Group Encourages Businessmen's Aid To Small Colleges

Finances, one of the major problems of the smaller independent colleges, was solved in part by a group headed by Dr. Harry, known as the Ohio Foundation of Independent Colleges, of which Wooster is a member, and which encourages business leaders to contribute to the support of independent colleges in Ohio. At that time there were 18 charter members. Since the beginning in 1911, the Foundation has membership open to all successful business leaders who will contribute by taxes, which want to be "members of the team." Experiments are being made to strengthen Ohio's independent colleges by selecting senior and advisory board members of the 29 member schools, and by giving them access to college funds, to these schools which have not sold so many stars to the national leaders.

Education of the university colleges included in the Foundation do the soliciting. Nearly all funds go to the improvement of faculty salaries. At present there are 800 alumnae which make the corporate gifts helpful to education.

Business depends heavily on independent colleges for leadership. Every dollar contributed by a business goes to the colleges to encourage opportunities for young people. Each gift goes toward education of the 29 member schools—60 percent_ _ 40 percent according to emphasis.

Colonel Louis A. Johnson Delivers Wagner Hall Dedication Address

By Bob Carter

Former Secretary of Defense during the administration of ex President Harry S. Truman, Colonel Louis A. Johnson, gave the dedication address for Wooster's Wagner Hall on Sunday, 24 November. The address will be given at 4:30 p.m. in the chapel.

A well known public servant, Colonel Johnson is a native of Roanoke, Virginia, and was graduated from the University of Virginia with an LL.B. degree. Following his graduation, he served as legal counsel to the President of the West Virginia and was serving as legal counsel to the President of the West Virginia University when he was elected to the West Virginia House of Delegates in 1923, and in 1917, served as majority floor leader and chairman of the House judiciary committee.

Decorated by France

During World War I, Colonel Johnson was a member of the Meuse-Argonne offensive with the 80th, 89th and 90th divisions. He also served with the Army of Occupation in Germany after the War, and was stationed in France with the rank of Commander of the Legion of Honor. He presently holds a position as general counsel for the General Electric Company in the United States Army Reserve.

American Legion

After the war, Colonel Johnson was an active leader during the founding of the American Legion and later served as its leader. He was chairman of the West Virginia delegation to the 1927 Legion convention in

Club Debates Bill On Indian Affairs

Congressional Club will open the Statistics Lab this week, December 25, at 7:30 p.m. The discussion will center around a bill to reorganize the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Lately there has been an increase in interest in this subject by both federal and Indian officials. The forum will be begun "out of the Indian business." The two-fold program of the Bureau is slow process of withdrawal of federal services to the Indians tribes become self-dependent, and relocation of willing Indian families in the cities.

Wagner Alums' Dream Realized At Last Women's Dormitory Nearing Completion

By Argene Hopkins

Wagner Residence Hall for women, the gift and commitment of a lifetime for Dr. and Mrs. Cary R. Wagner, will be dedicated on Sunday, November 24.

This generous action on the Wagner's part represents a dream and dedication that is surely not matched by anything in Wagner's history or, I dare say, became a reliable field observer in the state of Ohio.

Participating in the day-long dedication ceremonies this Sunday will be Dr. Walda H. Dunn, formerly of the English department of the College of Wooster and recently retired from St. Joseph's College, and Colon. Louis A. Johnson, former Secretary of Defense.

Dunn will make the dedicatory address in the Chapel at 10 a.m. in the morning, then at 7:45 p.m., Colonel Johnson will deliver a short address in a special Assembly in the Chapel. Open house will be held at Wagner Hall immediately following dedication service from 4:30 p.m. until 6:00 p.m.

At the completion of Wagner Hall around Christmas, the contemporary-designed building will house nearly 200 women. The building will provide for the needs of women students, including the head resident's apartment and 14 single rooms. The architect for the building was John P. Scholz, architect of the Art Deco style, Columbus, Ohio.

The interior in contemporary, clean-cut, straight lines, is faced with Briar Hill stone and brick. Architectural details are carefully designed with a three-step lead into a beautifully paneled foyer, the wild

Religious Utopia

Wooster has recently been called a "religious utopia." The very idea of religious utopia is for such a judge ultimately for himself. From our point of view we feel that Rev. Cahoe penetrated to a hard core of truth.

