliff Eliot with three for four and Pete Hershberger and Bill Stoner with two apiece.

At the annual Color Day festivals the Scots dropped another, this one to the Terriers from Hiram. The margin of victory proved to be only two runs for the Terriers although they outhit the Scots 15 to 5. Each team got a run in the third and it stayed deadlocked until the fifth, when Hiram got three runs on three hits and a Wooster error. The Scots bounced right back to take a lead with five in the bottom half of that frame. But Wooster was done scoring while Hiram still had more left, and the latter got four more in a wild seventh inning rally to clinch it. The Scots' five hits were spread among five men and it just seemed too many big bats thundered out against starter Keith Shearer and By Morris who came on in the seventh.

Playing in a light drizzle at Delaware, the Scots capitalized on ten hits and a sharp, five-hit pitching performance of By Morris to beat Ohio Wesleyan, 7-3. The Scotties looked good in all departments, playing errorless ball in the field. However,

As May, Anderson, Hayward End Careers Thinclads Enter Conference Meet

by Jay Cox

Traveling to Oberlin today and tomorrow the Scot thinclads will close out the 1953 track season at the Ohio Conference meet. Wooster has scored three wins this year over Hiram and Fenn in a triangular meet, and both Akron and Muskingum in dual meets. Without the services of hurdler Art Louch who has been out of action

DICK MAY

Dick May, Scot Track captain, whose 21 straight victories in the half-mile, mile and two-mile events is an unofficial record will lead Wooster in the Ohio Conference Meet.

with a pulled muscle the Scots have dropped their last four meets to Denison, Oberlin, Ohio Wesleyan, and Muskingum by less than 20 point margins.

Accounting for 21 firsts is Captain Dick May who has gone undefeated in his three events through all seven meets. Dick runs the mile, two mile, and half-mile distance events, and last week at Mt. Union he ran a lap on the winning mile relay team. The 21 wins is an unofficial Wooster record and May is expected to cop all three events in the Conference finals tomorrow afternoon at Oberlin.

Two other seniors will also be wearing their spikes for the last time under Wooster colors tomorrow. Jack Hayward, who has gone undefeated through the seven meets by winning the shot put and discus throw each time will be out to break his own conference record in the discus. Bob Anderson will be trying to win back his conference 440-yard dash crown from Wesleyan's Neiswander whom he has already beaten in a dual meet this season. Andy also is running the 220-yard dash and anchoring both relay teams. The big question confronting the Scots is the availability of Art Louch to give them strength in the hurdle events. Art is entered in the meet and has been giving his leg slight work-outs this week but it was still uncertain if the leg would take the strain of the hurdles.

The Scots finished up the regular season last week when they lost to Ohio Wesleyan on the home track by a 77-50 score and then traveled to Mt. Union to be edged out by a 64 1/2 to 62 1/2 margin.

Wooster winners in the Wesleyan fray were May in his three distance events, Hayward in the discus and shot put, Anderson in the 220 and 440 yard dashes, and Bob Voelkel who tied for first in the high jump.

Running on a slow track at Mt. Union last Friday evening the Scots again took 8 out of 15 first places but lost the meet by a 2 point margin. Dick May not only won his three events but immediately after running the two-mile he ran the second lap on the winning mile relay team. Hayward won the shot-put and discus-throw, and Voelkel won the high jump. Anderson took the 440-yard run and anchored the mile relay team. The other two members of the relay were Dick Rice and Bill Prouty.

(Continued from page one) failure. Of course Wooster cannot fit all of the students' needs all of the time. But there will always be room for change in any institution no matter how good it is. Sometimes people are afraid to change because it might prove to be a mistake. However, it can be a more tragic mistake not to change. At least in changing, you can find out whether it was a mistake to change or not. If you don't change, you actually never know. So let us all be for change — not revolution, but evolution.

Each one of us is trying in our small way to do our job. No one is consciously trying to tear down Wooster. Everyone wants to make this a better place than when we found it. But when we get to thinking that everything about Wooster is bad, or that nothing about Wooster is bad, then the trouble really begins.

We can all contribute to making Wooster a better institution by doing our job and fulfilling our function in the best possible manner. Let us first help Wooster to grow up by growing up ourselves.
