Drama Honorary Features Quartet

Witty, wistful, winning, the show will not be the same without the quartet's presence. This is what the critics have said about the quartet for its fantastic ability to keep an audience enthralled.

In the interest of truth, the dates of the quartet's appearances will be included. Mr. Briscoe says that it will be performed on a Tuesday night in the month of November. The quartet will then go on to perform in the month of December at the same time. The quartet will then present its final performance in the month of January, which will be performed on a Saturday night in the month of January.

Mr. Berke will discuss a variety of scientific, professional, and personal matters. This will be included in the program's range of topics. The quartet will perform in the month of February at the same time, and in the month of March at the same time. The quartet will then present its final performance in the month of April, which will be performed on a Friday night in the month of April.

British Establishes 12 Scholarships

As a gesture of thanks for Marshall Aid, the British government has decided to establish a series of annual scholarships to enable American students to study at British universities. The scholarships will be awarded to students who have a record of academic achievement and who have shown a desire to contribute to British society.

The awards will be made to United States citizens only, and will be given to those who are accepted by British universities. They will be awarded for a period of three years, and recipients will be required to return to the United States after the completion of their studies.

The awards will be managed by the British Council, and will be awarded to those who have demonstrated a commitment to the promotion of British interests and to the enhancement of British culture.

5 Members Named To Phi Beta Kappa

On Recognition Day five seniors were named members of Phi Beta Kappa, the national society for the recognition of high scholarship. The members are Thomas Springer, Gordon Rose- dorn, George McKaig, Alice Hullov- ward, and Reed Grider. Phi Beta Kappa keys are the highest awards for scholarship that the college can give. They were presented to five seniors, because they attained a 2.8 academic average during six semesters of college work.

Peace Problems To Be Discussed

The problem of the college.

At a recent meeting, the M.A. Council discussed the determining aspects of the peace problems that are now being faced by the college. The council felt that the only way to solve these problems is to take action at the local level.

The program, which will begin on the first day of fall, will conclude on the last day of the spring semester. The program will include the following topics: Development of the world-wide consciousness of war, the importance of the United Nations, and the problem of the atomic bomb.

However, since this is primarily a study group, no discussions of war and peace will be necessary at this point. This will be left to those interested in the subject.

What Goes On Here . . .
By Joan Prindle

A transfigure—accenting one subject and one that serves great concern—all over the world—not only at Wooster.

In the Wooster College literature, this year's college freshmen and the high school students in the classes behind them have been more involved in community relations. All of the nation's colleges are interested in the young people and their attitudes. About 550 per cent of the high school students polled think that there is a problem on campus.

Duffell, of The New York Times, in an interview with the press at the wooster college, said that the new college freshmen are interested in knowing more about the campus and themselves.

Twenty-five per cent of the freshmen polled say they have not made an appearanceable plan.

Twenty-five per cent of the freshmen believe that the police should be allowed to search a person or his home without a warrant.

It's certainly interesting to see how young people are making specific and universal policies of freedom at a time when these liberties are threatened by terrorism and fascism. How would Wooster's students respond to let us know as to their plans.

In Ohio: A resolution to strengthen the academic freedom stand of the United States National Student Association failed to pass when USNA held its spring convention in Columbus. In a speech to the students and the faculty, a professor from the College of Wooster said that if a professor's refusal to testify using the Fifth amendment is not justifiable grounds for dismissal, it would result in a conflict.

In the South: A tall, 17-year-old Negro was a new Atlanta attorney—World War II. He is the first Negro to be sworn in as an attorney.

The Man In The Glass House
By Mike Willard

Once upon a time there was a man who lived on top of a hill in a beautiful glass house. He liked living on this hilltop for the view. He was able to see the ocean and the mountains at the same time. He also liked to walk his landlord's chickens. The man was very satisfied with his life. He was happy and contented.

All of this changed one day when the man saw the side window looking into his landlord's chicken coop. He liked the coop. His own coop was much smaller and he couldn't see anything from it. It was really quite old, but the landlord kept them in good condition. The chickens were always kept clean and well cared for. The landlord was a very nice man. He was also a good neighbor. If the man ever needed anything, the landlord was always there to help him.