In disagreement with Bill Cahoe have raised the query "who is he to have set himself up as a judge?" To our knowledge the position has been occupied only one time and for equally as short a period. Looking at it from this point of view we must agree that two or even four days is hardly on adequate length of time to feel a "religious organism" which would justify such a brutal attack on one of the alleged foundations of Wooster.

Another complaint which we have heard voiced is the opinion that what Rev. Cahoe said was not original but rather that he had plagiarized the theory which the man of the campus holds. To this we strongly disagree on two counts. First, we do not feel that the majority of the campus holds this view. Secondly, Rev. Wooster as a religious utopia and furthermore believe that Bill Cahoe shocked a good part of his audience out of their smug complacency, even if only half-heartedly.

In the second place, we contend that if the majority of the campus does feel this way, or even if, as we believe, only a small party of it, it is because some- one put these thoughts into words. We are not particular whether it is a member of the student body, someone well-acquainted with those hollowed halls or a complete outsider such as Bill Cahoe who accomplishes this, our point is merely that it is time someone shocked this campus into facing reality.

The very urge to unity and conformity is which so much a part of our college life is one reason for its smugness and complacency. There exists on our campus a nearly complete religious homogeneity which will not prevail once we leave the domain of the college and feel that it is high time people here would awake to this fact. In fulfilling both business and social obligations we shall be called upon repeatedly to defend our conviviality in the face of opposition. Needless to add, it will not suffice to say "Jesus loves me, this I know." One's beliefs must be based upon critical examination and evaluation of the facts, not on blind adhesion to what has become an old routine. Man is to be eating or sleeping.

A former Wooster professor once divided the students on this campus into two classes as regards religion, the "devout" Chris- tians and the "secular". He pointed out that there was a middle ground, but the difficulty lay in defining which group was actually the majority. He felt that both groups wished to feel to others. To many of the first group, Christianity was a love for God and not the case with rituals of which we hear much more. Once their Sunday services in church was finished they actually discussed their Christian principles along with their Sun- daySEC. Through a pretense was made that they were being maintained.

On the other hand a smaller group professed cynicism about religious matters. The first group was almost diagnostic. Yet while this group loudly professed their apathy or hate, they made more an adherence with Christian principles than their contemporaries who counted themselves "agnostic." A quote from John Wesley's JOURNAL written while on a religious mission in Georgia with a group of Moravians, can be adapted to describe this second group. "I began learning Spanish in order to converse with my Jewish parishioners, some of whom seem nearer the mind that was once Isaac Newton was." Rev. Cahoe's startling statement "Put up or shut up" can be readily adapted to Wooster. For too many people talk Christianity, with a shrug at the behavior of the group of habit or because they feel this is the thing to do. Most of these people are making a purely social and ritualistic beliefs and remain as Rev. Cahoe said, in a state of confusion. We feel that a much smaller percentage of Wooster's population actually has principles worthy of preaching.

Bill Cahoe was unquestionably a dynamic speaker. By as- suming an antagonistic attitude he has, perhaps, shaken the very roots of our seemingly placid society. Some students who have taken it or have talked to others who have been personally shaken just one person out of his lethargy and self-complacency, then we feel that he accomplished his purpose.

Student Senate President: Bailey
Urges More Student Participation

Open Letter to the College

Many wonder why I hold to the purposes of "giving every student a chance for an education," rather than some other idea of what it means to be a "good" or "logical" concept of a college. It seems to me that student government is justified only in-asmuch as it can be established within the educational community. It is not to make an in- come to be made in contribution.

The idea behind the establish- ment of the Student Senate is to conform to and support these fundamental principles of education.

The first of these basic prin- ciples is the real education of a student. It is understanding what is, the capacity of self-control (self- government). This does not mean the development of the capacity of submission to an external authority, but the habit of sticking to the inner dictates of honor and duty.

The second fundamental prin- ciple of student government conforms and is the support of a government is im- possible. The existence of the government which will be more and less democratic, is possible. This does not mean to appeal to the individual's personal motives which are effective with child- ren.

