Dear Folks: This is a rough translation of a clever poem that appeared in the Munich paper. It is a satire on the fact that all Nazis are rats leaving the sinking ship. Everyone "had" to join, or was "secretly" opposed.

Love, Bob
The Old Song:

What do I have to experience now?
There never was such a thing as the Party!
Also there were no Nazis,
Because nobody was a member.

"People only thought I was,"
"I only had to superficially join up."
Tones everyone of those wonderful figures,
from hearing Hero's breasts.

What do I have to hear next?
Only what I always thought:
There never was anything so cowardly,
as these Nazis without power!
46 Are Feared Dead in Blast

BREMEN, June 9 (INS)—The saboteur who set off a terrific explosion in Bremen’s military government headquarters killed at least 46 American soldiers and German civilians, it was feared today.

Twenty-nine bodies, including those of two U.S. officers, three enlisted men and one American civilian, had been recovered yesterday. Another American soldier and 16 German civilians were still missing.

Lt. Col. Bion Walker of Dauphin, Pa., called the explosion an “expert piece of sabotage.” Army engineers estimated that the blast was equal to the force exerted by 1,500 tons of TNT.