Finally, because he liked the coop so well and because he really needed the coop to be used for his own purposes, he decided to move his own chickens into the landlord's coop. The landlord was very happy about this decision. He was surprised and happy to see that the man was interested in keeping chickens. The man was very happy to see that the landlord was interested in keeping chickens. The man was very happy to see that the landlord was interested in keeping chickens. The man was very happy to see that the landlord was interested in keeping chickens. The man was very happy to see that the landlord was interested in keeping chickens.

The landlord got the letter and read it. He noted what was said, but he decided because of a long-range plan and the policy of his firm that there was no reason to change anything. He did not feel that the man was comfortably to keep chickens. The complaints were not that important.

He was not interested in the man's chickens. The man was not worried. The landlord was satisfied with his coop. The man was not worried. The landlord was satisfied with his coop. The man was not worried. The landlord was satisfied with his coop. The man was not worried. The landlord was satisfied with his coop. The man was not worried. The landlord was satisfied with his coop.

The man was worried, but he continued to enjoy his coop. He was not concerned about the coop, as he was more interested in his chickens. He was very satisfied with his coop. He was not worried. The man was not worried. The landlord was satisfied with his coop. The man was not worried. The landlord was satisfied with his coop. The man was not worried. The landlord was satisfied with his coop. The man was not worried. The landlord was satisfied with his coop.

Shukow Scores For Scots

John Siskow scored the kick-off 10 yards to the Wooster 35-yard line. From that point the Scots began to march. Boys by Jim Evans, Nat Main, and John Siskow took the ball to the Akron nine. Siskow capped the drive by plunging the field into the end zone. Martin's extra point was wide.

For the kick-off Dad straight steered Siskow down from the Wooster 18 to the Akron 30. The drive was stopped at Akron's 12 in the end zone. Akron's desperation pass for the goal helped to catch the ball for an extra point.

Can You Afford To Miss
The Chance Of A Life Time
by Joan Prior

That is precisely what spending a semester in Washington is. It is the chance of a lifetime to be on the inside of current events—to watch the wheels revolving in the center of the vast machinery we call government, but which is really a complex of individual decisions. You, too, can make the decision to go to Washington, yet, a "Wooster in Washington Plan" would not be very ductive. The unique part of this one-way ticket to the Washington Semi-ter is that special student from coast to coast—from 44 institutions this year—get the opportunity to study and live together in the nation's capital.

Administered by American University in D. C. and an advisory board of participating colleges, the plan is entering its eighth year with two enthusiastic groups of participants in Washington right now. As well as interesting class work, it features seminars with important and noteworthy administrators, politicians, lobbyists, and educators—each contributing his own experience and knowledge to the overall picture of the governmental process. These seminars may take the group to a conference table in any one of the many departments or agencies, to a representative's or senator's office, to District or Senate Court or to the Executive Office Building where President Eisenhower holds his weekly press conferences. Field seminars are included in individually or with the group (of about 50 students) to observe sessions of Congress or the en-lightening, as well as the spectacular variety, of Congressional Committee Hearings.

These hearings are often of great value for work on the independent study project too, which, in Washington, is characterized by more personal contacts, interviews, and first hand experience than the usual J.A. paper. It is a distinct thrill to do research at the Library of Congress where any and all kinds of material are readily available; this availability applies to all the people in the many forms of government whose help you too, might utilize.

How will Washington Semester be in with your future plans? Whether career or leisure, history or religion is your major, your work can be guided to the facilities offered by a big city university. This plan is admiringly named to those contemplating graduate school as well as for future government workers as any one of last year’s group—Vera Duckworth, John Jandrawin, Doris Leslie, Joan Proutt—. It costs would be glad to tell you. Add to these assets, the increased depth and breadth to your life accumulated from a host of new experiences, new thoughts, and new friends, and you have in deed, the chance of a lifetime.

Opportunity is knocking, ambitious kittens! By Nov. 10 it will be too late to "think you might like it after all" if your application isn't in. See Mr. Stockbich in the Registrar's Office today.