The Infernal Teapot

At the third hour past mid- night, a fire alarm rang and some- one called "Get out! A fire blanket draped down a checker - top table. My friend a cigarette burned slowly. He inhaled the smoke and then leaned back to hear his voice echo against the walls. The fire was caused by a student who was smoking."

Rupp Discusses WSGA Tension

To the Editor:

In Chapel on Thursday, No- vember 14, it was suggested that Miss Dronfield that there had existed an extreme amount of tension in the WSGA meeting of Wednesday, Novem- ber 13, which undercut to consider the question presented requiring two 2 a.m. permissions per semester for each girl. Miss Dronfield said that this tension was a very unhealthy thing, and furthered that if it had its origin in an attitude of lack of cooperation to the ad- ministration on the part of the women attending that meeting, it would seem that there are reasons for such origin of the tension is and is being extremely questionable.

The WSGA has its theory, and is at least supposed to have, a government itself and to have that which is clearly defined sections of the legislative arm of its constitu- tion. If this high-minded theory to self-government, as ex- pressed in the WSGA, is not a reality was exercising operation, what is the atmosphere woul- d

A Little Theatre tradition revolves around the "Paw Pow," a ceremony which takes place before each production. Last year, advisors and officers chip in a penny apiece, and all hold closed fists toward the middle of a circle, where the pennies are placed. The director gives a pep talk, which is followed by a chorus of "All hail, all hail." All this, we are told, is to insure good luck for the production. The pennies are then thrown on the sundial near Kauke, where they are collected by town boys (and probably some poor collegians). Also, no member never to wish an actor "good luck" before a production. For real luck they prefer a cherry "break a leg!"

Speaking of the theatre (some refer to it as the only real "little" theatre in the country), a "strike party," another tradition, occurs when the last act of the play is being the tearing down of the sets, etc., was held after "Billy Budy" had completed its run Saturday. Todd D'Aims, Gretchen Von Matre, and Dave Davis presented their version of "Steam Heat," while set designer David Battecher entertained with a lasso a la Will Rogers. Question Nature's Power

To the Editor:

In Chapel last Friday Dr. Dowry presented a very optimistic view of the United States position in regard to technological advancement. That point of view indicates that we have little to fear now since that from 1500 to 1800, our art was mastered, everyone will have a tendency to live a little bit longer. The art of the modern state will be the U.S. once again on top of the nations. He stated that even those who have been "strike" of the Charter probably did not doubt this. But the audience was not given an opportunity to ask questions, and this interesting question he raised. We would have had a chance to discuss the possibilities of such a great opportunity. Mr. Dowry, and the other phases of the Opera in this program, was served with a smile and with an interesting point of view. In fact, it would have been more interesting to see if the students here at Wooster held such an optimistic view. If in fact, it would have been more interesting to see the response from the faculty last night.

Pertinent Questions

In Chapel last Thursday we all had our own few critical questions after such an address. (1) Is there any hope of war or if so, how can we warrant such an optimistic view of the United States position in regard to technological advancement? (2) Does this optimism indicate that we have little to fear now since that from 1500 to 1800, our art was mastered, everyone will have a tendency to live a little bit longer? The art of the modern state will be the U.S. once again on top of the nations. He stated that even those who have been "strike" of the Charter probably did not doubt this. Emlyn Williams Review

