Delegates Add Calliope To Weekend Festivities Of Convention Sessions

A circus calliope outside of the Chapel will issue the first real keynote of the 1960 Democratic Mock Convention to be held immediately after the Men's Glee Club concert.

Pom-poms and Rally

A parade, forming at the Chapel, will march through University Street and Beall Avenue to the scene, where there will be a brief round of one-minute speeches by representatives of the various caucuses.

The floats will be the most gay and of unusual spontaneity such as decorations, bands, and informal dance程序员.

WOOSTER COSMOPOLITAN?

To the Editor:

Last Friday night, the Union was the setting for the WUSSA (Wooster Society of Sacred Art) celebration of St. Patrick's Day. It was a great success! The boxes were open and guests were very happy with the things they were by some daring spirit. Art is seen as something new that might make people laugh, and Wooster has forgotten the clichés! We're not saying we doing something different for a change.

SEGREGATION

To the Editor:

The survey of 142 students who participated in "activities" to prove that people of different races are not separated in Wooster environments.

I am a member of the Wooster community, and I was interested in the race problem. I came to Wooster in the fall of 1953, and have been here ever since. I have noticed that there is a great deal of segregation on this campus. I believe that this is a problem that needs to be addressed.

I am concerned about the future of Wooster, and I believe that we need to work together to overcome this problem. I urge all students to be aware of the issues involved, and to take action to make our campus a more inclusive and welcoming place for everyone.

John F. Kennedy

AMENDMENT

To the Editor:

The Mock Constitution Declaration will be amended to state that, "We, the students, do hereby enact a resolution for the abolition of the House Government and the establishment of a democratic government for the Wooster community.

At that time we will give all students an opportunity to participate in the making of a new constitution.

You have ever gone to find something that you had put away years ago and found yourself eating a sour prune or a molded orange? Of course you have. This is the problem. So after much thought, I decided to make a change. But of course, those that read, I came up with one other problem as well.

My method was relatively straightforward. Probably the most noticeable thing was the fact that I was able to find it. It was interesting, of course, to think how many things I thought was exercising my memory. When I was young, I could only remember things if I had to report back on them. So now, I have come up with a way to remember things that I have forgotten. I use a system that I call "flap-trap." It is a simple system, but it works.

KENNEDY

To the Editor:

The following is an excerpt from a resolution adopted by the Congress of the United States on the topic of race.

"The Congress for the first time in human history has made a conscious decision to abandon the idea of segregation. We must, therefore, take the necessary steps to ensure that this decision is not abandoned."

The resolution was passed unanimously by both houses of Congress, and it will now be submitted to the President for his signature.

ADVANCE NEWS

By harold peterson

At least one important issue is not being discussed in the current political campaign. What shall the country be doing in the future?

For the recent steel strike, collective bargaining did break down. We need to discuss the role of the government. What is its role in the economy? What should be the government's role in industry?

In the end reading room, in the basement east wing of the library there is a vast collection of books, all apparently dealing with the theater, and all locked mysteriously behind glass doors.

The plan to keep the books locked so that they are the gift of Greg D. Wolfe, who has been a part of the library for over 30 years. Since the library has been neglected or forgotten.

Mystery Man

Mr. Craig tells a story of a man who has been part of the library for all his days. He was known as the man who was fond of the theater. When he died, the library decided to keep the books locked because he cared for them with a great deal of appreciation with one of his books.

The Insertion always read

The night of the book was locked in the book. Consequently, no one had access to the books.

During the war, Mr. Craig went to the library to select a book

As he was about to open the book, he was talking to the people behind the desk about the beauty of the books.

The man was a frequent visitor to the library

Mr. Craig noticed that the man was always dressed in his best clothes. He never seemed to be short of comments about the books.

Thus began their friendship

Theatre and Books

Mr. Craig was also a man who loved the theater and books equally. He was always a frequent visitor to the library and he would often come to select books to read.

Mr. Craig came to the library and found a stack of books

He was surprised to see that the books were locked. He asked the librarian why this was the case. The librarian explained that the books were locked because they belonged to Mr. Craig.

The locking of the books was because of his love for the theater.

Mr. Craig was a frequent visitor to the theater and he always enjoyed reading about the theater in the library. The librarian explained that the books were locked to prevent theft.

The books were locked because of their value

Mr. Craig had collected thousands of books over the years and he was very proud of his collection. The librarian explained that the books were locked to prevent damage.

Thus began their friendship

New Home

When the book was locked, the librarian began to complain that the weight of the book was too much for the reading room. He suggested that the book be removed. Mr. Craig was not happy about this and he asked the librarian if he could come to the library and select some books.

Mr. Craig came to the library and selected some books

He was pleased to see that the books were locked and he was happy about it. He asked the librarian why this was the case. The librarian explained that the books were locked to prevent theft.

Democratic Candidates Air Views

by Louise Tate

The Institute of Politics will coordinate a Democratic Mock Convention next week that should add some sizzle to the presidential campaign.

In order to give the candidates a more realistic campaign experience, the Institute of Politics has asked all of the candidates to present their views on an array of issues that will be announced next week. The candidates will be asked questions about their views on various topics, and their responses will be recorded and broadcast nationwide.

The mock convention will be held next week at the Institute of Politics and will be broadcast on national television. The candidates will be divided into two groups, and each group will present proposals on a different set of issues. The two groups will then debate their proposals in a televised debate.

The Institute of Politics hopes that this mock convention will give the candidates a chance to hone their campaign skills and to get some practice in answering the tough questions that come their way during the real election season. The Institute also hopes that the mock convention will help to spread awareness of the issues that are important to the American people.

The Institute of Politics is excited about the upcoming mock convention and is looking forward to seeing how the candidates will perform. It is sure to be an exciting event that will give the American people a glimpse of what to expect in the upcoming presidential election.

Oberlin Vocalists Sing On Hill

Visiting Scottern during their annual Spring Concert Tour will be the 59 men and women of the Oberlin College Choir. The tour will sing on the Hill April 12.

Under the leadership of Robert Ferguson, the group is composed of students from the College of Arts and Sciences as well as the Conservatory of Music. Their tour will take them to five midwestern states.

Arriving the afternoon of the concert, the singers and an instrumental ensemble will sing dinner with the members of the Westminster Choir. The concert is being sponsored by the SCA.

During its annual tour the Oberlin Choir has made several New York appearances and is presently working under Robert Shaw in Cleveland. The group is affiliated to the Cleveland Orchestral Society on Sunday.

Dedicated to sacred and secular music of the 18th and 19th centuries, the ensemble will perform "Let All the Peoples Praise the Lord" by Dresdner and the "Coronation" by Latz with other numbers.
