Better Minds Make Better Politics

To the Editor of the Voice:

I was interested to discover that students on this campus do not have access to information regarding the various political parties on campus. I feel it is very important that students are aware of the political parties on campus, because this information is crucial to the decision-making of students.

I would like to propose a change in the way that this information is presented. I would like to propose that a mini-guide to the various political parties on campus be printed and distributed to all students. This guide should include information about the history, philosophy, and current events of each party. It should also include the names and contact information of the party leaders.

I believe that this information would be very valuable to students in making decisions about which political party to support. I hope that you will consider implementing this change.

Sincerely,

John Doe

About my last article in the VOICE, I was reminded of the proverb “Wine is no substitute for water.” I have been thinking about the concept of water, and how important it is to our lives. Water is not just a drink, but it is a symbol of life itself.

Water is a vital resource, and we must do everything we can to protect it. We must ensure that everyone has access to clean water, and that we do not waste it. Water is a precious commodity, and we must use it wisely.

I hope that everyone will take this message to heart, and that we will all make an effort to conserve water. We must remember that water is not just a drink, but it is a symbol of life itself.

Sincerely,

John Doe

Zeus Has His Revenge

The legend goes that Prometheus, the Titan, stole fire and gave it to men. Angry Zeus punished Prometheus by binding him to Mount Caucasus where a vulture continuously pecked his liver, which would not be replaced and thus could not take the gift of fire away from man at last, not in any direct way. From that time forward, man had the gift and enjoyed it.

If a useful man could cook their steaks and fry their clays and heat their homes.

An Inspiring Flame. Men saw it as a symbol of duty, of purity, of courage.

A Destructive Flame. Primitive men felled trees in anger. Then, several years after the thought of new ways of using fire in war was. Modern men have thought of the conditions under which their children will do even better.

A Powerful, Dangerous Flame.

The ring of the chimes slams through the voices of martial. Forces of Nature.

Every college or every business dealing with people directly, needs to continually revamp their program on the many facts of information that the institution can gather about itself, if it is to remain healthy. The institution is like any other human being: it must consider, at its face, any critical level against us. We are all too often prone to forget that the source of a critical does not rest on the style or habits of the institution.

In a poll of sophomore girls in Holden, one sophomore found that 34 girls out of a little more than 60 were contemplating transferring.

Of the 34 transferring girls, 13 noted as a major critical the problem of the institution's "dirtiness," which they considered "unpromised." Another describes the social life as simply "lacking upheav." Oddly enough, a few other girls mentioned that they were considering transferring because of the lack of academic education here. Two were mentioned: one for poor academic program and the other for poor academic atmosphere and for poor academic atmosphere.

The skipping over the proposed 7:10 a.m. classes next year during football season has been brought up on several occasions.

The cause, we think, of the present student dissatisfaction of this situation is the time-old problem of not knowing the story behind.

Here are the facts as told to us by Mr. Phil Shipe of the athletic department. A summit with the Student Government Conference has been held and all these questions have been answered.

Mr. Shipe reported to us that the present 7:10 a.m. classes have been a problem for the past few years, and it is not likely to be a problem next year.

Mr. Shipe explained that he does not want to continue playing football here at the present level of efficiency, obviously sub-standard in relation to the teams with which we are competing, and proposed these possible alternatives: (1) Play less football; (2) Cut the five Ohio States, (3) Increase practice time.

We suggest that the president and dean of the college, the Athletic Committee presented to the faculty a proposal to start first hour classes at 7:15 a.m. The faculty saw this as a reasonable suggestion and suggested that the time of 7:10 a.m. be maintained.

The reason the faculty may make in their decision, the claim that the proposed change subjects the athletic program to the regular academic program and that the academic program is materially damaged or affected by holding classes at 7:10 a.m. is not so clear or so infectious that it cannot make a fair adjustment to accommodate the extra-curricular aspects of our college life.

The silver chalice of the moon overflowed, and the water became a silver cup for a queen.

A silver chalice of silver made quietly through the verses on typographs, like a silver chalice of silver.

Playful frolics aroused about my face, singing in the rain, and I was again and again.

A piece too quick to stow in.

The silver chalice was disarmed and annoyed a silver queen.

She came now.

But, smiling across reality, her Lucretius, she loves me yet.

Walking with the dead in the clouds may result in being swept up on earth. The Administration stood on one end with one of our dead, but not to jump and yell. "Duch!" Rather it would seem to be a sign that the dead are with us, to help and assist and teach the dead.

As students here, we will eventually carry forth our students. We will do this in a way that will be better in time.

We will do this in a way that will be better in time.

How many themes have been written about "My First Recital" or "What I Want to Do When I Grow Up?" Oh, yes, there are lots of them. But if I had to pick out one theme that is truly significant in the lives of children, I would choose "How I Spend My Time." As children grow older, their free time becomes more and more important. They want to do things that are fun and interesting, and they want to be able to spend their time in a way that will make them happy.

But how can children find the time to do all the things they want to do? Are there any special ways of using their time that will help them make the most of their free time?

One way that children can make the most of their time is by planning their activities in advance. This means deciding what they want to do and then setting aside a specific time for each activity. For example, a child might decide that she wants to spend two hours on Saturday afternoon practicing the piano. She could then find a good room in the house to practice in and set aside that time for that activity.

Another way that children can make the most of their time is by choosing activities that are both fun and educational. For example, a child might decide that she wants to spend an hour on Monday evening reading a book. She could choose a book that is about something that she is interested in, such as history or science. This way, she can learn something new while also having fun.

Finally, children can make the most of their time by being creative and resourceful. For example, a child might decide that she wants to spend an hour on Saturday morning making a craft project. She could find a recipe for a project that she likes and then spend the time making it. This way, she can create something beautiful and have fun at the same time.

In conclusion, children can make the most of their time by planning their activities in advance, choosing activities that are both fun and educational, and being creative and resourceful. By doing these things, children can have a lot of fun while also learning and growing.

golden flashes play here mondays; Riebe Captains '54 Golf Squad

"Riebe, put that out, Shipe, watch it!" That's a familiar sound on the links now as the Black and Gold golfies tee off on another season of driving, putting, and putting. With only a few weeks left in the season, the golfers are determined this time to keep their hands down and under the crown.

Coach Shipe was asked when he would consider the first tee, "Shipe, there were nine out for the true position or the team. However, they have never been that many motorists interested in this first tee.

There returning letterman have be- come the nucleus of this 34 squad. They are: Mal "Green" Riebe, Bill "Jeannie" Dowd, and Ralph "Oh, My Buck." Of the Outfield, Jack Dowd is the only one left in the team. The rest of the candidates include: Stephen Shipe, Bill Martin, Frederick Groopman, Bill Murriz, and Dick Vohsl. There should be a lot to look out for, several of them. The Ohio Conference Championship Match will be held on the Ohio Col- lege Ground April 5. The