by Angene Hopkins

"Just what is the Western India program?" asked Wooster graduate student in English, Emlyn Williams, as he gathered in the University Union to hear the program. "Western India" was given as a general term for the entire region of India, from the Indian Ocean to the Himalayas, and from the Arabian Sea to the Bay of Bengal. The program, which took place on Thursday evening, was divided into two parts: the first part consisted of a panel discussion, while the second part featured a slide show and a reading by the local poet, Jim Breen. The panel discussion was moderated by Professor James S. Russell, who introduced each speaker and guided the discussion. The first speaker was Dr. John Smith, an anthropologist who has worked extensively in Western India. He spoke about the history and culture of the region, and his research on the language and literature of the area. The second speaker was Dr. Linda Johnson, a sociologist who has conducted research on the effects of modernization on traditional Indian society. She discussed the impact of Westernization on the culture and economy of the region. The third speaker was Dr. Richard Brown, an economist who has studied the agricultural and industrial development of Western India. He presented his findings on the growth of the region's economy and the challenges faced by its people. The panelists were followed by a slide show, which included images of the region's landscape, culture, and people. The show was presented by Dr. John Smith and Dr. Richard Brown. The final part of the program was a reading of Jim Breen's poetry, which was accompanied by a presentation of the region's traditional music and dance. The reading was well received by the audience, who appreciated the intimate and cultural richness of the region. The program was well-organized and informative, providing a comprehensive overview of Western India and its people. The program was hosted by the Western India Association, a group that promotes the study and appreciation of the region. Another football season has come and gone and the Scots take a long farewell of the gridiron but next year when they will once again hope to be in the midst of the Ohio College Gridiron. A fine team has gained by its mistakes this season and this failure will be eliminated by the experience and the skill that they brought to them by opponents.

Many of the opposing eleven's will be in the line-up again next year as many of the key men will have to be relearning, a fact that will not be a particular headache to the first mentioned third string tackles, tackle Stu May and end Ed. Cotton, will be lost to next year's squad the following veteran line up will return along with many other experienced line men.

Dingle Leads OC Rushing

It is interesting to look at the conference statistics at the end of the year. Among the individual, performances, of course, is the leading rushing position on the list. Tom Dingle, went over the century mark during the third consecutive year and leads the conference in this particular wind up seconding up wind to Marv Smith of Denison last year. Smith finished season with 1,242 yards rushing.

Leading the passers was Dave Gutter and on a team we whom we didn’t get to see in action. Other passers are gaining important yardage as they competed well against the Scots, such as Ron Lancaster, Tom Mancin and Chuck Kessler of Capital.

Daniken Leads Defense

Daniken was the team’s leading honor men as they led in rushing defense by almost a 10-man margin over the second place Muckline. But Red was off quite a bit of the bottom of the passing offense statistics they led in total and its passing offense crown by about 50 yards average per game, gaining 425 yards per contest. 370 of those coming on the ground. Marietta led the passers with an average of over 100 yards average per contest, and were followed by Capital and Wittenberg.

The team defense leders were Ohio Wesleyan in rushing defense and Muckline in passing defense. Muskingum, Denison in passing and Westminster and Al- ba were tied in rushing defense with Mus- kingum following in that order. The Scots were third in rushing and the same pace was added duplicated this standing in the passing and total defensive areas.

Sailors Score In Angstata Regatta

Once again the Scots sailed brought home a favorable report. The event was the Timme Angstata Regatta held last Saturday at Columbus.

Taking part were Ohio Wesleyan, Oberlin, Xavier, and Wittenberg. A total of 11 entries added to the total as the first two places are entitled sail in the collegiate regatta during the Thanksgiving week end.

It was a close regatta all the way, the boats sailing well in the stiff off shore breeze, with its sudden shifts the sailors in the their proud and Bouquet came through with the same results. First place was given to the second place, only two points separated the three boats. 44, Wooster, 46, Wesleyan 47 with Oberlin and Xavier in the 23’s and 20’s respectively. Here’s hoping the Scots can do as well in Chicago.

Scott Hardwood Commerce Practice; Aim For Higher Finish In Conference

by Frank L. Knorr

November 1 signaled the start of practice for 26 College of Wooster basketball players at Severance Gymnasium. After 11 months of outdoor conditioning, the squad moved onto the hardwoods under the astute tutelage of head coach E. Most Hule, now in his thirty-fifth season at this post for the Scots. Almost 15 of those report- ers flourished during the first indoor work out from the freshman class. These men as well as three or four transfer students who are ineligible for the varsity squad for the moment were in the junior varsity team. This group was named under the guidance of Jim Ewers, 54, a former basketball player in his student days at Wooster.

Everyone is hoping for an early start in the Denison and Ohio’s conference chap- manionship. There are six letterman returning from last year’s squad which had a 13-8 record against the current year’s league in play. Only four vio- rator are named to a squad of 11 for a total of 400 in his coaching career at the college.

Those who are unfamiliar with the basketball will be practiced by Coach Hole are in the process of presiding over the press conference’s direction and his practice tempo in a fast moving as well as im- probable ball game. Many times the first player to take the floor was from the freshman class. by Bob Engstrom

Football season "came in like a lion" with two wins at the start of the season and "went out" in like manner by making virtual "lamb's" of the Yeomen. The Scots scored 37, Oberlin 4. It was an exciting game highlighted by Tommy Dingle making his 1,000 yards rushing for the third consecutive year, and also a surprisingly large turnout of fans for the Yeomen’s Day festivities.

The game opened with Woos- ter receiving the kickoff. On the fourth down Wooster kicked, but got the ball in Oberlin. In the first down and down and Wooster recover- ed. The Scots missed the ball from the Yeomen 49 yard line to the one yard line without any noticeable resistance. Dingle took the ball on the six and played a propagated T. D. with 9:58 remaining in the first quarter. The kick was blocked as the score stood Woos- ter 0, Oberlin 0.

Conlon Hits Hogs

Oberlin countered with a T. D. of 6-14 remaining in the first quarter as Jack Con- lon passed to Hoge for a touchdown. The extra point attempt was blocked and the score was tied up at 0. Conlon, a freshman from Indianapolis, looked impressive during the game, but will require a lot more experience if he is to become a con- sistent threat.

With about 9:30 remaining in the first half, Dingle ran the ball over the goal line from about 12 yards out. This T. D. was nulli- fied by an offensive holding penalty.

With 8:22 remaining in the first half Wooster battled the Yeomen for a total of 15 yards on a long pass play but were stopped on downs in the 35 yard line and attempt to make the score 29 to 6 in favor of Wooster. Fellers came in on a new play and the extra point was added making the score Wooster 25, Oberlin 6.

Wims Recover Punt

The score remained at 25-6 until the 15 yard line before being smeared. Two penalties later Oberlin scored on its own 7 yard line and attempt to make the score 29 to 6 in favor of the Scots. Fellers came in on a new play and the extra point was added making the score Wooster 36, Oberlin 6.

Evans Goes Over

With 1:36 remaining in the third quarter Evans crossed the all important stripe to make the score 36 to 6. Goughinger made the extra point try good and the score was 37 to 6 in favor of Wooster. No more scoring was done in the game. The only other possession in the game was possession of the ball for Wooster. This ended the toughest schedule it has played in a long time. It was a time that one can see the team making the score 29 to 6 in favor of Wooster. It was the most important one the game and the most important game of the season. Eight of the nine men we were playing teams consisted of seasoned veterans and the season we were on we, began to realize the value of the efficiency. If the Scots profit by the mistakes they made this year they should be a very formidable powerhouse next year.

KKK’s Clinic Title: Halt Third’s Hopes

Seventh captured the Kenyon- Lehigh League championship on Wednesday as they withstood late game thrusts by Third and maintained their 12 to 6 advantage of the final team. This game was a playoff for the crown after each team had finished the regular season with 7-1 records.

Darrell Smith passed both of Seventh’s scores, hitting Bruce Keen with a short toss and con- necting with Dick Meyer for the other score after John Hayes took the kick of 4:6 when he returned an interception 28 yards to pay day.

The second half was scoreless as neither team could dent the other’s defenses. Third was hindered by the loss of Randy Wolf and Walt Roseme for injuries for the whole second half. The Yeomen were able to put the ball most of the half. Meyer and Smith drove Three of these drives, two of these coming when Third was just a few yards away from the Seventh goal line and one iing game the two teams combined for 12 total points.

The Yeomen were successful in this game as they outscored the Seventh goal 56-26. They will now prepare to meet in the semifinals on November 16, game will be played again at the seventh goal on November 16.

selves just exactly where the U.S. stands. Whether this question is answered positively or negatively, we must ask ourselves still a second question:
(1) Were the views presented typical of the self-satisfied attitude which the citizens of the U.S. seem to hold—that is, not self-satisfaction with ourselves as individuals, but self-satisfaction with our culture. Many people hold the attitude that in reality we have nothing to fear, because after all our culture is the best, the center of everything worthwhile, and will ultimately win out. Have we become so ethnocentric in our point of view that it has collapsed us to reality? If so, then it would seem likely that this extreme self-confidence and contentment has hindered, and will continue to hinder rather than facilitate, our technological advancement.

The U.S. has always been first in line, or at least near the front, when honors and congratulations were to be bestowed. The consensus in the U.S. seems to be that we have always been and shall continue to be the leader in great discoveries and events. Perhaps, in light of the occurrences of the past few weeks, we shall be forced to face the reality that we are no longer THE world power. This may not be the most pleasant task, but in all fairness to ourselves and to our country, we must meet it squarely and without unjustified assumptions.

we expect to exist at WSGA meetings? Would we not expect some tension to exist? The kind of creative tension which accompanies the healthy debate over issues involved in the operation of a democratic constitution? Would we not expect an atmosphere in which after the debating was over, and position papers had been presented, the vote could be taken, and the will of the WSGA carried out? And, incidentally, the WSGA constitution is an extremely conservative document as far as provisions for amendment go; for it requires a 2/3 majority to pass an amendment. This means that 1/3 plus 1 of the members of the WSGA can block any amendment, and scholars today generally recognize that this can be a great hindrance to the passing of legislation, and further recommend that the U.S. constitution be amended to change this provision.

But now let's take a look at the atmosphere which really does exist at WSGA meetings, and try to analyze the origin of that atmosphere. We must agree with Miss Dromfield that an extreme amount of tension does exist at WSGA meetings. But is this tension the fairly natural result of the democratic creative process? Or is in extreme tension the result of a long history of WSGA legislation being谩urated, frustrated, blocked and even unashamedly and transparently squashed by the WSGA adviser, whose capacity is clearly defined as "purely advisory?" It has been said that such tension exists because the women are dead set in opposition to the College administration in these meetings. But please note, if the WSGA adviser were operating in the purely advisory capacity clearly defined for her, how possibly could such an atmosphere of tension and opposition exist? If the adviser were operating in the purely advisory capacity, there could exist only the natural tensions at these meetings of factions within and between members of the WSGA. There could then exist at these meetings tension between between women and administration. If I m p l y stated, the kind of tension which does exist can exist only because the WSGA has had and still has the abiding presence of threats and intimidation with in what is claimed to be a democratic process of student self-government. Under these conditions, the name self-government becomes a sham, student initiative is continually frustrated, slowly languishes, withers and finally... Larry Rupp
Their were thus denied even the dignity of mysteriousness. Upon the light-seekers in the focus of the room there reigned a continuous shower of white stones, perfectly round, hard, and about the size of brussels sprouts. These issued from the huggers of the wall, among whom I now found myself. I discovered a delightful sense of security when I realized that I had nothing to fear from behind, so long as I kept my back to the solid wall. I bent and picked up a few of the stones that littered the floor.

My first throw caught one of the stragglers upon the right temple, and he fell from his place, a stream of blood from the snowiest while issuing from his wound. Then, suddenly, a great symphony flooded me; I dropped the stones and left my place to go to his aid. But I had token no more than six steps when a cruelly hard object struck me behind the ear, and I fell, with great pain, into a swoon. I came to myself to find my faithful companion bearing me from the room, through a doorway hitherto unnoticed. As the door closed behind us, and we came to ourselves again, I remarked one last image the outside face of this, from the dolorous room was beautifully decorated with a gay tawny of yellow, black, and red.

heart with fear, and my ducky mind with light in the center of the room, beneath the skylight, struggled a small band of men, whose naked bodies were as the same whiteness as the great chalk room. Only their eyes retained a pigment; they were as black as coal buttons, and betrayed such a longing as I have never elsewhere. They struggled continuously hopelessly, for the opening above them, as children desiring to be born might struggle with the narrow womb.

Other men there were, also, a great crowd of them, clustered against the walls and in the corners of the room. Most stood in small groups, and a large number of them in pairs, with their backs facing outward upon their society. Those who occupied the corners were the most pathetic wreathes imaginable. Covering, they crouched in their little angles, endeavoring, as the restrictions of that darkest continuant, to cover themselves from view. They did not appear to realize that the attempt destroyed the desired result; all the others knew they were hiding, and all knew what they were hiding.
